Comment: The scheme is hopelessly oversized in an already crowded area. The loss of B&Q, especially to people without cars, is a serious nuisance.

Comment: This development is completely out of character for the area. The buildings in the area are a maximum of 3-4 stories and not higher and this would completely change the character of the area which would be detrimental to the people living there.

Also with the number of people going to live in the complex there will be some heavy traffic in an area which is heavily congested. Also the area cannot support its infrastructure for more people through the lack of Places with schools, doctors, A&E, parks etc..

This is a cynical attempt to build an estate where there should not be one with high rise flats

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Huge tower blocks are not in-keeping with the surrounding 1-3 storey Victorian and Edwardian structures. The recent proposal only suggest what its design might be like, and use a lot of superlatives to try and convince us. The buildings are too tall, and no amount of pretty words will change that, or the fact that they too are not in keeping with the area. And still - there's no mention of provision for social tenants or affordable homes. Nor still any proposed community outreach or consideration for the impact on local infrastructure from schools to surgeries, as well as roads and rail links. We keep objecting with reason and queries, but the proposals and appeals get steadily worse. Plus, often teh appeals are not shared with the community - this is really unethical.

1-2 bedrooms don't suggest family homes. So will all residents be commuters or young professionals? Either way - this will impact on the railway - a commute is very busy at present, or for home workers, the surrounding area - which is also, very busy at present.

There's no real provision for the community. Cricklewood fights for its identity and outside spaces, to situate such huge buildings here will - literally - overshadow the space and openness we have. Quality of life will be impacted, thanks to more people and more traffic. High towers will create wind funelling too.

I'm not averse to housing, yes, it's needed. Redeveloping the B&Q site is a great idea. But, it doesn't need to be a series of tower blocks with huge numbers of people. It could be a much lower height structure with green space. Done by planners and developers who work with the local community rather than against it.

Comment: I have nothing good to say about this development. It is ugly yes, but it is so much worse than that. It isn't safe or healthy. How many thousands of extra people will be added to an already horrendously congested street without any improvements to the infrastructure. The primary schools and GPs in the area are already nearly at breaking point. There is no parking. No green space. These buildings will literally create unhealthy homes. Both for themselves and those already living in the area. I'm disgusted by the cash grab to shove so many thousands of people in somewhere whatever the cost to quality of life. Frankly I refuse to believe it has even got this far without corruption and bribery. Surely no one at the council thinks this will help Cricklewood. If this actually goes ahead then I have to assume that my council is actively criminal and has accepted bribes. It's just giant developer money trampling over local people till we barely have any access to healthcare and the road is choked with cars and fumes. AND all of this on a site where the people of Cricklewood have already suffered. Back when it was purchased by food giant, the loss of our only central green space, the council sold that project as being positive because food giant were going to build a park and a community centre. Well of course the corrupt council never held them to it and when food giant sold the site on B&Q and the other stores were never held responsible for that lapsed promise either. This was land was owned by the people of Cricklewood and the millions of pounds that have been made off of it we've seen nothing. Nothing, but a choked road and attempts to sell a slope you can barely sit on as a central town green space. If the council had any moral back bone not only would this monstrosity (and yes it is truly an ugly bad design) never happen. That land would be returned to Cricklewood. Create a proper central garden and market square. That would bring so much to Cricklewood.

In this modern day high rise living is anti social and this a greedy and opportunistic development. Keep the buildings at 6-10 levels like other developers nearby . There is simply no appropriate local infrastructure to support this number of new homes. The trains , buses and roads are already at capacity.

I live locally and have no objection to a 25 storey tower. Better this than knocking down housing estates. The towers look fine to me. Yes I wish they'd build more council housing but this is still better than a B & Q and a car park. People need places to live.

More housing that is unaffordable or unattainable for people who have lived round here their whole lives.

There is no support for us to buy somewhere or even be able to rent at a price that we can afford!

I think having more roads closed, building works, roadworks, even more cars on the road & an area that will become more congested and unaffordable for everyone.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: These buildings are incompatible with the look and feel of the area. They are far too high and will change the nature of the neighbourhood. If passed, this will set a precedent and there will be more and more high rise buildings in the area. Cricklewood is rich in history with Victorian and Edwardian properties. I believe these buildings are unsightly and out of place in this area.

Furthermore, such high density housing cannot be accommodated in an already heavily populated area. The traffic increase alone will be catastrophic, as well as the impact on the public transport system.

It looks like almost every development now going on in the area, particularly Wembley etc., where these tall blocks are dominating the otherwise low density area,

Comment: High rises have over recent years been knocked down across Brent due to their problematic nature and unsightly appearance and replaced with low rise homes. Take Church Road, Stone Bridge as an example. The high rises currently on Claremont Road look awful and have been poorly maintained.

I oppose the building of these blocks on the site where B and Q is situated as I believe they will make the area congested, look unsightly and destroy the historical view of the area.

25 storeys is far too tall, and the number of different blocks is also excessive.

Cricklewood Lane is already congested and causes a great deal of pollution, the increase in residents, and therefore their cars, will only add to this problem. The Thameslink is already overcrowded, again this increase in residents will cause further strain on this transport system. This is not in keeping with the local area design. An eyesore.

The height and density of these 1100 dwellings will change the whole community. The shadows cast will fall for hundreds of metres blighting neighbouring residents. Cricklewood is already so densely populated and full of traffic this will be an absolute disaster. But as usual with a huge amount of objectors I expect Barnet will just ignore them and go ahead anyway just as you have done on Granville road and countless others streets in the area.

Basically it will be a complete eyesore and will probably put people off from moving to the area. The number of flats is also far too many and will put a major strain on schools, doctors, travel, roads and all infrastructure in the area. Will you be building more of these? I'm guessing not. The already highly congested roads, we already have pollution issues in the area, will become even worse with the volume of people you are planning to house, no doubt my train to work, already packed will become ridiculous. Overall the scale of this development is just not feasible and not wanted in Cricklewood.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I object to this development in the strongest possible terms:

- No new social housing in a neighbourhood which desperately needs social housing
- Completely out of character with the surrounding neighbourhood, In particular, I object to the enormous size of the project. It is about 5x too big and tall and should not be higher than the current building, which overwhelms the area currently.
- Density: This is an extremely densely populated area which cannot absorb another 1,100 flats
- Facilities: Adding this number of flats will exacerbate the pressure on local facilities like schools, medical facilities, libraries, green spaces, local transport, transport into London etc. I do not see any plans to not exacerbate the current, real pressure on facilities. The word "facilities" isn't mentioned in the report, nor a mention provision of any new facilities.
- Transport: Trains into London are crowded and infrequent. Getting around is slow. Without a well thought-out plan to overhaul local transport, i.e. decent cycle lanes, separated from pedestrians and cars, wider footpaths, possibly a tunnel under the A5 from Hanger Lane, the area will come to a total standstill, and will become even more polluted and more unsafe.
- Green space. No new green space in an area desperately lacking.
- Line of sight from Gladstone Park to West End and City will be obstructed. This should be included in the assessment report. Including the line of sight from Greenwich Park is not helpful for anyone living in NW London.

This development is crass, completely out of character with the local area, exacerbates pressure on facilities, and does not offer any solutions to existing pressures. This plan needs to be completely redone. Rating: F

The flats are too high. Not nice to see from station, and my house which is at near terrace. It is sad the strong image of Cricklewood near station is high rise flats. That field can be improved in many ways instead of that.

I imagine that it is not so nice to people who will live in that high flat as well. Majority part of flats does not have view and natural sunlight.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: An absolute abomination in the Cricklewood skyline. It is absolutely not in keeping with the nearby buildings in its statue or style, and there simply isn't the infrastructure to support the proposed density of homes.

This puts a complete mood of depression on the local community and takes away all the values and morals that we have as a community.

What about parking? Will we even be able to park our cars in the terraces again.

Will our lovely little playground be full of unwanted crowds of loud and noisy people?

Will we be able to sleep at night with the extra crowd of noise caused from many different new potential reasons.

The roads around cricklewood will be over congested and cause more road accidents.

This will push our health service over the brink which is already having our GP surgery being moved to a bus ride away. Will we even be Able to see a doctor anymore.

Will my mental and physical health be affected by this?

Will this lead to less Jobs in are local area?

Will this become a community of heavier crime with the nearest police station already being cut off all the away down to Kentish Town. Surly this will cause much more crimes and potential theft and murders with an alarming unprecedented poor police call out?

Comment: Loss of light or overshadowing

Overlooking/loss of privacy

Adequacy of parking/loading/turning - this area is overloaded already and we have substantial issues with parking violators. Given absence of parking this will worsen.

Highway safety - rate of incident already high. Adding additional will worsen this. This development cannot be supported by the single lane roads and/or the proposal to widen part of one road for a short area.

A5 is congested and Cricklewood Lane. Traffic generation will be unacceptable. We have the A406 and M1 coming into the area already from staples corner and the A41. Further traffic will cause delay, I am a consultant and find travelling in / out of the area is already congested beyond belief.

Noise and disturbance resulting from use - they are very close, one street away, behind the railway terraces.

Hazardous materials - a large scale development of this size so close to home is a concern.

Building materials and specifications may be acceptable now, however all building materials have hazardous properties.

Loss of trees / nature - proposal of fake nature unacceptable.

Effect on listed building and conservation area - railway terraces are historic in nature. This is not in tune with the locality

Layout and density of building - extreme scale of buildings proposed considering the locality. The density is immense. We already have issues in this area with infrastructure.

Design, appearance and materials - modern, large scale, clad and not in tune with the area.

Impact to community, current use of GP, Pound Stretcher, B&Q regular. Loss of critical services.

Relocation of health services is frankly unacceptable, considering the large development additional health services are required not removal.

I do think that we need new housing in London and I can't stand these NIMBYs who want it somewhere else or who dream that it can be "in keeping with the local area" as if we all think like that new homes won't ever be built.

Having said that I have two concerns:

1. We do need to seriously ensure that this scheme does not impact the already congested roads around cricklewood. I wonder if the developer can pay for some additional road improvements such as widening the road under the bridge in cricklewood lane. I know that's a hard one but something does need to be done about the congestion.
2. A parochial comment but I will REALLY miss b&q there. I am sure that the developers will point to other builders merchants in the area but b&q offers quite a different offering and I am so close to it. As a landlord and property manager I go there on almost a daily basis.

There is already a shortage of local school places, with no plans for a school included in the application. The area is already heavily congested, and this will add massive traffic and pollution. The development is right next to the border with Brent, which will carry the burden of extra school demand and pollution without extra revenues.

Everyone knows such buildings are a scar on the landscape, even in an urban area like Cricklewood. These buildings are out of character, health & safety hazards, cause social problems and are an easy target for terrorists who like to target places that can result in high fatalities. Such eyesores will cast a shadow on people for a lifetime, if the Nazis ruled the World today or England, this would be their concentration camps!

Comment: I am against this development in the B&Q site in Cricklewood for the following reasons. Over-development (too many units) and scale far too tall and obtrusive.

There is no reason why the density allowed for the B&Q site should be higher than that approved last year for the adjoining Co-op site. Even applying the approved density pro-rata would only allow a maximum of 755 units on the B&Q site rather than 1007 as suggested by Barnet or 1100 proposed by Montreaux. A new scheme should be designed that is more in keeping with the character and scale of Cricklewood, with blocks no more than 9 storeys high, regardless of whether the total units it includes reaches a total of 755 units.

The height issue in Barnet's own 2019 Tall Buildings Update clearly recommends a maximum height of 14 storeys for Cricklewood. That document makes a clear distinction between Cricklewood and Brent Cross where taller buildings are considered acceptable. And the Barnet Recommendation Report for the adjoining Co-op site opined that the 9 storey tower "would represent an appropriate height barometer for future development of the neighbouring site".

Barnet classify buildings more than 8 storeys as Tall Buildings, and buildings more than 14 storeys as Very Tall Buildings. All four parcels of buildings proposed are therefore Very Tall Buildings. I do not agree with the tallest building, whatever its height, being on the Cricklewood Lane frontage - a lower building in front would lessen its impact. I do not believe in the gateway or waymark building concept - I think that is just an excuse for a very tall tower. The wireline illustrations in the application seem to me to show just how big the proposed buildings would be - the massing from the Cricklewood Lane/Claremont Road junction is truly shocking.

Barnet must listen to public opinion & tell Montreaux to redesign this proposal. It would be terrible to allow an outline permission to permit Montreaux, or others this kind of over-development

Comment: The scheme is still inappropriate and an overdevelopment. Trying to cram as many flats onto a small site in the interests of out of town (Slough) developer profit and Barnet's desire from revenue based on the size of the development. They are cramming into this corner of the Borough because the nice middle class people in the detached Barnet housing won't be too inconvenienced as it is on the border of Brent and Camden. The ludicrously overhyped words in the developer's latest submission is just lies and spin written by an advertising copywriter. They have just strung any old words together. This is a travesty masquerading as a benefit. The site should be populated by simple streets with three storey housing/gardens and a few five storey flats/marionettes. Withdraw this cynical application immediately and pass the site to someone who has community values and is prepared to work locally to get the right formula.

The already busy Edgware Road and surrounding streets will be turned into a virtual car park due to the massive congestion from all the new crowded new areas. This promises to be the most over crowded area, Cricklewood given a few years! If this goes ahead in its huge plan.

Comment: This proposed development is a massive over development of this site which is already suffering from congestion. This part of London does not suit these tall high rises which promise to be the same as the horrendous type of build which have now been pulled down from the 1960's building schemes which were not successful for anyone living there with massive problems for residents.

The already busy Edgware Road and surrounding streets will be turned into a virtual car park due to the massive congestion from all the new crowded new areas. This promises to be the most over crowded area.

Comment: The development is completely out of character for the area, there are no comparable buildings and will thus completely change the nature of the surrounding space.

Furthermore the A5/Cricklewood Broadway junction that this development would overlook is already a massive chokepoint for traffic of all sorts - pedestrian, car, bus etc. This development will only make this worse. As a daily commuter through the area I despair at how much worse this development will make things.

I'm also disappointed with the severe lack of social housing planned in a development with over 1000 units.

There is no evidence to suggest that the local transport links can cope with the added pressures this development would bring.

Comment: I objected to this development during the previous round of consultation and continue to do so.

I am also unhappy that this period of consultation is open so briefly and we have received zero communications about it. You have the contact details of people from the first round; why weren't we contacted to advise that further consultation was being undertaken?

The buildings are far too large for this area. We simply do not have the public transport available to be able to support such a large influx of people. Our buses are already often at capacity and ThamesLink does not run as frequently as the tube.

Also the towers are far too tall - even the council plan stipulated that towers of this height would not be built in this area. The recent renderings have also shown that the development will be an eye sore, as the designs are frankly, ugly. They are a collection of grotesque behemoths that will loom over their Victorian and Edwardian neighbours and cast shade upon thousands of residents. They're completely inappropriate for this area.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: This proposal is so problematic I don't even know where to start. I'm going to list just a few issues that I hope will be considered.

My main overriding concern is that the proposal is far too high density for an area already struggling with infrastructure and transport.

Tower blocks create a poor urban environment - wind tunnels, shadows, poor safety. Cricklewood already lacks healthy green space and this over-development will exacerbate the poor air quality and environment.

The transport study does nothing to resolve any of the existing infrastructure issues: there will be no more trains, no more buses, no more road space or pavement space for the new residents.

Even car-free flats will use taxis, delivery services which will add to the already congested roads.

The loss of parking spaces on site will further damage the local retail economy. Not everyone or every journey is suitable for a bike.

Comment: Dear Sirs

The proposed new buildings are very large, with the tower to the south side of the development being particularly tall. In my opinion, the proposals are imposing and unsympathetic in scale to the existing residential and commercial buildings in the area, and those likely to be built in the future, especially having regard to height. Please do not approve this planning application as it currently stands.

The redevelopment of this site offers an enormous opportunity for a long-standing improvement to Cricklewood, for the benefit of everyone in the community. If the size and height can be made to fit much better, the redevelopment could be helpful to re-energise the nearby shopping area, attracting inwards investment. Some open space could help with this, if possible.

Stuart Borrie

Comment: I strongly object to this development. They are shortsighted in terms of the pressure on local roads, facilities, parking, traffic pollution and the stress of high density living.

This build will block out sunlight for existing residents and increase the pressure on the public transport system. You really think only 88 extra people will use the train each morning to commute? Or that new residents won't park on neighbouring streets?

This development isn't just big, it's huge. Cramming people into small spaces with no thought of the impact of long term mental health and the needs of children.

The Edgware Road is already an extremely congested road. It only takes one accident along the route to throw the rest of the traffic out. Factoring in all the lorries and trucks and tradespeople who will be using the roads while the development would be constructed on top of all the other existing traffic is just insane.

The height of the buildings is not in-keeping with the surrounding area and will be another blight on the landscape. The infrastructure in this area is already poor and by furthering the overcrowding, this development will exacerbate this problem. No one wants more tower blocks and high density living in this area. The Edgware Road is already a parking lot, the trains are already overcrowded and there are insufficient schools, hospitals, GPs, police, firefighters and other amenities to support this badly thought out and unwanted development.

Comment: This has got to be the worst planning application I have seen. It is completely out of keeping with the local area and makes no provision for parking or green space, both of which are badly needed in Cricklewood. The infrastructure around Cricklewood will just not cope with such an intense build. We are already suffering from flooding because the area is over crowded. The doctors, schools and clinics are over stretched and no provision is ever made for these. None of this will be social housing and the properties will be over priced and unaffordable, meaning that they will be purchased by people not living in or moving to the area and will be rented out at extortionately high rents. Get rid of the high rise flats, make provision for decent housing low level, ensure there is parking so the high street does not suffer, and also make provision for the retail outlets there which are badly needed. Not everyone can travel by public transport or cycle some do need cars/vans to enable them to get to work, shop comfortably and get their purchases home. We need sensible planning for the area not monstrosities completely out of keeping. We also need the high street, no more high streets should suffer because of lack of trade.

There are simply no more facilities available for over a thousand new residents. Traffic is already at a standstill and local facilities are overwhelmed. These new slums are not required and will be a significant blight on the environment, and will significantly lower the living standards of surrounding residents. High-rise blocks do not suit the local area at all, and will over-stretch resources at a time when they are particularly scarce.

The traffic in the area is already appalling, you can not seriously want to add to this?

As a local, I strongly object to this development. It just comes across as greedy.

The tower blocks proposed will completely overwhelm the area. The skyline will dominate the local housing and the density of new residents will mean that all local services and local traffic will be completely overwhelmed.

Please ask the Property Developers to submit a new scheme that proposes housing in the same style and character as the current housing in the area.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The proposed planning will decimate the layout of the area due to the high rise buildings proposed creating an urban city scape within a housing area.

1. It is out of character of the rest of the area that is made of houses and low rise buildings, changing the suburban nature of the area into a city like area. Making the area look like a hotchpotch of buildings with no harmony or taste.
2. It will create a lot of pressure on public services, congestion, pollution, a large increase of cars on single lane roads and on an already highly congested junction.
3. It will block the light and open view for the houses in the area

It would be great to have a development that is in harmony with the character of the area not a 25 and 18 and 10 storey monsters. That will be terrible.

Comment: I object, the reasons were listed in the petition to council a while ago and many letters written by at least 2 organizations representing Barnet and neighbouring communities. Money should not decide everything. There are spaces for high rise blocks in other areas, zones 5 and 6. There are small towns which would benefit from influx of people, including those on supported housing list. However, there is not profit in it, thus we have a continuing threat of this monstrosity (both in image and effect it would have on the neighbourhood) being pushed on us. There is nothing to justify such height and density but a quick buck to be made by developers. Even if they build a school, a surgery, a hospital and an extra train station it would not solve the problem. This development is grossly misplaced, move it to zone 6 if necessary.

The scheme is completely out of scale with the surrounding streets and buildings and will destroy the historic nature of Cricklewood with tower blocks dominating the entire town and surrounding residential streets.

If the ambition is to make Cricklewood devoid of character the scheme could not be better designed.

There is little or no mention of social housing which is desperately needed in the area. Any Council with responsibility for 'levelling up' should ensure social housing provision forms the majority of any development.

Car parking is already at a premium throughout the Cricklewood area in Barnet, Camden and Brent but no proposals for this seem to meet the demand

Comment: The proposal is unbelievably unsuitable for the middle Cricklewood. The tallest buildings in the neighbourhood are The Crown and Ashford Court. The monstrous buildings on the plan aren't remotely in keeping with the surrounding area and will be a massive eyesore for all of us living in the area. I have lived in Cricklewood for 34 years and the thought of these huge buildings blighting the landscape fill me with horror.

The traffic is horrendous along Cricklewood Broadway at the best of times and with the additional load this site will create, together with already overstretched doctors, schools etc is really unacceptable. I understand the need for more housing but surely something more sympathetic with the surrounding area could be designed!

Comment: Strongly object to this development as planned and designed. It is a shockingly oversized and will create a huge eyesore for the whole area. Height of towers has no precedent or similar development in the area and is far far too high, and out of keeping with all the characteristics of our boroughs. This whole development will put a huge strains on all the community resources, pollution, parking, transportation, crime, local health and public resources and utilities. This will be even worse during the years of building it also. The area is already a disaster for congestion today, let alone if this goes ahead. This development will invite even more problems we don't need. Yes, we do need this area developed in general but not like this. The majority of this area should be left as green space, with low height housing (3-5 stories max) tastefully added. Simply, there is absolutely nothing I see to like about the design or scale or impact of this development. Reject it please.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: This is the latest of a series of totally inappropriate mass developments being imposed on what are of course Labour wards. If these plans were being suggested for a Tory ward, would there be opposition from Tory councillors? Of course there would.

Quite obviously this plan is a gross example of overdevelopment: the size and style are obscenely out of character for the surrounding area. Introducing 1100 new units into an area which is already with inadequate health care provision would be catastrophic, and the burden on local schools equally so. The increase in traffic in an already congested area with poor air quality will add to poor health outcomes, as well as severely increase traffic problems.

This proposal also flies in the face of local housing need: what we need are more social housing units, and more family houses. We are being denied these because the development lobby in Barnet is now deeply embedded within the council, and works entirely to push profit driven development, at the cost of serving the local community.

Comment: This urban design study contains so many fatuous statements about the so called benefits of the design. This proposal is a huge overdevelopment of an area with already overstretched infrastructure, in terms of roads, public transport, schools, medical facilities and essential shops. Some of the key sight lines from within the borough of Camden have been omitted, which would show up what an oversized and inappropriate feature on the landscape this development would be. One can imagine that this will be another overcrowded slum of the future with insufficient amenities for the vast number new residents. The fact that this is situated on the edge of the borough of Barnet, impacting the residents of Brent and Camden probably more than those in Barnet means that Barnet Council gets all the income but none of the problems and negative impact. Also B&Q is a valuable retail resource for the area, this will be lost. In summary, this development is too tall, an ugly overdevelopment of the space and inappropriate for the neighbourhood.

Comment: It seems that Barnet Council has not taken on board (since a year ago) the comments residents have made. Instead we get Excel spread sheets and pie charts (in glossy colours) that are meaningless to peoples' actual lived experiences in the area.

The intersection of the A5, A407, the mainline rail and Claremont road is already a pedestrian and motoring nightmare. I wonder if anybody from the council has actually walked these roads. You cannot socially distance safely!

Fumes from idling cars stuck in traffic make it unsafe for pedestrians. There are several schools in the area. Do we really want the children to walk to schools, or Cricklewood Station or bus stops in this atmosphere?

For months, A407 has been a one way route which buses have had to negotiate and has impacted the journey for public transport passengers. I don't recall the council notifying us of the delays and how long it would last

What people living in the area want to know is:

- how long this build will take?
- how many roads will be closed and for how long?
- how many units are for sale to landlords?
- how many units for council/social housing?
- a comparison of heights of various buildings currently in the area and what is being planned?
- a comparison of current population density and post build density

Comment: I live on Westcroft estate just over the road from this proposed building. I've lived here my whole life, my mum is 78 and was born on this estate and lives here with me.

This building has no place in Cricklewood, it would be out of place, take the character away from the area, and make it dark and overshadowed.

We need shops in Cricklewood to make this back into the bustling shopping street and Broadway it used to be.

I have 4 children and I want them to remember Cricklewood as the friendly little shopping street it once was, not a built up concrete jungle.

I am a home owner too, and I would sooner lose money on the value of my home and keep Cricklewood as a community, rather than gain a few thousand on its worth, but have the place I live and love turned into a place overrun with towers, too many people and not enough space, and what happens when you have more people and less space, you build up, so this would just be the start of towers forming everywhere.

Comment:the proportions and scale of this proposed development are totally out of character for the neighbourhood. The buildings are too tall, and the environmental effect of this huge development on the area will be a disaster. cricklewood lane/Broadway is already congested with traffic and is a busy bus route. the impact of this density of development is going to be appalling. Barnet seems to be developing along its borders with Brent and Camden, and ensuring its wealthy Tory base , in Finchley and the other side of the borough are unaffected by these monstrous out of scale developments. Living in low rise Brent housing we feel totally overlooked and victimised by this. i note there is to be some C3 housing which is good, but but only 1100 of the units. the majority will be bought as buy to let by investors from here and abroad and it will do nothing to enhance Cricklewood . where are the additional GP surgeries, the urgent care centre having already fallen as a casualty of the Barnet development. where are the additional school places? i suppose your wealthy investors will not actually live there so have no interest in these social aspects.i strongly disapprove of Barnet foisting this huge , out of Proportion development on those of us who live close by , but in Brent. the traffic will be totally impossible to cope with, the closure of Cricklewood lane for months on end has been a tatse of that.

Comment: I object to the proposed demolition of buildings and shops at Cricklewood. As a long term resident of the area I and other residents need B and Q, Poundstretcher, the Coop, the Asian supermarket and other shops in the area. WE DO NOT NEED high rise buildings. Please listen to what local residents want. You are there to serve us. I am quite sure there are many other residents who are no confident to object who also agree- WE DO NOT WANT HIGH RISE BUILDINGS. They are intimidating. We need the existing shops.

Comment: This proposed development is a massive over development of this site which is already suffering from congestion. This part of London does not suit these tall high rises which promise to be the same as the horrendous type of build which have now been pulled down from the 1960's building schemes which were not successful for anyone living there with massive problems for residents.

The already busy Edgware Road and surrounding streets will be turned into a virtual car park due to the massive congestion from all the new crowded new areas. This promises to be the most over crowded area.

Comment: I object to the proposals for the following reasons:

1. The buildings are much too high and not in keeping with surrounding buildings. Nothing in the area matches them for height; and they look ugly.
2. The traffic is already very congested in Cricklewood Broadway, Cricklewood Lane and the surrounding streets. More residents mean more cars and so even more congestion and an increase in pollution, which is already obvious to anyone who walks in the area.
3. I can't see any social/affordable housing in the plans. In a relatively poor area, surely this is a pre-requisite?

Traffic Levels: the junction at Cricklewood Lane and the A5 is already often unable to handle the volume of traffic, as is the wider area in general.

Design & Appearance: nothing in the area comes close to the size, bulk and footprint of these proposed buildings. They are rather inappropriate for the area, damaging the character of the area.

Comment: The buildings proposed, with the height and dominance as displayed will disproportionately affect the character of the area. They will dominate the skyline, create a very long shadow over a large number of cricklewood.

The pavements and walkways of cricklewood are poor, and are not sufficient to cope with the foot traffic as it stands today. The addition of 1,800 flats can only create even greater pressure increase the risk of accidents as people spill onto the road, and push and shove to get by.

The estimation of that only 88 residents will use the rover ground train service into central London is laughable. The marketing will undoubtedly promote the close rail links. It is utterly ridiculous to imply that the other 1700 residents will remain local or reverse commute to Bedford or St Albans. The jobs are in central London. People will not walk to the tube stations that are 10-15 mins walk away down a busy road. They will use the most convenient station.

I utterly object to such a huge development

There are hardly any social housing flats and hardly any affordable flats and most importantly, it's going to congest the area and ruin many many people's view. Gardens which were previously sunny are going to be loomed over by these overbearing flats and I think if this was happening to you outside your house you would say the exact same thing.

You are only thinking of the money you will get and not at all of how you are affecting this neighbourhood.

Cricklewood already struggles daily with congested traffic. Where will people park, go to school, see a GP. The strain will be too much. It is hugely upsetting.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I take this opportunity to reiterate all of my previous objections. As a neighbour to this scheme, I strongly object. The new plans and poetic descriptions do nothing to change the reality of a proposed development which is not in any way inkeeping with the neighbourhood in terms of height, massing or available amenities (transport and otherwise). The transport plan does not address the issues for pedestrians (how will they pass under train bridge with barriers making the pavement even narrower?) cyclists (acknowledging that the junctions are not suited to cyclists and the air is already at worrying levels of pollution for cyclists) or rail commuters (massively underestimating the level of use from the 1100 apartments). The development with its height and massing in an otherwise 2/3 storey neighbourhood will be an eyesore, overburdening the already stretched amenities and in no way an enhancement to the community. I am genuinely astonished that only a further two week consultation period has been permitted but hope that the objections numbering over one thousand from the previous consultation will all still stand and be taken into consideration.

If approved the development is going to ruin the local area. It is just about cramming in as many properties as possible and as high as possible for the developers to make the maximum amount of money! They don't give a damn about our quality of life or preserving the nature and character of the Cricklewood community.

The proposed development is far too big and far too high. It is a disgrace that it contains no social housing. And it will be a disgrace if Council approve the develop. Please, please, please reject the planning application.

These areas become ghettos in many cases .. places where members of the public fear to go because of gangs. There is a sense of fear, of sinister goings on, and criminal activity thrives. Any residential housing, particularly social housing, which is not going to suffer from these afflictions, must be low density, in low blocks not exceeding 4 floors, with plenty of free and accessible green space and richly mixed with commerce and private homes. Your proposal is doomed to failure and to blighting the city.

Cricklewood High Street is too narrow for safe pedestrian traffic as it is and cannot facilitate a project of this size. This area suffers some of the worst air pollution in London, currently illegal, and the concrete dust, exhaust fumes and particulate matter will present an even greater health risk than we have. 25 people die in London per day from air pollution!

This is an unsustainable development that puts profit above people's health and well-being.

Comment: This proposed scheme is overbearing and wholly out of place in the street scene. It is disproportionate to the entire area and would be an eye sore from most local view points.

Furthermore it would create negative effects on local amenities and unduly disress local parking capacity and other local amenities which this density of housing is unable to support without significant Investa from the local council. This scheme is ill conceived and fails many local planning guidelines.

A block of this height would be a complete eyesore and stand out in the otherwise 3 storey landscape like a sore thumb. Tall buildings grouped together would also block sunlight on the surrounding homes and urban spaces, which is detrimental to the well being of local residents.

I hope that a limit can be set at around 15 storeys to preserve the ethos of the surrounding area and the happiness of existing residents.

Comment: This development is massive and would dominate the skyline from all approaches. It is entirely out of keeping with the character of the neighbourhood. Cricklewood lacks the services, notably schools, GPs and play areas, to accommodate such large numbers of new residents. The pavements are already too narrow for the number of pedestrians (and the tiny amount of pavement widening proposed for the Cricklewood Lane junction will make little difference). There is already too much vehicle traffic - more will further damage the local environment. In addition, the development had been planned with insufficient car parking for residents, likely to lead to them parking in nearby areas to the disadvantage of existing residents. I strongly object to this planning application (and to the very short notice which has been given for objecting to it)

There is not enough room for another 100 or so residents, the flats block the natural light coming into homes.lets not make this neighbourhood like this. Move people out of London whwre there is space there are so many traffic jams, so much pollution here. We have no room for more people, why are we cramming all the people in this area? This is unfair to the young kids and children who have no room to play and enjoy the area.

This will surely be a deterrent to many.

The numbers of potential people/families would put a significant strain on local infrastructure, and residents from the development using the local rail & bus services would put extra strain on such services. The estimates of such numbers provided by the applicant seem to be small when compared to the numbers of properties proposed.

Comment: If you read the pages of text with which the developers have attempted to exhaust committee members you will see that much of it is unrealistic or bluntly untrue. The area does NOT have good pedestrian facilities with wide pavements: the building work and subsequent additional population WILL add substantially to traffic on local roads: it will obviously NOT reduce "fear and intimidation" on the surrounding streets: the existence of a cycle path on Hampstead Heath is completely irrelevant. The greenery drawn onto the plan will be obscured and overshadowed by the disproportionately tall buildings which will dominate the skyline from miles around.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The application proposes up to 1,100 residential units in blocks 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 25 storeys tall, with the 25-storey block closest to Cricklewood Lane. These heights breach Barnet's planning frameworks and policies, from the Cricklewood Brent Cross and West Hendon Development Framework to last year's Tall Buildings Update and the policies referenced there. Its extraordinarily high-density would overwhelm the centre of Cricklewood, looming not only above its nearest neighbours in Barnet but all the Brent and Camden residents of Cricklewood too, and stress facilities to breaking point.

There are no plans for any social housing as part of this development and I find this unacceptable from an equality point of view.

The scale and height proposed are not in keeping with the local 2- and 3-storey buildings. Nothing in the Cricklewood area is as tall as this or as dense as this.

The development would not serve pedestrians coming to or from the Railway Terraces via Kara Way and it would not serve cyclists travelling between Cricklewood Lane and the A5 junction with Depot Approach. The concept fails to meet Transport for London's London Cycling Design Standards. Diverting off straight roads to cycle up and down sharp inclines and in amongst pedestrians fails to satisfy the core outcomes of directness, comfort, coherence and adaptability to increasing volumes, and breaches the principle that bicycles must be treated as vehicles, not pedestrians.

The traffic and transport sections of the application make no attempt to evaluate likely use or benefits of this features.

The amount of vehicles traffic in the area (already congested) would make Cricklewood unhealthier and unliveable.

Whilst cosmetically generic for this type of development, I believe the proposed development is way too high and too dense. It overlooks and overshadows its neighbours in all directions and is in contradiction to Barnet's planning advice on high buildings.

I think the site is perfect for housing and has great potential to bring more quality homes to the area, but the sheer density and lack of open space of the design is a concern, which will impact adversely on the very few public spaces and facilities nearby.

London is in desperate need of good housing, but I don't think this offers a good quality of living for proposed residents or existing neighbours.

It is totally preposterous to attempt to redevelop this site to include up to 1100 residential units and 1200sqm of flexible commercial and community floor space in buildings ranging from 3-25 storeys high. This is not in keeping with any residential properties in the area and there is simply not the infrastructure to cope with a development of this size. No nursery places, no extra schools, no extra GP surgeries or NHS facilities or hospitals. The proposed amount of dwellings is unrealistic and this is evident by the amount of thought for allocated car parking spaces as well as the the impact on the locals roads and the environment. The only building of of new properties should be in keeping with the local surrounding residential roads and the height of such properties should be be of no more those that they will be equal to, not towering over them for somebody else's profits.

Simply put, the scale and height is not in keeping with the two and three storey buildings in Cricklewood. Comment Reasons:

Comment: The design of the proposed development is too large and not in keeping with the character of the area. I realize that we could use some extra housing in the area but the apartments proposed are enormous and would dwarf everything in the area, lead to logjam on the Broadway and at the rail station and ruin the rest of the neighborhoods.

While more housing is always an important thing, the developers are trying to put far too much on this site. Cricklewood does not have the infrastructure to support it. Our local schools are full, the traffic is already terrible and this will not help.

Comment: Surely the mock-ups of how these towers show exactly why anyone living within a mile of the proposed development objects so strongly? This is an area of low rise buildings. These buildings will disproportionately dominate and define the skyline of a residential area. Look how the Imperial College monstrosity at Westfield has blighted all views from Kensal Rise. Is that what we want in Cricklewood? Is there an argument around shortage of housing? Surely not in respect of these ugly, multi-storey blocks which will, as with much of the developments which have got the go-ahead in the last ten years, be snapped up by off-shore buyers as buy-to-lets. Please, Barnet, respect the wishes of people who pay their rates, and bring your borough and the neighbouring borough of Brent, alive. Say no to this idea and ask the developers to create a small 'village' of three to five storey maisonettes where families can be housed safely and at reasonable cost.

Comment: This proposed development is completely out of scale with its existing surroundings. The buildings are far too tall and too densely packed in to the site. It will indeed stand out from the neighbourhood, as the developer says, but for all the wrong reasons. And why, when so many units of accommodation are proposed, is there no social housing? I can see no benefit to anyone but the developer in this plan.

The visual impact study does not properly show the impact on the Railway Terraces, especially on Champion Terrace and Kara Way. My earlier objections regarding increased air pollution and changing nature of the neighbourhood have not been addressed. These development plans have been imposed on the area without taking into account the interests of local stakeholders.

Residents and businesses are now being asked to react to plans they would never themselves have suggested.

I want to object to the proposed towers close to Cricklewood station in the current place of B&Q site by developer Montreaux's.

Towers of more than 4 floors will ruin the view and harmony respect other houses that are not so tall. They are overbearing, overwhelming, out of keeping with Cricklewood and not even providing any social housing.

It will also impose pressure on limited services in the area.

Thanks for your attention on this important matter.

Kind regards

Barnet council needs to start prioritising the community in its own borough and in its neighbouring boroughs. What a development of this size will bring is more unaffordable property, increased congestion, more pollution and a huge strain on local public services.

Comment: I object to this development on the grounds firstly the buildings are out of place in this mostly Victorian area, they are so ugly. We have very bad pollution and several roads have been closed off. They will remove natural sunlight from the area to which we are entitled to, ancient lights. There is no talk as to where all the extra cars are going to be parked in already congested roads. In the planning application I noticed that a new school or doctors surgery are not included, most important these days. There are already many properties in this area empty. Postmen do not like delivering to these monstrosities as they are scared of being mugged. If it was single houses and 3 storey flats that would be most acceptable. I wonder if the developers would like to live in one of these flats?

Totally out of scale for the neighbourhood the four proposed blocks of between 330 and 465 feet high would utterly dominate the landscape. Anybody living in the streets within a half mile radius would have their access to sunlight severely curtailed by these buildings and the whole scheme seems to be designed to maximise the profits of the site owners and developers at the expense of local people.

But I can't support the development of a 25 story building in what remains a residential area and a small community. It will fundamentally alter the integrity of the landscape turning it into an half-baked Croydon. The net result will be obstructed views and a lone massive high rise sticking out of the neighbourhood like someone dropped a bit of Canary Wharf right in the middle of little old Cricklewood. Please revise the plans to have a bit more respect for the local community, who I am sure will gladly support the works once the revised blueprint enhances the area not fundamentally destroy it.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I object to this development for a number of reasons.

1. the height and massing of towers is out of keeping with the site and position; and the sheer numbers of flats is over-bearing; the design is very boxy, old-fashioned, we do know enough about how they will be clad bearing in mind the current issues with cladding; and the new additions do not add to the design; there is no architectural merit to the design;
2. There are not enough car parking spaces for people with disabilities; without disabilities there is no need for a car and spaces should not be provided; but nevertheless there should be the opportunity for electric vehicles to be the prime cars used;
3. there is not enough greening - there should be a large garden with allotment spaces; there should be enough green space for outdoor parties; there should be many more trees to soak up the carbon; it basically goes against the London development plans for the amount of greening with every new building;
4. there should be children play spaces within the development; and a community hall;
5. there should be solar heating - the roofs should be used for this; triple glazing; and other means to obtain heat from within the development;
6. windows should be have balconies which are glassed for sun and wind protection but large enough for planting;
7. how much carbon offsetting is there? What plans have been made to make this development carbon neutral/zero?

8. how many social housing units are there?

9. The positioning of the site would naturally encourage rail transport to be a prime factor in choosing to live there, but current rail transport is inadequate for the potential numbers;

10. such a development would lend itself to the provision of community space and amenities including a nursery; GP surgery; supermarket; gym; swimming pool and more - the very items that Cricklewood is lacking could be provided for the community.

The plan is disgraceful as is Barnet Council's behaviour in trying to bring this again without publicity or writing to the many hundreds of local residents who will be negatively affected by this blight. Skyscrapers are not appropriate in Cricklewood; there is not the infrastructure to cope with a huge influx of residents. Traffic is already gridlocked for most parts of the day. If residents are not allowed cars the area will be overwhelmed with homedelivery vehicles. In the original plan there was a proposal for 30% of units to be affordable housing. What happened to them?

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I objected in October 2020 and my reasons still stand. The plan is disgraceful as is Barnet Council's behaviour in trying to bring this again without publicity or writing to the many hundreds of local residents who will be negatively affected by this blight. Skyscrapers are not appropriate in Cricklewood; there is not the infrastructure to cope with a huge influx of residents. Traffic is already gridlocked for most parts of the day. If residents are not allowed cars the area will be overwhelmed with homedelivery vehicles. In the original plan there was a proposal for 30% of units to be affordable housing. What happened to them?

Comment: I wholeheartedly object to this proposal. Firstly, the height is too high for the area. It will dominate the skyline in a very ugly way and the flats will overlook houses giving them no privacy. Most of all I object in the grounds of pollution and congestion that would be created on Cricklewood Broadway and Cricklewood Lane which is already far too congested. It can take half an hour to travel less than a mile. What will this development do? And Barnet won't care as it's on the edge of their borough. Out of sight out of their minds. But it's on our minds as the pollution is outside the schools of our children. I appreciate that houses need to be found for people but 25 storey blocks of flats are not the answer

Providing the intended number of accommodation units without assuring provision of sufficient and suitable infrastructure and support services is irresponsible and will place intolerable pressure on services available in adjacent areas.

Comment: This proposal is out of context with its surrounds. There is no precedent in the area for 24 storey buildings. They are over scaled and studies have shown not conducive to a good living environment. The density of such a development will put pressure on already overstretched services and road structure. This development appears to be Barnet Council pushing their problems to the southern most border of the borough away from the leafy suburbs and at the behest of greedy developers.

Comment: The proposal looks like a monolith that's overbearing the neighbourhood. I am very concerned about the impact on the traffic in the area and that the public transport may be even more overstretched. The buses along Edgware Road and Cricklewood Lane have been overcrowded and slow in heavy traffic for many years already. Thousands of new residents will need a way to move around- trains going through the station have little capacity left, driving will congest the local streets even further (and heavy traffic through Cricklewood is already spilling over and overwhelming the neighbouring areas - Willesden Green, Dollis Hill etc). The schools around Cricklewood are already oversubscribed and there's acute shortage of Gp services. Such dense development threatens to overwhelm local services as well as destroy the low rise character of the area.

Also 25 storeys is ridiculous, safety aspects & built like rabbit cages, too close. Would have thought current Covid problems with people living as close as diagram shows ...unhealthy. Cricklewood has been targeted along with Wembley, by Barnet & Brent councils.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I am writing to express my strong object regarding this building proposal.

1. I am very upset that B&Q has been sold. There are no other DIY shops in the neighbourhood that are easily accessible by public transport.
2. The proposal is to build up to 1100 residential units. This is too much. This will bring an influx of 1000s of people. It is too high density.
 - a. The area will not be able to cope.
 - b. It will bring an increase of pollution, traffic, overcrowding, public transport will be stretched.
 - c. Existing facilities will not cope. The area will need new schools, doctors, dentists, opticians. The area will in fact be losing its current walk in medical clinic.
3. The proposal states buildings ranging from 3 to 25 storeys. I do not believe that the architect has been to the area. How can anyone propose a building 25 stories high in that part of Cricklewood? It will be totally out of keeping with the area. It will be an eyesore. Existing properties and residents will be overlooked. It will over shadow existing buildings.
4. I understand the need for housing. So a few buildings could be built which are only 3-4 stories high. I believe that if the area has been sold and needs to be developed then it should be converted into a multifunctional, multi-use community green space. There are no green spaces in Cricklewood. The only green space is that patch of grass outside B&Q.
5. All of the green space in Granville Road NW2 has been lost and is being built upon. We do not need another such intense, high density building development in Childs Hill. Building a green space might compensate for the loss of this green space in Granville Road.

Comment: High rise tower blocks are completely out of keeping with the character of the neighbourhood, they will tower in an oppressive way over the residential skyline and the new cars will significantly increase congestion on Cricklewood Lane which is already very congested because of the single lane between Shoot Up Hill and Cricklewood station. This would be a blight on the neighbourhood and I sincerely hope it doesn't progress.

The proposal singularly fails to address - for (both existing and) future residents sufficient medical, educational, road network and recreational facilities.

The entire project appears as a crass and avaricious attempt to maximise profit, taking advantage of the current loose and insufficient planning regulations, with no care to the local community.

Further, the area containing the proposed development is very lacking in recreational space for all age groups and the resulting increase in population without provision of proportionate recreational facilities is unforgivable..

(I have not forgiven Barnet Council for the loss of Hendon Football Club together with its provision of youth facilities.)

The resulting increase in traffic will burden already congested roads.

Comment: Has Barnet Council not taken into consideration the 1000+ objections already expressed by local residents with deep concerns about this development? The latest revised plans are presented with clever digital photography and incongruous descriptive language. (What on earth is an 'architectural celebration at the top of the landmark element, with the ability to effectively lead receptors to the station'?) which disguise the real issues:

We do not need 'landmark' tower blocks! The plan for 1100 housing units in buildings from 16 -25 storeys in height represent a disproportionate over-development in an already over-populated, over-polluted part of North West London. It will impact hugely on the character, demography and infrastructure of the area.

Residents of Cricklewood would like to see buildings that positively enhance the overall character of the area. They should be consistent with London Plan Policy requirements and show dignity and respect visually, functionally and environmentally for the people who live there and their neighbours. They should be places which contribute to the overall wellbeing of the area and places that people are proud to call home. This plan denigrates these criteria and therefore I strongly object to it.

Barnet Council MUST listen to and respect the communities who will be adversely affected by these plans.

Comment: I would like to object to the scale of the proposed development on the B & Q site. This area is already very congested, and has limited amenities, it cannot sustain the huge skyscrapers proposed. Why is Barnet council determined to build such dense housing in such a small area when a very similar plan was rejected in the heart of Barnet? It would seem that they have little regard to the quality of life for the residents around this area who would be directly impacted by this overdevelopment? The scale of such high rises are inappropriate. All the research shows that better communities are created when the buildings are more sympathetic to the area. The infrastructure does not exist to support this ugly, inappropriate development. I hope that the council will listen to local residents are not accept the proposals as they stand.

Instead what is proposed is a monstrous attack on the calm and peaceful, low rise nature of Cricklewood. This is not Stratford, this is not Shepherd's Bush, this is Cricklewood. These towers are a big dagger which will penetrate deep into the heart of our neighbourhood, a neighbourhood which retains the charm of the past.

The above massing also gives rise to a serious issue and that is wind tunnel effect created by the buildings especially at street/pedestrian level. What study /assessment has being done on this. This is real important for the "livability" of the spaces

There seems to be little room for proper trees and real landscaping - not just a few lavender bushes

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I have already responded to the first consultation exercise, and I hope that the 1000+ responses will be taken into account in relation to this new proposal.

I am a long time resident of Cricklewood, and I use Cricklewood station regularly (pre pandemic, about 4 times a week to commute to Farringdon). I use the Co-op on Cricklewood lane regularly. I am astounded that the developers should respond to the first responses with a proposal which, despite the poverty of the area, appears to contain no social housing at all. This is, frankly, a disgrace.

Secondly the design is completely overbearing and will destroy the character of the Broadway and surrounding area, which the town team and local residents have done so much to improve. Local residents will be overlooked, and view of tower blocks will utterly change the feel and nature of our local area.

I am also very concerned about the impact on the local infrastructure. There are regularly traffic jams both north and southbound on Cricklewood Broadway and trains are regularly full with standing room only if you are lucky.

It is hard to escape the view that Barnet Council and the developers have absolutely no interest either in the future of the local community or in the views of residents, but I do hope that you will listen to the real concerns of residents which many of us have made repeatedly.

Comment Reasons:

Comment:(As I said last year)

Too big - both in height and in the number of units that would create an oppressive shadow over a wide ranging area affecting residents of Barnet, Brent and Camden

Would overwhelm the local facilities and resources, including public transport, street parking, healthcare providers

Not enough social housing committed to for the scale proposed

Not keeping in any way in with local area and would not be an asset to existing housing or infrastructure.

Moreover, there is probably less demand for such high density housing due to the move to WFH since the pandemic lockdowns, means there is less need for proximity to the city.

In short, these plans still promise a hugely disruptive building project creating congestion, pollution and inconvenience in the local area for a long period with very little gain or interest from the wider community.

Barnet should reject this vague, fanciful and monstrous scheme out of hand.

Comment: The high-rise blocks are totally out of keeping with the environment where buildings are 2-3 floors maximum. The streets are already overcrowded and polluted, so the additional resident and vehicle numbers would overwhelm the existing infrastructure, and overburden transport and health facilities. And shockingly no social housing - the council should be ashamed.

Comment: The present infrastructure can not sustain the 'traffic' that these flats would bring.

Already the closure of Cricklewood Lane has had a massive impact on surrounding roads due to the displacement of vehicles. Cricklewood Lane is already impacted with traffic and traffic jams already an everyday occurrence. The flats would not be affordable housing and so would not ease the present housing shortage for the most vulnerable.

Schools, GP and Dental services are already at full capacity in the area.

The structure is not in keeping with the local area and is a complete eye sore to neighbouring residential areas.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Having looked at the CGIs in the new Urban Design Study these clearly raise a serious concern.

The scheme is far too big, too tall, too dense and basically it is completely out of 'theme' with the area. It will be an eye-sore, block light and feels highly intrusive.

I live in the Railway Terraces' Conservation Area - the development will be intrusive in parts of the terraces, especially from Kara Way, the playground, the allotments, Campion and Needham Terraces.

The terraces are lovely, calm and peaceful. A real haven where the residents here all day, it's like you're not in London at all. This would entirely change one of the major positives of living here and greatly affect, in a negative way, the quality of life for all residents in the short and long term.

Overall, this is a huge scheme, which is greatly over proportioned and that doesn't consider the beautiful life the residents have here.

The buildings also look hideous. They don't blend in with the neighbouring houses at all.

It's horrible for the future residents: they would live directly above a train station. The noise pollution and air quality would hardly be acceptable.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The built environment contributes around 40% of the UK's total carbon footprint. Almost half of this is from energy used in buildings and infrastructure that has nothing to do with their functional operation. Although newly constructed buildings are intended to be more energy efficient (it does depend on which building standard you use) one has to question what is a 'sustainable' use of land in an already dense neighbourhood. Such a development will undoubtedly affect the area in an adverse manner for many reasons, not to mention the additional traffic and congestion and the associated carbon footprint that will ensue (which huge social and health implications) and the strain on existing infrastructure. As we attempt to design and build more sustainable neighbourhoods of the future we really need to question what is 'nice to have' and 'excessive'. For too long we have built in an unsustainable manner. Given the climate emergency we all face and which the Government acknowledges, it's important we are being 'reasonable and proportionate' so we don't end up with very few 'open' spaces for the benefit of local children and communities.

That number of additional residents will place huge pressure on roads and other facilities- especially schools & medical centres. The size of the largest building is enormous and entirely out of keeping with the size of any building in the area. There also appears to be very little parking planned for the development - 90% of residents would have to park elsewhere & parking in this area is already under a huge amount of pressure.

Comment: The development is disproportionate to the facilities of the local area. The buildings themselves are out of keeping with the local area both in terms of height and density, will deprive hundreds of local residents of existing natural light not to mention the enjoyment of the low-rise views from their windows and gardens. The addition of 1,100 new residential units housing 2,000-3,000 additional residents will overwhelm local medical, education and transportation services. The site at the junction of Cricklewood Lane and Cricklewood Broadway is already heavily congested with traffic and pedestrians, and there is nothing to suggest that the local roads will be able to cope with the additional traffic and footfall. This is an ill-thought through development that is totally inappropriate for the neighbourhood.

NW London and not only is already suffering with increased traffic, pollution (due to narrowing roads), lack of school and surgery places etc. Plus it looks like a monstrosity. Nobody cares about rat runs where cars are driving at 60/70 mph in the 20 mph residential zones with no humps while you are planning to add hundreds of cars to the area. Madness. Thanks. ZW

The buildings are HUGE, nothing in line with our neighbourhood... why not? Why not keep with the feel of the place? They're ugly eye sores. We're a suburban area, leave us alone.

Greed. This comes from a place of greed, not giving people homes. Who wants to live in an area where their kids can't get spaces in schools, no GP appointments and no where for their children to hang out? Because that's what these high rises are going to do to our area. Also, if you're so concerned about housing people, build nicer, bigger homes for people to enjoy, not these tiny 3/4 room flats that only serve to make you lot richer. If this goes through, it only proves how corrupt the council here is.

Comment: My previous comments still stand. Having viewed the latest illustrations of the proposed development I am even more convinced of the need for this gross, overdeveloped, carbuncle of a scheme to be refused. I don't know what the idea of a "helicopter view" of this nightmare was, but it did more than anything to show the gross bulk of what is planned in the surrounding buildings of 2 and 3 stories. It is horrendous.

There is one little access road which opens on to the Edgware Rd. already overly and heavily congested and the traffic from 1100 dwellings will bring everything to a standstill. Where are the local amenities, such as Doctors surgeries featured in this plan?

This is the thin end of the wedge as the Jewsons site will follow. Such monoliths on this site would block out light and be a gross eyesore to terrace residents.

I am not against tall residential blocks but they need to be appropriately located and these are not. If the blocks were half the height they would perhaps be more acceptable, but not from the developers point of view which is of course to make as much money as possible. Let's face it, they won't have to live in the shadows of these towers.

I hope the planning department shows some sense and refuses this development in its present form.

Having looked at the CGIs in the new Urban Design Study. These clearly illustrate my concern that the scheme is too big, too tall, too dense, totally out of keeping with the local area, dwarfs everything in sight. I live in Railway Terraces' Conservation Area - the development will be intrusive in parts of the terraces, especially from Kara Way, the playground, the allotments, Campion and Needham Terraces. As a community - what affects one house, one allotment or the playground affects us all. I look forward to these points being considered.

The scale and design of the proposal is overbearing to not only the adjacent homes but those in the neighbourhood and will reduce amenities to current neighbours, not increase them.

It is totally out of character for the area and will not be an attractive or welcome landmark.

The current local infrastructure and facilities, ie. transport, education, medical, open spaces, parking, etc. cannot sustain an increase of this magnitude and the proposal does not include sufficient proposals to reduce these additional pressures on the neighbourhood.

The huge increase of flats and commercial space will lead to unbearable congestion, pedestrian, cycle and vehicle and also increased air and noise pollution in the already congested area around Cricklewood Lane and Cricklewood Broadway.

Comment: Cricklewood has a village feel with small shops and businesses and a mixture of older houses and some more modern low rise buildings. It is on a human scale. These blocks will be out of keeping with the character of the area and will dwarf surrounding buildings. They will be start of a long and painful deterioration of the area into a soulless concrete jungle.

We must learn from the mistakes of the mid 20th century. We often hear about how communities suffer because of a poorly planned urban environment.

We see the demolition of 1960s high rise buildings to improve urban life and make way for less alien environments . (e.g. Red Rose Flats, Glasgow)

While not perfect, Cricklewood is already such an environment. and development should enhance its present character rather than impose on it a built environment that elsewhere has proved a terrible mistake. High rise buildings in Cricklewood are a retrograde step and Barnet council will be held responsible for having not heeded past mistakes.

During construction disruption in an already congested area will be a nightmare. Cricklewood will suffer pollution, noise and bad roads for years.

And afterwards Cricklewood will be blighted by incongruous and characterless high rise buildings that in no time will become shabby and run down while transport and other services will be stretched even further by the increase in population. There will be more congestion, noise and pollution. I have lived in Cricklewood for over 40 years and most people in my street are long term residents. We have made Cricklewood the pleasant place it is today. We should not have an impactful development such as this imposed on us by wealthy investors whose motive is profit and who neither know nor care about Cricklewood. They will not be living with the consequences of this development. By all means improve Cricklewood but not like this.

The scale is out of all proportion to the surrounding built environment and will damage the amenity of the area with its intrusive height and overburden an already congested area and associated services with a very large number of new residents.

The current local infrastructure and facilities, ie. transport, education, medical, open spaces, parking, etc. cannot sustain an increase of this magnitude and the proposal does not include sufficient proposals to reduce these additional pressures on the neighbourhood.

The developer has no regard for local character and seems only interested in cramming in as many flats as possible for a given space.

Barnet and Brent should not be considering such over-development in their areas, and I also value having shops such as B&Q, that I use often as there are no similar shops in the immediate area.

Slums of the future!

Comment: My previous objections to the plans remain. All the points that I raised still stand and must be considered. I have looked at the CGIs in the new Urban Design Study. These clearly illustrate that I have every right to be very concerned. They show that the scheme is too big, too tall, too dense, totally out of keeping with the local area, dwarfs everything in sight and that local people are absolutely right to object.

I live in the Railway Terraces' Conservation Area - the development will be intrusive in parts of the terraces, especially from Kara Way, the playground, the allotments, Campion and Needham Terraces.

As a community we are all effected if one of our neighbours suffers as a consequence of the development

They would know that there is no infrastructure here for thousands more people and will have a negative effect on those living here who struggle to get appointments for doctors, hospitals, dentists etc.

Is this really progress as it feels like you are building on every bit of space you can find without care for residents and what ever community is left - shameful!

Comment: I have looked at the design plans and still feel this represents overdevelopment of Cricklewood, an area that is already affected by large developments at Brent Cross. The A5/Cricklewood Lane area is already congested and suffers from poor air quality, and trains from Cricklewood are (in normal times) already very crowded. Public services in the area are close to capacity - and the walk in centre has already been lost.

The proposed towers are ugly and will dominate the area.

In all this is too much for an area that will already struggle to integrate the new developments at Brent Cross.

Comment: These towers are grotesque. Totally out of keeping with the Cricklewood area. Despite all the waffle wording written by the Developer's PR team, these towers do not exemplify the heritage of the area which are based on low rise railway sidings and factory buildings. This site should be considered creatively using low rise housing, maisonettes and shops. An exemplar is the Norwich RIBA Stirling Prize winner in 2019. The new development should be an extension of the Railway Cottages nearby. No tall towers which are against Barnet's policy document.

Comment: In many ways this is an admirable plan. The creation of new public space in the heart of Cricklewood would be excellent. The problem with it is

- a). The height of the blocks. The scale is excessive for the local area and I don't believe will provide a good experience either for those living in them or for the local community. I'm speaking from experience of seeing the blocks in Dudden Hill lane go up close to my own house and finding the whole area change its character. We are now all overlooked and a pleasant outlook has become an oppressive one. This is with blocks less than half the height that is proposed here.
- b) There doesn't seem to be any thinking through of how to avoid congestion on the roads around the site, which is already terrible. How will an influx of several thousand people impact on local busses, trains, roads? Will Cricklewood station be re-developed to cope with the influx? Will the road under the tunnel be widened? Will there be new medical facilities, GP's etc, and new schools? or will the current overcrowding of all these resources just become totally untenable?

Especially traffic concerns, the local roads cannot cope with the current level, let alone the additional logistical road planning will be extremely difficult. Also I don't think there is adequate affordable housing provision and associated parking for the affordable housing tenants. Comment: The proposed area of the development is subject to extreme traffic jams daily, often many large haulage trucks at all times of the day, but especially early morning when I am trying to get a bus to work and evenings when returning home, with the attendant air pollution, traffic jams and noise nuisance this brings.

High rise blocks in any area which is highly, if not overpopulated, where there are few local amenities, such as supermarkets, etc. (and it's not clear if there will be any affordable homes included) will simply congest the area further causing greater social problems and crime than we already experience. This kind of development in an area that is already overcrowded will undoubtedly bring an impoverished area down further. If the Covid pandemic has taught us anything, it's that poor areas that are densely populated suffer most. We already have insufficient GP practices, medical centers, NHS dentists etc. as it is, as the area is unable to attract good GP's, medical professionals long term, consequently GP practices are staffed by endless locums, resulting in poor continuity of care and long waiting times for appointments, consequently a greater strain will be put on our already stretched primary care resources.

Offices are emptying in London, the future is out of town hubs with parking etc. There is also talk of a property price crash after the present buying support ends soon. These will be a white elephant as well as being unpleasant and oppressive to look at. Hang onto the land, it will be useful when we see how life looks after Covid.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I am objecting to this planning application mainly in relation to the density of plans and the likely considerable further congestion which will result from the design. One of the buildings is proposed to reach up to 25 storeys in height which would be out of character with all existing features and would dominate the area in a visually detrimental way. Cricklewood is already subject to frequent traffic congestion and delays. In my view, the numbers of properties proposed would lead to unacceptable levels of traffic density and potentially dangerous levels of air pollution.

The plans at present indicate public facilities available in the area, such as the local schools and medical practices but do not seem to carry any analysis of how these facilities would be impacted given the significant increase in population these plans would create.

Looking at planning applications in the pipeline or already built which have been praised and either shortlisted or already in receipt of awards it seems that a defining feature is the presence of a carefully thought through Local Plan and an emphasis on community cohesion. Access to public space and open air is also important. As it stands, this application will fail to meet those standards. I strongly urged that it be reconsidered in light of the environmental damage it is likely to engender and that new proposals are created which place community, high environmental standards, landscaping and the improvement of current air quality at the heart of their design.

Comment: We object to the construction of these towers in what is already a local bottleneck plagued by congestion, noise and pollution. The addition of another 1100 residential units in tower blocks will lead to additional pollution and excessive congestion where there is already restricted access due to the railway. This will cause additional strain on local residents and those who seek to move around the area for work or to schools. Not only that, but the addition of another 3,000 or 4,000 individuals in an area already blighted by lack of infrastructure, health care and educational opportunities will further erode the standard of living for local residents.

The idea that this sudden imposition of a large numbers flats on an area which is already struggling, without any intervention to improve existing resources or facilities is absurd. We call on the number of residential units to be cut to a manageable number, and that the imposing height of the proposed blocks also be reduced to prevent the ghettoization of this part of Cricklewood.

The landscape and skyline will be blighted. There is no capacity for the impending traffic, no schools, or GP practices to facilitate the population to be housed. There is no social housing.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The proposed scheme is entirely out of scale for the site; it will dwarf and dominate the surrounding area. High rises of 25 floors are wholly inappropriate for a suburban London location. The applicant will be well aware of the problems which such a development will cause and may well be taking the tack of applying for 25 floors and then conceding by accepting say 17 floors. But the fundamental issue is that the starting point should not be anything like that level of intensity for the site. Whilst it will be commercially less attractive for the applicant to come back to the council with a less ambitious plan, say of a development of 6-8 floors that is what they should be asked to do. The CGI images acknowledge the over dominance. The reality is that 1100 residential high rise apartments does little to address the need for family housing of a low rise nature. Rather it will put huge pressure on already overstretched services such as education and health, it is simply the wrong type of development. The problems have been more extensively and more elegantly detailed by others so I will not repeat them.

One further point; if L B Barnet do reject the application and if it is then addressed by the Planning Inspectorate can residents have a firm assurance that LBB will stand by their decision and resist any appeal on behalf of the multitude of residents who oppose the scheme.

Comment: This area is already congested - we also have Brent Cross South development, then on top we have this. Roads are already congested - and forget any idea that people walk, cycle (utopia) People will have cars and drive. This part of Barnet has always been neglected - we pay the same council tax - but get very little for it compared to the nice areas of Barnet.

The scale of the development is unacceptable - 25 storey buildings. Shame on you Barnet for even allowing this development to be brought back to the table.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I objected to this application regarding this development for last time, and can't really see much has changed since then.

The development would be an eyesore, is far too high and big and would decimate the current landscape and general ambience of the centre of Cricklewood and surrounding area.

The addition of 1100 residential units in one hit would put massive pressure on public services including doctor's surgeries, dentists, shops, and public transport in the area.

The crossroads at Cricklewood Broadway, Cricklewood Lane & Chichele Road is already chaotic for traffic, and this development would make the problem a lot worse.

Comment:As has been repeatedly stated in other comments this development is completely unsuitable for the site. Key points which render this development unacceptable are as follows;

1. The architecture in Cricklewood is low rise domestic housing which would be dwarfed and dominated by a 25 story building.
2. The local transport, education and health services do not have the available capacity to support the increase in the local population.
3. The already high levels of traffic congestion at the junction of the A5 and Cricklewood Lane would be negatively impacted.
4. There are already issues with insufficient parking in the area which would be exacerbated by the development.

It should be made clear to prospective developers that any proposal which includes buildings of more than four stories and which fail to make provision for improvements in local education, health and transport services will be summarily rejected.

Comment: LBB should venture to Eastman Village, a Barratt Homes initiative in Harrow Weald, where one of my sons has recently purchased a property in what is a visually aesthetic, low-rise development favourable for community housing, travel, pollution, green spaces etc, etc.

As a local resident of over 30 years (and a daily visitor to the big Co-op store on Cricklewood Lane), one example of evidence of LBB's hands-off approach to this South-Eastern backwater of its borough adjoining Brent and Camden borders are the very same 'Christmas lights' that for 30 years and more have adorned the junction of Cricklewood Lane and The Broadway, year after year after year being further dilapidated, their bulbs blown, hanging further and further off the lamp posts in their forlorn monotony, in apology for that festive time of year.

Nowhere in the reams and reams of papers, reports, assessments, indicators and analyses of transport and trips is there any statement and rationale as to why such tall blocks have to be built, if only to be able to fit in up to 1,100 new residents, and presumably of maximum return to the developers and some 'in lieu' backhanders to LBB officers and councillors.

Yes, there'll be differences about adequacy of lighting, privacy, how many pedestrians will walk under the railway bridge ('2 a minute at the busiest hour'?!). I do take issue with 'people will feel (more) safe and relaxed' .. how on earth do you come to this judgment validly? You write in fantasy about a Car Club space being open to the public as well as new residents. Really? How is this going to be possible when you state elsewhere that car parking will be for only 10% of the new dwelling! Your reports are littered with other errors too many to mention in the space here but, photograph 5 - providing no clear route for cyclist at tube station - there isn't a tube station, and the photo is of Hampstead; and 6.6 that there is 'proximity of retail stores with large car parks'. Where are these please?

Comment: I want to object to this project on the basis of loss of light, increased traffic and pollution in an area and spot of Cricklewood which is already polluted by constant building works, cars, busses and daily traffic jams. There is a lack of infrastructure in the area with regards to primary schools, secondary school, gp's and dentists if the area is flooded by a huge amount of new residents. What this spot in Cricklewood needs is green and recreational space with access of light and fresh air for the community, not a huge influx of residents in 26 story high blocks of flats where green spaces and resident won't get much light and fresh air. A more modest and lower build development could improve the area but, the sheer size and quantity of the development on a relatively small spot will not regenerate this area.

The high-rise tower blocks will loom over our low-lying area, creating an out of place eyesore and shadow over our community. If allowed, this development will also create a precedence of high-rise buildings in this area, which we do not want!

I am most concerned about it's effect on the existing infrastructure. Cricklewood already has new developments in the works and the infrastructure will not be able to cope with this addition. The surrounding area will struggle to keep up with demands on services such as schools, GP's and transport and it will add to the already awful traffic which comes to a standstill often. This land could be used in a far more beneficial way for the community.

They are totally out of character for the area!

We need good quality low cost housing! But this proposal is not it.

The developer has sat on chunks of property for years, allowing the buildings they own to crumble, holding us in limbo, until they proposed this scheme. Which has already had a negative impact on residents.

This volume of people arriving and living here will break all the service we have! And I see no plans to support or enlarge any of our basic provisions.

I know this will be pushed through. And I cannot object enough!

Many of the photo shots in the study appear to have been taken at waist level and do not seem to accurately reflect what an adult will see from the view points if this project is given planning permission in its current form.

The planned blocks are far too high and will have a large negative impact on the area. It will look as if a mini dockland has been planted in Cricklewood.

I completely understand the need for new housing. However, such a high and dense development is trying to shoe horn many new residents into an already crowded area. It should be remembered that the majority of houses in the area have already been divided into flats.

Cricklewood is already overcrowded. This huge development will just place further stress and congestion onto roads and school that are already creaking under the strain.

Comment: Whilst I understand the need for more housing , and accommodation for families and young people , I simply can't understand the reasoning behind a development that contains a 25 storey building . You only have to look a little way down the Edgware Road to see a new development , that provides a lot of accommodation, has a lower sky line ,is more in keeping with the surrounding existing residential and commercial properties. This 25 storey building dwarfs everything in the surrounding area . Could it be that 'Cricklewood' doesn't deserve a decent project ,with decent design in the eyes of Barnet council ? Just put as many people on top of each other to meet the quota of "housing" needs . Never mind the people living in yet another high rise block with all the fire risks , (remember Grenfell) elevator breakdowns and all that goes with these outdated schemes.

Please reconsider the height of these blocks and let's have a Cricklewood regeneration we all can be proud of .

Yours sincerely Belinda Turner

Comment:

I object to this proposal because it would be extremely detrimental to the local area in many ways .

The scale of the development is far too large and would result in numerous different problems .The immediate area is a bottleneck already and is often extremely congested with traffic and pedestrians , it is one of the main routes into London and has a railway line and some narrow pavements . This development would generate much more traffic and would make it unpleasant and unsafe. Many hundreds of schoolchildren from the nearby large secondary school use Cricklewood every day for its many transport links as do lots of other families from local primary schools.

In addition the increased number of new residents would mean amenities such as health and social care and schools which are already under pressure would not cope with the influx of so many people.

Another objection is the height of the tall blocks . They are completely out of keeping with the surrounding buildings and would be an eyesore that overshadows the area and could be seen for many miles. For people living nearby or the many that pass through Cricklewood the blocks would be domineering and oppressive. 25 storeys on the brow of a hill is far too high in an area which consists of mainly 2/3 storey residential streets, recent new housing developments in the area are often more like 5 storeys.

The development would be detrimental to the environment - it is far too dense and does not include enough open green space with trees either for the new residents or for local people to enjoy. Cricklewood is already a very deprived area with no major public park and with extremely limited open space .

Although the area could do with some improvement and regeneration this proposal provides no benefit to the community, quite the reverse.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I write to object to the planning application for the construction of commercial buildings of up to 25 storeys high with car parking. I disagree to this construction as it would dominate the skyline of the area and, allowing the flats with access to cars, would bring overcrowding of traffic onto Cricklewood Lane and the Broadway which originally was constructed for trams and pedestrianised. If the buildings were in keeping with the surrounding houses and restricting the use of cars this would be more acceptable. However, the current ThamesLink train service is overloaded with passengers and in rush hour it is unable to board the trains.

Having more cycle parking would be acceptable.

Comment: Whilst I do not necessarily disagree with the development as a whole, the one major thing I object to is the proposed 25 storey building. This is a ridiculous number of floors, and would not only be a total eyesore for the whole area, it would also be extremely prominent and not in keeping with the skyline of the surrounding area. It would cast a huge shadow over the local area and would be a real shame. I believe something more around 12 storeys would be much more appropriate.

We've already got the Brent Cross Town coming and so much over-development. Where are the schools, GP surgeries, extra hospitals? You seem determined to destroy the same Cricklewood that you've been steadily improving.

An example is the building that was built close to virgin active, which is in line with the surroundings.

Beyond the visual damage to the centre of the neighbourhood, the population density that the height of the towers included in the project imply would also put excessive pressure to the area services, including schools, GP surgeries and other support community services.

I am willing to consider a project that substantially reduce the height of the towers and aims to blend with the surroundings of the neighbourhood, mostly made of lower height buildings and private residences.

I'm am in favour of new housing but do not see how the height of this design and density can be justified. reading the new traffic impact report I can not believe that it will only add 2-3 passages to the bus route. There is no tube station at Cricklewood with kilburn jubilee line as the nearest station so surely there will be a huge rise in passages at rush hour in both directions on the 16, 332, 32 bus route.

yes, there is Cricklewood thameslink nearby but only a handful of thameslink trains are stopping trains with most passing straight though as fast trains so this would not be a major point for new passengers from this development to start their trip into town.

I live in Colindale where thousands of flats have been built with another 1300 to come on the Sainsbury's site alone. The whole borough is resembling New York without the transport, parking, outdoor space, doctors and school infrastructure for the amount of residents.

A lot of the flats are substandard and too close to each other with people virtually able to look into their neighbours homes.

PLEASE START USING COMMON SENSE

Walk around West Hendon and Colindale to see the effects of this mad building regime!!!

3. Infrastructure. Cycling routes are non existent. The lack of parking will mean a battle between cyclists and pedestrians.

The development will dominate - indeed, obliterate - the skyline for residents in all surrounding streets. The huge additional pressure from the 1000+ occupants, on local facilities and amenities, as well as on road and rail travel, will be a blight on Cricklewood, not a blessing as the developers seem to wish to paint it!

Comment: This is an absurdly out of scale development of poor architectural value. It will dominate the area and be seen over the top of existing houses from all sides. In particular, the height of the tallest block will cast shadows and be genuinely intimidating. It's simply not acceptable to impose such a housing scheme on a generally low level neighbourhood. Cramming in thousands of people in an area that doesn't have the services and infrastructure to support them is a dereliction of planning duty and would never be condoned in other areas of Barnet. New housing is important but housing schemes shouldn't reduce the quality of life for existing residence and devalue an entire area. It's so obviously awful it's hard to believe that it's a serious application.

Comment: This over-development is outrageous. It will badly affect the lives of residents in a huge surrounding area. It is far too high, far too many homes, and will place great demands on transport, education and health services. The flats on Mill Lane and West End Square on West end Lane at 12 storeys are a blot on the landscape, this development is far higher and more dense. It makes no sense except for greedy developers. Please! Build houses preferably, but if flats then no higher than 8 storeys.

I strongly object to this development, and suggest the developers go back to the drawing board and come up with a far more reasonable proposition.

Comment: While I'm supportive of replacing the existing retail park with smart, modern housing, the current proposal for blocks of flats is far too tall. It will change the character of an area with low rise housing. The plans don't allow for sufficient parking for the number of new residents, leading to further congestion in a congested area and pressure on already stretched local amenities. Not to mention a potential right to light issue for those living nearby.

This is a totally inappropriate development. The proposed tower block will be of excessive height and the additional strain this development will put on the infrastructure of the area is unacceptable. It will have a seriously-detrimental effect on the character of the neighbourhood and will compromise its enjoyment by the existing, many very long-term residents of the area.

The unsightly tower blocks will be visible for miles around and will severely diminish our enjoyment of the area we have lived in for the past 34 years. Whatever happened to the premise that tower blocks are an unhealthy way of living and should be phased out?

If this project were to be allowed to go ahead, the area will suffer from considerable additional strain on its infrastructure, particularly in terms of traffic congestion and parking.

I strongly object to the proposals.

Comment: This development is out of keeping with the Cricklewood area. It is overwhelmingly high density in an area that is low rise and well established. It is overbearing from many vantage points and nothing in the Cricklewood area is this tall or dense. There is a lack of social housing which would be the only reason to favour a development such as this. The plans are vague and generic and the photographs and drawings may not even represent what will be built. By their own admission the developers transport assessment had major errors and frankly their update is unrealistic and would not reflect the reality for current residents and transport users. How the council could possibly consider such an ill thought out development in an area that is completely different to the proposals is beyond comprehension. And as a resident of Brent we will have this development imposed on our town centre at the behest of another council and their priorities. I sincerely hope that constructive comments from the people that actually live in Cricklewood are taken notice of. We are not opposed to regeneration or redevelopment but it needs to be in keeping with the wishes of local residents and the existing community and its infrastructure and not something that is completely out of character, overbearing and overwhelming and which would not provide housing for people who live in the area.

Cricklewood is a very congested area and the streets are quite crowded and it is very built up and the traffic is horrendous. It affects our lives and parking is very restricted. There isn't any green area and if this building site is granted we would be overwhelmed by these tall buildings and every one living on top of each other. The town centre has tried to create a neighbouring hub and all that work will be a waste. Please rethink the planning application.

Comment: There is a need for sympathetic and careful redevelopment of the area but this is not it! The proposed development is simply far too big and will have a serious negative impact on local infrastructure which is already struggling to cope with the current local population. I have lived here for >25 years and the increase in congestion and strain on local services over this time has been very significant and very real. The proposed development would result in further major increases and appears to offer very little to enrich the local neighbourhood. I would personally welcome a much smaller and more sympathetic redevelopment with better use of the space for the community (green / open / walkways / cycle infrastructure) and with a low-rise profile that is in keeping with the surrounding architecture.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I want to object to the new plans for the following reasons.

Firstly, the buildings are absolutely huge and so incongruous - just far too high, huge skyscrapers in the area will look ridiculous and ruin the views for so many residents (I live on Chichele Road). Why can't the buildings be low rise - so much more pleasant for residents (living there) and residents in Cricklewood?

Secondly, the buildings are packed so closely together - with very little space around them, no thought that residents living in these flats might like / need some green space around them.

Thirdly, why won't the development provide any social housing - this is just appalling - so many people need housing. Most of these flats will be bought by investors and then rented out. Why isn't Barnet insisting on providing social housing.

Finally, the amount of new residents will cause even more congestion in the area (whilst car spaces will be limited), the amount of delivery vans (Ocado, DHL etc) will be huge and the roads are already a nightmare, plus the pollution will be just awful.

As always, the developers are just thinking about the profits - why can't they build low rise flats

(there's lots of space to provide many homes), which will be much more in keeping with area. It will be more pleasant for the new residents and there should be lots of delivery bays too. Also, please insist on SOCIAL HOUSING

Cricklewood is already crowded and the traffic is already pretty bad, this plan will increase people and traffic to an unacceptable level. Comment: I live in Campion Terrace right next to the B&Q Car Park. These plans show a massive over-development of the site. Please - halve the height. Create more open space. Radically reduce the number of units. Looking at the plans, and viewing the visual representations, reveals that the developers have taken none of the objections we the local residents submitted last year. This development is just one of many. Take a birds eye view and see others in the immediate area - the Matalan site and Hassop Road, maybe the old Galtymore site as well. We live between all these planned developments. If this plan goes ahead it will destabilise the area completely. Of course, urban areas must evolve and change, but this proposal is overwhelming. The pandemic has reduced the appetite for high-density units in areas with no green spaces. Public transport is already choked, and local GPs overwhelmed with too many residents to service. Yes, build, but something more suitable, 8 storey blocks, balconies, space, and parking, because whatever you think it will be needed for all manner of reasons other than residents vehicles. Please, please listen and consider the human beings living here as well as the ones who might live in these proposed blocks and who will require a certain quality of living and breathing. Thank you.

Comment: I have previously objected to the original planning application for the B & Q Broadway Retail Park and the addition documentation to the proposal in no way changes my views or objections to this monstrous application.

No consideration has been given to the surrounding areas of low level buildings when proposing 15 - 25 storey buildings on an elevated height level plot. Barnet has already approved a groundbreaking 9 storey building for the CoOp site and this development should not exceed this height. Barnet should be protecting our neighbourhood and those who will be overshadowed and deprived of light by this proposal.

My family live in The Terraces Conservation Area and this proposal will adversely affect us and many other neighbouring streets and their residents. Views will be impeded and blighted for miles around. Brent Council's approval for the development of the Matalan site is for a 7 storey building maximum height (reduced from 9). They clearly considered the views of local residents and Barnet should do the same.

1100 residential units will add thousands of people to an already groaning infrastructure in this part of Cricklewood.

I strongly object.

Comment: I cannot understand how this plan can be seriously under consideration. At the present moment the area is heavily congested with traffic making its way to/from the M1 and North Circular roads. Can you imagine the drastic situation whereby these intended 25 storey buildings housing 1100 flats are built? How will the local infrastructure going to cope with the high volume of people that will be living here? The buses and trains are heavily overcrowded as it is at present. Add all the people that are living now further down the road past the bus garage that have just been built, where there are about 4/5 tall buildings here, with more area flattened ready to build more high rise buildings!

What this area needs most is an area of good shops, leisure centers and infrastructures for people to enjoy now. Overcrowding will mean the area will become a ghetto -places for people to live but not enjoy. Even a large park area with local shops and coffee bars and eateries would be so much welcome!

Furthermore the Cricklewood Lane/ Lichfield Road junction is one of the most notorious traffic bottleneck in this part of North London and with this dramatic increase in local residents traffic will grind to a halt. Comment: Since I last wrote about the application a number of additional documents have been submitted - but these do not change significantly the application. As such, I object to the application on the following basis:

- The heights of the buildings proposed: These should be limited to the height of the surrounding buildings - the proposed heights are just silly and should not even be a basis for negotiations
- Traffic: The proposed amount of flats will significantly increase traffic on the main routes and needs investment to offset this. I believe that using some of the land to build an additional through route across the Edgware Road to Claremont Road would resolve this issue and also reduce the overall traffic flow through Chichele Road to Cricklewood Road

With some sensible thinking on the above and in depth reviews of the building density, amount of commercial shops, level of council housing and parking spaces, a reasonable overall application could be made in the future.

Too tall, too densely populated and completely out of place. Compounded with no social housing and very little green space, it will put immense stress on the local facilities.

Comment: The greed of the few, ruining the lives of the many.

For the record, I still object to this application in the strongest possible terms.

Isn't it interesting that the vast majority of those supporting this application have postcodes nowhere near Cricklewood? Susan Dorrell, for instance, supports the application twice from South Tottenham - presumably using two different email addresses. A desperate PR push by the developers perhaps?

Please be very clear on this: of the people who would have to live near this monstrosity, over 99% object to it.

Residents of the towers would have views directly into each other's flats and very limited daylight. Every breath they took would be heavily impregnated by traffic pollution and the remnants of your neighbours' covid virus. Their "green space" would be less than the size of a handkerchief each, no room for the kids to play, nor any ability for nature to thrive in the concrete abyss stretching to the skies. A permanent cacophony of noise emanating from the thousands of people crammed in to the towers, like battery hens. Social distancing - what's that?

Cricklewood residents would have their sunlight blocked by this blockade of towers; traffic would be permanently at a standstill pumping out exhaust fumes; there would be fights to board buses and trains; overcrowded pavements of choking pedestrians; and no ability to get a GP appointment or a school place.

Pre-covid this development would be pure vandalism of a historic township and the ruination of thousands of people lives. Post-covid, with continuing and ever novel viruses becoming the norm, this development would be nothing short of corporate manslaughter on a grievous scale.

Barnet Council had better listen to the people of Cricklewood and act to stop this massive over development, or their negligence is likely to make them criminally complicit.

Comment: City designer's latest additions to the planning proposals for the development of the B & Q site are not reassuring. The articulation added to the buildings makes them more real, but does not diminish their size. The mock-ups make the scheme look even more of an inner-city high-rise streetscape that from many views appears to be a solid 8-storey wall with towers above. Views from the Lichfield Road/Westbere Road junction, and looking up Ashford Place are key here. The proposals continue to be oversized and completely alien to the rest of Cricklewood. (Barnet's own tall buildings strategy 2019 indicates buildings in Cricklewood to be between 6 and 14 storeys.) The loss of the much-valued B&Q appears to be inevitable whatever the development, but as well as having to drive away to find diy and garden stores, local residents will suffer from the disruption of construction traffic, noise and dust that will be greatly prolonged by the gross overdevelopment proposed. And in the longer term, will there be ANY benefit to Cricklewood residents? The three-dimensional view from the south west does not make the case for attractive public open space. The best patch of green shown is the existing Kara Way playground which is not grassed. Few trees or planted areas are indicated which is not encouraging. There is no progress noted on the opening of tunnel to the station but instead the report acknowledges future overcrowded pavements by proposing a barrier along the pavement under the railway bridge. Current on-going disruption to the centre of Cricklewood does not bode well for future development either. Permission was given (presumably by LB Barnet) for the closure of Cricklewood Lane to westbound traffic for a whole year for the demolition of the corner building on the Edgware Road, yet no work appeared to take place for three months. This does not encourage confidence. I object to the proposals.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Having read the new Urban Design Study, nothing in it makes me change my previous objections to the proposals. The whole application is based on the assumption that it's OK to apply city-centre heights and densities to a local town centre. Of course housing is needed and densities will need to be higher than those around, but this can be done in a way that avoids cramming on far too many flats necessitating very tall towers placed too close together.

The new images are a more realistic representation of what the buildings might look like if built, but make it easier to see just how tall they are by counting all the windows and jutting balconies. The words that accompany the images appear to have been written by a design-trained advertising copywriter desperately trying to paint out minor criticisms of the scheme. Remember that they are not doing an independent critique of the proposals on behalf of the Council or the public, but employed by the developer to mitigate some adverse comments in the application documents. Remember also that an Outline Approval would not tie the developers to any particular detail design shown so far, merely to the heights and massing.

Like so many other people, I find these buildings far too tall, far too dense and generally overpowering to the buildings and streets around them. They would fortunately be invisible from much of the Broadway, but will dominate Cricklewood Lane on both sides of the railway and from Ashford Road, Depot Approach and Kara Way. I feel really sorry for the residents of the small roads close by the site, but all Cricklewood residents will be affected in their daily lives.

I find the notion of a landmark building for Cricklewood incomprehensible and meaningless, and it pulls attention away from the historic centre of the Broadway and the Crown. The whole development is attention-seeking and disrespectful to Cricklewood and its residents, from Camden and Brent as well as Barnet. Please reject this proposal.

No allowance has been made for social housing and this should disqualify it outright. But the major objection must be to the scale and height of the development. It is fundamentally, and adversely, affecting the established character of the local area, and would add a population density that is unacceptable and unsustainable.

Comment: This is an already overcrowded, heavily polluted area (traffic fumes, Donaghues builders yard) with very little green space or trees to counteract the pollution. Traffic in the area is heavily congested already and this will make it worse. 1100 residential units need proper infrastructure and associated services as those in the area already stretched to breaking point. As head of St Agnes School (local) I am concerned it will greatly affect our catchment area as it will reduce significantly possibly disadvantaging other catholic families.

In days when mental health is so important, I do not think housing people/families in blocks is promoting positive mental health.

Comment: I strongly object to the building of these new high rise apartment blocks. Having been a resident of Cricklewood for the last 7 years and before that spending most of my adult life in Brent and Camden I don't see the merit of these blocks and also think their design is about as generic and unimaginative as I've seen. Cricklewood has a specific architectural style which is slowly being destroyed by these new buildings that loom over the neighbourhood. This area is a fantastically culturally rich area but its local amenities are already stretched due to the building of many new apartments further up the A5. I do not see how these apartments will help with that issue. I will strongly oppose these plans in any form that doesn't take the area into consideration. I feel it arrogant and greedy on the part of the developers. I would be happy to speak with them on how this project could benefit everyone involved and enter into an exchange of ideas but in its current form it clearly doesn't work for this area.

Moreover, what additional transport infrastructure is planned to give better public transport facilities? The Thameslink services were already rammed in rush hour (pre-Covid) and an additional hundreds of people trying to squash on to these trains is not safe. Perhaps the plan is to have more trains stopping at Cricklewood per hour? The new station will not benefit those living on the Cricklewood Thameslink side of the development.

Comment:1. Who exactly is this Development for? Considering Grenfell, why would anyone want to live in a tower block ever again? Overlooking a railway line...

2. As it stands, road traffic congestion/pollution is appalling. The main rail link is from Cricklewood station. The current transport options are full to capacity - try getting a place on a peak hour train to Central London. Will the City of London post-pandemic still be the main work destination? Who are these flats for? Not 'affordable' it seems...

3. The towers are way TOO TALL. The development way TOO DENSE. 6-8 storeys would be a reasonable limit. Tower blocks will neither compliment nor enhance the area. They are overbearing and will cast shadow over large swathes of existing residential areas. The afternoon shadow at the end of March is horrendous for residences east of the railway line.

4. Where is the public infrastructure IN BARNET to support this influx of population? Or will they piggy-back on Brent and Camden?

I don't think anyone is totally against developing the B&Q retail park into shops, residences and outdoor parks and gardens. It is just the proposal is way too dense, and overbearing with massively bad impact on amenity. The community has been working very hard to make Cricklewood a nice place to live, then potentially, only to have it engulfed by totally insensitive over-development.

Comment: I wish to object to this application in the strongest terms. The proposal is a horrendous scheme. The scale is overwhelming both in terms of height and size of the proposal and will devastate the area. Do not be fooled by the ridiculous PR language used by the developers- there are no advantages of the proposed buildings except to the pockets of the developers.

Development in Cricklewood already has included developments on Edgware Rd (which is substantial) , Approval for Matalan development (also extremely large), and the site opposite Beacon Bingo- Not to mention the additional developments planned for Brent Cross Town. Thus there is NO capacity for more developments in this already crowded area. . This simply turns Cricklewood into a construction site for years and years increasing noise and air pollution exponentially. Furthermore, there is not the infrastructure to support the numbers of people that this development would bring.

Barnet council have a duty to represent the needs of the communities that they serve, and this is not going to do that. We need to be heard!!

Comment: I strongly object to this proposal. I have closely considered the CGIs in the new Urban Design Study, which clearly show that local residents and the community have every right to be extremely concerned. They show that the scheme is too big, too tall, too dense, is out of keeping with the local area and completely dwarfs all the surrounding housing.

The development will be intrusive to nearly all parts of the Railway Terraces Conservation area where I live, especially from Champion Terrace and the Kara Way playground, where it will almost completely block the skyline. It will also be visible from much of Needham Terrace and the allotments. We feel like we will be literally hemmed in.

All my previous objections to the proposals remain and all the points I raised still stand and must be considered.

Comment: I wish to object strongly again to this appalling and opportunistic application. Developers are identifying Cricklewood as a soft target, a 'nobody's child' on an 'out-of-sight, out-of-mind' three-way borough boundary, with a perceived lack of political clout. How else to account for this madness? Any right-thinking person would take one look at the proposal(s) and question whether the alarming disconnect in scale was some kind of sick joke.

The shocking central concept appears to be the introduction of a concentration of densely-packed high-rise towers onto an elevated site in an area where 2 to 3-storey dwellings and/or retail premises currently predominate, with the exception of 9-storey buildings built or planned nearby, which were themselves only recently foisted upon the local populace in a similar manner. For context, the Grenfell tower was one storey lower than proposed here, offering the kind of cheek-by-jowl but paradoxically isolating living one would hope we were trying to move away from, especially in the light of the recognition, post-pandemic, of the effect of our habitual surroundings on quality of life and indeed mental health. The prospects for emergency access in this location are also the stuff of nightmares, and if the aggressively overbearing scale were not enough of an issue in itself, the anticipated view from around the site is starkly reminiscent of Communist Eastern Bloc architecture or the setting for a dystopian novel. Some 'landmark'!

The lie to the developer's disingenuous reference to the ill-defined supposed 'benefit' which will accrue from it is given by the countless objections from the local community, who face being forced to live their lives beneath the looming presence and aggressive shadow of this grotesque behemoth, struggling to access the already-stretched education, health and transport facilities in the face of a clearly unsustainable influx of additional residents.

Comment:Continued. In addition to loss of daylight and privacy, there will be a further increase in the already-significant levels of congestion and associated pollution. Even if incomers are prevented by limited parking facilities from owning vehicles themselves, there will still be the additional traffic of deliveries, workmen, taxis etc, in a location already prone to becoming choked at busy times, and along which our younger residents must walk daily on their way to school, nursery etc. The other idea that this tall building could be useful as a wayfinding landmark would be laughable even were we not living in an age where even children carry smartphones with navigational apps.

Aside from the general blight cast by this monstrosity on its wider surroundings, the irresponsible granting of this application would be a retrograde step, representing the Council's sanctioning of developer greed trampling roughshod over the interests and quality of life of a thriving local suburban community, which is growing increasingly tired of having to reiterate its wholesale rejection of the attempt to plant a Manhattan-style mini-city within its midst. A small reduction in storeys masquerading as a 'victory' for local people (likely an outcome eagerly anticipated by the applicants) should not be an option. Instead, a wholesale re-think is required. Development of this site could indeed be a welcome boost for the area, but only if done sympathetically, which would entail treating the recent 9-storey precedents as the absolute ceiling they ought to be, rather than a target to be attained and surpassed with each further development. Housing development aplenty is already taking place in the wider local area, not least in the massive Brent Cross development, with urban demand more questionable post-lockdown(s). To us, Cricklewood is so much more than a convenient dumping ground for solving the housing targets of its borough(s) without disturbing more influential residents. We deserve better.

Comment: I object to the massive scale of the towers, not to a housing development per se, which I believe the area could benefit from, especially if done well and to a high standard with creating useful and beautiful outside areas for the public to be used, like playgrounds, gardens etc.

As currently the outside space is ugly.

Obviously, the loss of B&Q and the other shops are a pity as I use them frequently.

But I agree we need more affordable and GOOD housing with good design that is sustainable, ie still going to stand the test of time in 40 years.

I doubt this development is fulfilling this criteria. I hope it's not so cheap and cheerful thing.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I commented previously on this application, objecting to the disproportionate scale of the buildings and the introduction of so many new residents with insufficient local facilities or transport provision.

The addition of the 'Urban Design Study' confirms all of my previous objections. The drawings and photos indicate that the buildings will be casting huge shadows over many neighbouring gardens on sunny days, and blocking out large amounts of sky - and therefore light - from many more people's windows. The photos of skylines all seem to have been taken from a fair distance away. What none of them show is the projected view from nearby properties, with the sky practically obliterated.

For example, none of the photos were taken from the immediate Northeast (shady) side of the development, i.e., the lower end of Claremont Road, Dairyman Close, Handley Road and Thorverton Road, or from the properties opposite on Cricklewood Lane, even though all of these areas are surely where the overbearing nature of the new buildings will be felt the most.

Furthermore, the proposed buildings look ugly to me. There are no clean lines on the corners, with all the balconies sticking out, and I find the mix of colours unattractive. The layout and height of the blocks also suggest that they could severely increase surrounding wind speed, including on the station.

In conclusion, I am not against the development of this site in principle, only the enormous scale of this proposal in particular.

Comment: I strongly object to this planning application. This application is clearly an attempt to build as many residential units with no consideration to the local area and strain already present to the public resources within the area.

I'll write down a list of the issues as clearly the planning office and the developer does not have a understanding of the issues present in the area.

1. Traffic
2. Pollution
3. Strain on public transport (busses, trains and tubes)
4. The road system is no adequate for for 1000 residential units within the immediate area.
5. GPs
6. Library
7. Schools
8. The highstreet.

This planning application will not improve the above issues present. If anything, it will exacerbate the issues. There isn't enough green space for the 1000 residential units as well! It's bizarre that this application has gone this far. No foresight from either the council or the developer.

I will only support the application once the developer commits to improving the area and ramping up capacity to tackle the above issues. If this isn't done then I will be objecting every single application. They have to offer something substantial to the Cricklewood community considering how massive this development is.

This is an oversized development of the site - dwarfing everything around it and out of keeping with the Cricklewood area. The impact on views in residential streets all around will be blighted as these blocks will loom up over existing houses and buildings.

The development does not provide for affordable housing, and will lead to significant additional traffic in an area that is already overloaded. The A5 in particular is already a road of concern for TfL.

Adding another 1000 households is not bring anything positive to our community. I have not read anything which can justify such intense overcrowding.

The buildings will dominate and be a complete out of character eyesore in this area.

It is not a "meaningful landmark" and is devoid of all elegance or artistry in the design. What is quoted is just meaningless self justification on the part of the developers and Barnet Council should be ashamed of itself in allowing such a huge, ugly development to even be considered.

Comment: Having seen the design study for this proposed development my previous objections to these plans have only been reinforced. The buildings are completely out of character for the area, there is no social housing whatsoever and with only 35% 'affordable' housing doesn't even meet Barnet Council's own planning policy. The increase in population and of traffic in the area will overwhelm an already stretched infrastructure.

I am not opposed to new housing that is of high quality and affordable, and that enhances and improves the local amenity. This is clearly too high, too dense, may not be deliverable anyway. It would cast shadows (literal and metaphorical) over existing communities, including our conservation area.

Comment:1. This high-rise development is totally out of character with the surrounding area and will destroy its ambience and character. Much of the vicinity has protected status, such as the Mapesbury Estate, precluding developments that will adversely impact the area, yet this development, grossly overbearing and out of scale and nature, visible as an incongruous excrescence for miles around, is apparently considered acceptable. This would be an utter travesty and abrogation of planning principles.

2. While urban realm is touted in the plan views, the elevations such as in 20_3564_OUT-URBAN_DESIGN_STUDY-5154572.pdf show the true nature - brutal high-rises packed together, popular in the 1960s and reviled ever since, minimal relative spacing, precisely the sort of development now decried as incompatible with congenial living and conducive to anti-social behaviour.

3. What is needed and exemplified just down the road along Edgware Road, along Claremont Road and even in the much more self-contained Brent Cross Town development, is sympathetic low-rise, much higher ratio of public realm to habitation, and creation of habitats that people will be happy and proud to live in, not brutalist towers that blight an entire neighbourhood. In this development properties should not exceed eight storeys, far from twenty-five.

Comment: The proposed development is totally out of proportion!

The number of flats are overcrowding the area which is already suffering serious congestion. The local amenities are not able to cope with the needs of this number of residents.

It is an over development which disregards present and future generations. The sheer scale of it is ghastly and abhorrent to anyone with a sense of beauty and proportion. It building a future slum.

The housing we need is for people to be able to work from home, not travelling into the city. We need affordable housing. Children need safe green spaces to play.

The proposal looks like ghetto. It is built for no other purpose than profit, but this is very short-term thinking. Even just visually this proposal destroys the fabric of the neighbourhood.

No tower blocks for Cricklewood!

No to high rise flats on social and economic grounds and for reasons of mental health and safety.

Most buildings in the surrounding area are 2-4 storeys. I would first ask the applicant to begin by justifying each floor above the neighbourhood average. This application has clearly been submitted in its most extreme form with the expectation that a compromise will be reached. The starting position of the conversation should not be from the building height the applicant proposes, but from the neighbourhood average.

1. Scale is not in-keeping

They will dominate the skyline in that area and be completely out of sync with the buildings surrounding it. Also, once planning permission is given for high blocks on the site, then it will be harder to vote against further ones and it's not hard to see how it could mean taller blocks popping up all over the place. Cricklewood needs a development that is harmonious with its current surroundings

As we know this brings about not only the dangers of fire as we have learned from Grenfell but other demands on services, both in terms of utilities and social in our vicinity. Whilst a development of more homes, particularly of affordable housing (if there is to be any) it is also important to maintain the quality of life of the current residents who will have to endure loss of light and very tall buildings that will be an eyesore.

Of course there is never any expectation that the writers of this tosh will actually live here and have to look at the proposed monstrosities every day.

Let us be clear - the buildings are way too tall, they are completely domineering of the local landscape, out of scale and where's the social housing?

Whether you live in Barnet, Brent or Camden these structures will dominate your life for the years to come if construction is allowed.

Why is it thought there is room in Cricklewood for the residents of 1,100 flats?

If housing is to be built it should be at the same scale and height of what is around it. Not the massive structures contained in this application.

No, no no is all I can say - this application should be filed where it belongs - in the bin.

Comment: This is yet another attempt by a developer to cram as many living units into an area as possible.

The requirement is for quality not quantity.

Who on earth looked at Cricklewood and the surrounding area: comprising of a majority of 3 and 4 story properties and thought that a 25 story block would be in keeping with the area?

As I understand it the newly completed Flats on Cricklewood Lane next to Virgin Active has been set as the benchmark height for the area. This B&Q development will set a whole new precedence.

Latest architectural thinking is for lower level housing which engenders community spirit. How do you get to know anyone in a high rise? Residential high rises have not had a good history, easily falling into disrepair and in some cases becoming death traps. What considerations have been given to increasing schooling, healthcare and policing capacity. The infrastructure has to be there to support the extra people, as it stands now it is not.

Cricklewood is an already busy area, some afternoons and mornings it is nose to tail traffic. The addition of approximately 2000 more households will only add to the pressure on transport services and community amenities: delivery vans will make the roads un navigable.

The proposed development will impose itself on the whole area, it will literally cast shadows and affect the well being of pre existing residents in the area.

It is estimated that the whole development will take 10 years(expect longer): that is ten years of lorries, machinery, dust, noise and pollution in a dense mostly residential area. I would expect that this will result in stress illnesses and pollution illnesses.

As others have stated this is a wholly inappropriate development for the area. It will do nothing to enhance the area and quality of life of those who live here.

1. Lack of social housing

Please ensure that the development includes social housing. A number of people make the green in front of B&Q their daytime home, presumably because they live locally in hostels or insecure housing. Affordable housing will not tackle the housing needs of that community. Indeed, affordable housing is unaffordable to many hardworking families in the area desperate for secure permanent housing. If a development of this size and scale has the ambition to make a contribution to Cricklewood, it must open up housing options for all the community starting with those in greatest need

2. A 26 storey tower block is out of keeping with the surrounding area

The Urban Design Study makes the claim that the 26 storey tower will be demonstrably beneficially. Yet no evidence is given to support this claim, just an assertion that the tower will have 'an open and generous crown'. No consideration seems to have been given as to the visual impact on neighbourhoods or properties and gardens being overlooked and overshadowed.

3. Local amenities will be overwhelmed

A development of 1100 homes, means an influx of at least 2200 people. That is going to put unbearable strain on local amenities which are already overstretched.

4. Lack of consultation with disabled people

All the plans for the Brent Cross Regeneration Project have been scrutinised by the Consultative Access Group funded by the developers. However, the B & Q plans have not been considered by that group. Yet this plan surely raises many questions of access, with the flats, within the complex and IN the local environment. For example, I am a wheelchair user and it is already difficult to negotiate the pavement under the bridges on Cricklewood Lane. That can only get worse with extra pedestrian traffic.

Comment: This proposal is totally out of scale and works against the progress made to define Cricklewood as a place with character and community. There is inadequate provision of Green space, transport and social infrastructure for the number of residents proposed. To build in this way, with no consideration of the social and environmental footprint goes against any idea of sustainable and livable cities.

It is more of the same greedy pastiche computer generated real estate that has no architectural merit, nothing to offer existing local residents and continues a disturbing trend of high density packing of this corner of Barnet.

Cricklewood needs to be defined as a town centre distinctly in contrast to the high density sub manhattan being built at Brent Cross Town.

This proposal ignores previous objections and doubles down on the idea that developers can do as they please and that Barnet Council couldn't care less about this area.

Many people have worked hard to enhance this area over several years. This development offers nothing and neutralises any gains made by establishing a dormitory culture, based on greed not social cohesion. I see nothing of merit even attempted in this poorly considered and inappropriate attempt to continue wrecking London character and culture.

It is obscene to even consider a structure that will house numerous people within an area with limited; parking, grocery stores and public transport. It would create an over flow in human traffic and quite frankly the site and construction in its appearance is unsightly and to the point, ghastly. If we must have new housing there (I personally am a big fan of B&Q) then please make it in keeping with the area. With 1100 flats and 110 parking spaces, where are the other 990 - 2090 cars going to park? I understand West Hampstead is considered to be a great area for developers to make money, but surely the council is there to protect residents from allowing developers to destroy the local area.

Comment: The proposal for this new development is completely overwhelming both functionally and visually - it is an aesthetic sore on the landscape.

First and foremost it would create massive overcrowding and congestion in an already densely populated urban area with existing facilities already under strain. But to create a series of blocks up to 25 storeys in height will also create a serious sense of claustrophobia for all those in the neighbourhood - and I believe this also goes against the council's own policies on restricting height. There is no social housing at all and only a minor nod to affordable housing. As regeneration projects go I think this is one of the worst proposals I've ever seen.

There are so many better, more aesthetic ways to create new and affordable housing, as well as creating a better retail experience for the area. It seems to me this project will only benefit the developers.

Please do not allow such a monstrous project to go ahead in its current form.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I live in the Railway Terraces' Conservation Area and I strongly object to this development. The proposed development will overshadow the whole of the community of tiny terraced houses and will be visible every time I enter the Terraces from Kara Way when I walk around the neighbourhood, and catch the train from Cricklewood railway station. It is much too big, much too tall and will negatively impact on the local community of Cricklewood by the imposition of so many massive tower blocks into a very small space. These proposed tower blocks will dominate the skyline and the local area destroying the local neighbourhood feeling in Cricklewood. This application for 1,100 flats suggests overdevelopment of the site and the area, especially when set in the context of the other flats being built in the locality. This application is very close to the new Brent Cross Town which apparently will cover 180 acres and provide up to 6 700 new homes. There are developments all around Cricklewood with multi-storey flats being built in many locations - including the Co-op site, Matalan, etc.

The traffic situation in Cricklewood is already problematic with cars, lorries and buses crawling along the roads and polluting the atmosphere. There will be an increase in traffic and associated pollution both during and after construction of the high-rise blocks. The impact of this on the health of children walking along the pavements to and from the local schools next to this development must be considered. Further there is the question of local resources - schools, doctors, dentist etc.

The impact on Cricklewood station and the train services of these additional residents will be considerable. There is no alternative underground line and the buses are already slow. Finally, the application fails to consider the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic on the population of London, housing need in the city and particularly in Cricklewood.

Comment: I am registering my objection to this application as I consider it seriously lacking in consideration for the following reasons:

1. It is a very densely packed development which limits light into the apartments and walking areas. Also the 25 storey block is far too tall and will have an impact on light to the other blocks due to the position in relation to the sun. The current regeneration of Brent Cross town does not have any building of that height!
2. 1100 residential units are planned which is a large increase for the local population, with no mention of providing important services such as a medical centre, or nursery or school.
3. Only 110 parking spaces are planned. Presumably the hope is that the existing bus and train services will be used by future residents. Will parking on local streets be put under yet more pressure.
4. The terraced houses (Railway terraces) nearby will be dwarfed. Presumably the development of the Galtymore site on the A5 (which is nowhere near as tall as this application) considered the impact on existing houses and therefore the same should apply to this application.

According to the Office of National Statistics 2021, this part of Barnet is deemed a deprived area. If, Barnet Council wants to provide housing then please consider the people who will live there. How different from the Argent plans!

I am asking the committee to compare the number of apartment blocks that have been built on railway land beside the two railway lines at West Hampstead. They are smaller developments but they have not overpowered the area.

This application reeks of profiteering from a site rather than adding decent living space for ordinary people.

Comment: The proposed development is totally out of keeping for the area. Cricklewood has some wonderful architectural buildings. To build a 25 storey block overpowering everything would be horrendous. Nothing in this area is more than 5 storeys and any new buildings should be in keeping with this limit.

Cricklewood is already highly congested and I'm sure everyone knows an artists impression of a development it's never the reality. A tower block of this size with balconies sticking out on all four corners doesn't bear thinking about, hundreds of balconies packed with bikes, toys, washing etc would make it look even uglier than it does in the drawing. Just take a look at the new flats in Edgware Road for a prime example of how balconies are used. The amount of dwellings proposed would be overwhelming for Cricklewood as we don't have the infrastructure to cope with the amount proposed.

I find it hard to believe that so many people need so few car parking spaces and suspect that cars will be parked illegally. Also, a development so close to a train station is going to have a larger percentage of people wanting to use the trains than the average population - people rste convenience. The trains are already overcrowded and there are plans for many more to use them wgen the new brent cross station and development open. The infrastructure isn't there to cope with so many people.

Furthermore this development will result in the loss of vital community resources (primarily the very well-utilised B&Q store).

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Whilst I welcome the redevelopment of the site as a positive development for Cricklewood, I have a major concern about the proposed heights of the highest residential blocks, and believe that in the case of the proposed 35 storey block, this should be reduced by at least 20 storeys. As proposed a 35 storey tower block would completely dwarf any of the current adjacent properties, new and old,, and is wholly disproportionate to the area.

Additionally I would like to see the 'stepping' of the blocks reversed, so that the highest block is located furthest away from Cricklewood Lane, so that the impact of the development on Cricklewood Lane and surrounding areas is, to some extent, mitigated.

I believe that there should be a higher proportion of affordable housing provided for within the development.

There should be a commensurate s.106 agreement, that includes:

- substantial improvements to the Cricklewood railway station,
- better traffic management measures
- improvements to the retail environment of the area

Lastly, as a local resident, from whose property the new development will be very visible, I would like it recognised that I have not been formally notified about the development of this site, either by the developers or by Barnet Council.

The height and density of the buildings make it overbearing and oppressive. It will dominate the surrounding areas in a negative way. There is no good reason for building this high in the area.

There does not even seem to be garden or parkland around the development to help balance out the density of the buildings.

This high-rise development should not be permitted.

I have looked at the CGI's in the new Urban Design Study. I remain very concerned that the scheme is far too big, too dense and much too tall. It dwarfs everything in sight and is totally out of keeping with the surrounding area.

I have lived in the Railway Terraces Conservation Area for 45 years. My children and grandchildren have all benefited from this unique area, and are still resident here. We are a strong and united community and this proposed development will totally change this protected area and affect us all. In parts of the Terraces like Kara Way it will be very visible and intrusive. The playground will be impacted by the high wall blocking out light and the allotments will be overlooked. Both Campion Terrace and Needham Terrace will be overlooked and overshadowed.

To focus specifically on the visual impact of the proposed buildings, analysis has shown that the tallest tower will be visible more than 12 miles away at the General Wolfe Statue in Greenwich Park (see CRICKLEWOOD LANE HTVIA ES FINAL_PART3, page 145). After identifying many "adverse effects" of the building's visibility in various heritage locations, the analysts try to explain that this is "owing to the lack of design information that will eventually come forward as part of the Reserved Matters planning applications" (page 151, same document). How have the developers addressed these findings and improved their plans since the publication of the Visual Impact Assessment in July 2020? Please explain.

2. would cause an unacceptable increase in density of people and vehicles (and provides parking for no more than 10% of residents) and place unacceptable pressure on surrounding streets and services

3. would create structures which are grossly out of scale, overbearing, intrusive and in conflict with the surrounding built environment

4. offers no/no sufficient S. 106 affordable housing

5. would inevitably lead to lead to expensive and lengthy legal proceedings if granted.

I fully support the excellent work of the Northwest TWO Residents Association in keeping residents up to date with the proposals and the horrendous impact they will have on the local area.

I agree that the development would be overbearing, overwhelming and out of keeping with the surrounding streets.

We previously lived in Midland Terrace which is in the unique Railway Houses Conservation Area and they would be utterly swamped by size, height & density of the proposed housing.

I object to the proposed B&Q development because of the overwhelming impact it will have on Cricklewood which substantially outweighs the benefit of the additional housing.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: This development must not be allowed to progress for the following reasons:

The footprint that the developer wants to build 1100 dwellings on is too small and building 25 storey blocks for flat will have a negative impact on those who live around the proposed site.

The impact on public amenities such as schools, doctors, dentists are not in place to accommodate the extra 1100 + people that will inhabit this development.

The impact on public transport will be negative for already crowded buses and trains serving the immediate area.

The impact on the roads surrounding the area will also be negative for what is already a congested area.

Barnet council are building this on the very edge of their borough and the impact on the resident of Brent will also be negative.

Whilst we need more social and more affordable housing in London we do not need people to be crammed into tower blocks in an already crowded area just so that the few can make money at the expense of the rest of the local community.

If the area were to be developed then it would be better for the residents of both Barnet and Brent that a low level, less dense development was put up with social and affordable housing which also includes amenities such as doctors and dentists etc within the development.

The developers need to think about the impact this will have on the people not just line their pockets with no impact on their living condition.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: This development should be stopped. The negative impact it would have is unacceptable for the following reasons.

- 1) First and foremost, only buildings that align with the specific architectural features of the area should be allowed to be constructed. The Victorian maisonettes that characterise Cricklewood not only have an intrinsic historical and landscape value that must be respected, but with their harmonious aesthetics they contribute to the well-being of the entire local community. The community has chosen to reside in or remain in the area because of the almost museum-like beauty of the neighbourhood. Such architectures, like all historic centres, must be protected. This includes preventing the construction of the ugly and environmentally damaging buildings.
- 2) Secondly, the area has not enough schools, medical practices, parking areas, and general services to allow a fair quality of life to both the old and the new residents. This is the foundation of responsible urban planning. I mean planning should allow further residential buildings only when an area has been provided with all is needed to ensure the harmonious integration of new residents and optimal quality of life for everyone.
- 3) Thirdly, London is at the forefront in many areas, so its councils should be cutting edge even in adopting inclusive planning methods. By using procedures like focus groups, better information, questionnaires, and PRA, the council should involve the local community in the crucial decisions related to the area, in such a way that, as modern urban sociology explains, the knowledge of the people integrates with the knowledge of the experts designing the changes. Only in this way it is possible to make urban planning having the public interest as a goal.

The public administrators should consider the local community as the most important stakeholder. If a council supports a project like this, it means it is considering only the developer as a stakeholder.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The development will unacceptably loom over the surrounding area which has always been low rise housing. In particular it will loom over Cricklewood Lane which already cannot cope with all the traffic, cars, lorries and many buses. This road is very narrow for the amount of traffic it already has. There are traffic jams there and coming up to the lights at Claremont Road every day. There are other Barnet developments nearby, eg Brent Cross Town, which will provide more local housing. The pressure on local facilities, like GPs, schools, and even shopping which are bad enough already, will get worse. Also, after Grenfell, the building of very tall buildings has now become something most councils avoid if possible. Why can't we have more low rise buildings on the site. I object VERY STRONGLY to the proposal.

Comment: I strongly object to this development which is out of character with the area. I was born and have lived in NW2 my whole life and can keenly see the impact of the new cricklewood developments that have already come up: traffic is terrible, the pollution is worse, pressures on schools and doctors surgeries is clear. We do not have enough space or resources for a large development of this nature and the towers are simply too large and will be an eye sore.

Gladstone park has become crowded due to the current new developments we can not afford to have anymore new flats of this scale in the area.

Comment: I stand by everything I said in my previous objection to this proposal. There is no integrity or vision for this concept as a whole. It's poorly designed and in the wrong location. And, who and where are the buyers that post pandemic feel they'd like to live in a tower block next to a railway line, with little to no social cohesion, their lives made even more frustrating and difficult by the insufficient infrastructure surrounding them?

Perhaps something beneficial to the area could be built instead, like a new surgery, a school or assisted living homes, some green space, a youth centre... Of course, those kinds of plans don't make someone a lot of money. If this is allowed to go ahead, we can only presume that Barnet stands by Boris Johnson's claim that 'greed is good'. It certainly isn't going to be an example in any way of a council upholding its purpose to be a responsible decision maker acting in the best interests of its community.

Comment: As a long-term resident of Cricklewood of over 30 years standing, I am appalled by this grotesque application. To put ugly, tall high-density tower blocks in an area which mainly has buildings of no more than 4 storeys is unacceptable. There are no plans for the social housing which is so badly needed.

Cricklewood is already crowded, with narrow roads and constant congestion and poor air quality. Demand on services such as GPs, dentists and schools will be high if these plans are approved. The pandemic has shown us how much people value green spaces, which improve mental health and are not adequately provided by these plans.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I strongly object to the proposals for this redevelopment of the B& Q site as presented. It is far too dense and the buildings are far too high and out of keeping with the design of the rest of the neighbourhood. It is unclear where the precedent for such height comes from. The drawings themselves indicate some shadowing from one block to another showing how close and near the tower blocks are to each other - meaning there will be a distinct lack of daylight in the units on the lower floors. The tower blocks facing south will inevitably block light for those further north behind them.

There may also be issues of privacy for those living in such close proximity and also for views to the lower residential properties nearby.

Such density of population - added to other nearby redevelopments in the neighbourhood - will inevitably put a strain on already overstretched local services such as transport, doctors surgeries and schools - not just in Barnet but in the neighbouring boroughs of Brent and Camden. Cricklewood Broadway will become very congested.

The provision of green space seems very small when compared to the amount of new residents and would seem insufficient to provide enough space for all the residents to enjoy at the same time. Since the first design was put forward, the lessons of the COVID pandemic have shown how important green spaces are for the physical and mental well-being of a community.

In short I object to these proposals for the reasons above - too high, too dense and over development of an important site which - despite creating new homes - will have a negative impact on the well being of the neighbourhood.

Comment: I am and have been since 2012 a frequent visitor to my daughter and family who live in the Railway Cottages. I understand the need for development but the plans outlined here are too dense with numerous tower blocks for residential use over a range of floors and including one of 25 floors; these plans are oppressive and overbearing, particularly on the Cottages which are in a Conservation Area. Barnet Council must respect this planning protection which was given to the Cottages years ago. It makes a mockery of protection if it is not respected.

The infrastructure of the area will not tolerate such an increase in residents. A few years ago I had reason to use the NHS Drop-in medical centre in Cricklewood Lane. This has now been closed!! How can the area possibly cope? Think again Barnet Council and take a responsible attitude to your residents. Just because this development is proposed right in the corner of your borough where it will have very little effect on your residents, you should not in conscience inflict the huge demands this will make on Brent and Cricklewood in particular - its residents will suffer enormously as a result of your irresponsible decisions.

Comment: I strongly object to the Montreaux B&Q planning application. This is because the buildings they are proposing are way too high. They are not keeping in with the area in any way, are too dense, will block light, will be overbearing and will put even more of a strain on our already struggling schools, nurseries, doctors surgeries, parking and roads. We don't have the infrastructure to support so many new flats and we are already overcrowded.

Another concern I have, is that if this is built it will set the precedent for more tower blocks to be built in the area. This is really worrying for me because we'll end up living in a high-rise jungle. And a part of what I love about living in Cricklewood is the sense of space we have because we can see the sky and we don't have high-rise buildings looming down on us and casting us into shadow.

While I would support building new homes in Cricklewood that were in keeping with the area, that were say no more than 5 floors high so we could still see the sky and keep the light, and that incorporated infrastructure improvements for the whole community, I can't support the Montreaux B&Q planning application because it does none of this. It will be far from a landmark, rather it will be an eyesore that will affect three boroughs, and one that is a detriment to the current community as a whole.

Oh and another thing that concerns me is how quiet Barnet Council were about this new consultation. As there were no notices around Cricklewood or around the site about this consultation, and although I live in Cricklewood and close to the station, I've had no information about it.

it remains an exaggerated, slanted and hypocritical repetition of its earlier application designed to steamroller an off-shore firm's way through to tax-free commercial gain under an empty, fox-smiling guise for public concern and betterment.

I wish the firm's invisible owners and their descendants enjoy lumps in their mashed potatoes forever. Not to mention the Councillors at the centre of Barnet who realise all too well that they can get away with such hogwash along outlier border areas like Cricklewood with little risk to their main central-area vote.

How many other popular 25-story residential building-clusters already exist near the middle of Barnet?

Comment: The number of storeys proposed are not suitable for an area where the buildings are typically 2-3 storeys high. It will obstruct the view and restrict daylight for many neighbours. This will not only be limited to the adjacent neighbours. Cricklewood Lane already has issues with traffic and the new development with the additional hundreds of residents will only make it worse. The surrounding roads do not have the capacity either.

It is best to considerably reduce the height of the structures and limit it what was built by Fairview New Homes on Woodley Crescent (formerly known as The Broadway development).

New buildings will improve the area but this magnitude will have more negative impacts than positive. The proposal must be revised and I strongly object to this application.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I object to the proposal for the reasons set out in my original comment in 2020, which I request that the Council reads again.

Those original reasons remain valid because there has been no material change to the application. This is disappointing because the developers and Council have missed an opportunity to take into account the strength of local opposition to the proposal. Many people will feel the revised application ignores their reasonably expressed views.

As I said in my original comment, I am in favour of improving the housing stock in this area and, indeed, across London and the country. The housing crisis is dire, but it will not be solved by proposals such as this, which will so obviously overwhelm local infrastructure and everyone's quality of life.

Like most people, I don't have time to read complicated and lengthy planning documents, but even a quick look at the revised application reveals several untenable conclusions. For example, the Transport Assessment (paras. 12.11-12.12) finds that there will be an extra 133 passengers at Cricklewood station in the morning peak. That feels like an underestimate for 1,100 new households. It also assumes only two-thirds of them will travel southbound; the fact that that is a wrong assumption will be plain to anyone who has ever travelled from Cricklewood in the morning.

There is real potential for a smaller-scale residential development of the B&Q site. If the number of flats being built is reduced to something manageable, I would support it. A smaller development would also make life more pleasant for its future residents.

I encourage the Council to think again: yes, redevelop the site and create more housing - but please do it in a manageable way.

There should be green spaces and it should be pedestrianised. There is too much traffic and pollution and it's not appropriate for that many homes, 1100 people. No infrastructure or transport to support this.

Comment: This development is grossly outsized for the Cricklewood neighbourhood, especially as it is situated at the very heart of the area. There is absolutely no need - beyond the profits of the developers - for it to be as tall as planned and for the site to contain that many flats.

There is already a lack of amenities in the area - school places, doctors, supermarkets - and a development of this size will put an unbearable strain on existing facilities.

The local roads are already busy especially at rush hour and could not handle the strain of thousands more people on public transport, or in cars.

The site is en route to a big local secondary school. I don't feel reassured that the pupils will be safe travelling on nearby roads - many have to literally cross the roads at the sites entrances. There have been no clear reassurances that huge goods lorries would not be accessing the site at the same hours children are travelling to school.

You don't see developments like this being planned in the northern parts of the Barnet borough, the councillors there obviously view Cricklewood as an area to dump huge outsized overpriced private developments on whilst they ignore the areas other needs.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Absolutely unacceptable idea. 1100 flats means 1100 new families, about 3000 new people in that small area.

No spaces for parking and other facilities.

Crowd and pollution.

Not enough schools or nurseries around.

Please don't make the cricklewood overcrowded without trees and green spaces.

Comment: I've been a resident in Cricklewood for 28 years and when I found out that tower blocks were going to be added in our already overflowing community, I was shocked to say the least. My daughter attends a school just round the corner from B&Q and we tackle the 15 minute walk to and from school with little pleasure. The roads are busy with commuters/school children/countless cars and it honestly is a nightmare.

Pollution and overcrowding is an undeniable issue in this area and I strongly object adding to the problem. Our health, safety and general well being will be affected if more souls come to Cricklewood and it is an outrage how little the council cares!

We should be focusing on making the area safer and less dangerous than it already is. Not to mention that these towers look absolutely awful and are an eye sore.

Build something that would benefit the existing residents who's kids have no facilities or enjoyment living in the area! Not something that will just be a huge burden.

The height and size of the proposed development is not in-keeping with the local area and will set a precedence for future planning applications. Amenities and infrastructure in the area are already under strain. Traffic and pollution will only increase in an already busy area. Yes, there is a shortage of housing but this proposal is not the answer.

The proposed development in its current state does not look in keeping with the aesthetics of Cricklewood. This project is a missed opportunity to make better use of that space, rather than a bunch of houses for someone to sell for their own profit.

Comment Reasons:

Comment:1. Buildings are completely out of character with the surrounding areas due to their height and I believe that this goes against Barnet's policy on what is appropriate. The buildings would be eyesores in this Victorian town centre.

2. The density of so many residential units in a small space will completely overwhelm the public facilities which are already overstretched.

Transport, schools and medical facilities have suffered in rent years, so this adds to the problem.

3 Recreational outdoor space and green space will also be in short supply. From the recent pandemic, it is clear that this is needed for mental health and well being. It is clear that highly densely populated areas have had more issues with COVID spread. Thought and planning of people's well-being has not been considered and it is too late after all has gone ahead.

4. Works are being carried out to improve an over congested area where travelling around on transport is difficult. This density of units will create more issues due to more vehicles on the already crowded roads and people in the already overcrowded streets.

5. In many parts of London, overcrowded areas seem to have more crime.

6. The area does not have enough shops to cater for the number of people that will move into the area, even if some shops are put in the buildings.

7. The well being of the people in Brent, Camden and Barnet have not been considered in this scheme.

Comment: I strongly object to this planning application. I acknowledge the need for housing development but the plans outlined are too crowded with multiple tower blocks for residential use over a range of floors and including one of 25 floors; these plans are overbearing as these heights breach Barnet planning framework and policies. It's also overwhelming as it would be extraordinarily high-density and it would stress facilities to breaking point. Barnet Council must think how the area would be able to cope with this increase in residents.

The infrastructure of the area will not tolerate such an increase in residents.

It's worth nothing that much of the application is speculative, vague and non committal; only assurances that's a good thing for Cricklewood but this is not well-founded.

No social housing is offered but only a probability of 35% affordable units.

The open space is not commensurate with the increase in population.

The impact assessments on train capacity are wrong. It would represent a 3% increase capacity in this development alone.

The addition of such high density housing will contribute to the poor air quality in the area, create wind tunnels and impact the residents of the two and three story properties in the area with regards to light amenity.

The general area does not have the transport infrastructure to cope with the addition of such a high density development in the area. The public transport and road network does not have the capacity to accommodate the additional residents.

Comment: I strongly object to the planning and construction of the the blocks with 10 or 25 storeys. We have already the Brent Cross project going ahead.

This will affect my family , our quality of life , the air quality, the local character of my neighborhood

This plan is unethical to start with as it puts the life of the residents of the area in direct danger for the reasons below :

- 1) Quality of air pollution. 1100 more flats means more cars , means more air pollution. We want our children to clean as clean air as possible. Create green spaces, plant trees, not cement!
- 2) Dangerous as the traffic will increase , which means more of car accidents and pedestrians and our children are exposed.
- 3) Out of character for the neighborhood. Our children need to grow up in a neighbourhood and not in an industrial area like. They need to have that feeling and sense of community that Barnet so strongly advertises. Please tell us how you will maintain and promote this with an additional 1100 in the area?! With more new people in the area , the community sense will be lost forever .
- 4) Overwhelming . With these tall buildings we won't be able to see the sky from our windows anymore. You are not taking into account the mental health and quality of life for the residents of the area.

More cars, more traffic, more confusion. Our local public services will be overloaded , reducing thus the quality of any services we are receiving.

I strongly object to this development and it is crucial that Barnet will put an halt to this and consider in promoting the physical and mental health of its current residents , rather than the profit.

Our view is that these are just as we thought - overbearing, overwhelming, out of keeping with Cricklewood.

We need more space, not more crowds, not more cars, not more traffic.
Quality over quantity.

Comment: I objected to this development about a year ago and stand by every comment I made then. So please consider those objections. Looking at the CGI's submitted to us I can only be even more horrified by the absolute unsightly layout of the proposed flats. Nothing seems to have been taken into consideration since the original discussions and request to submit our views. The height remains the same there is no comparable building within the Cricklewood area and would absolutely dwarf our conservation area. There is no precedent for this kind of height so juxtaposed to a conservation area in London. The height and proposed density (it looks worse in the CGI than the original plans) would vastly reduce hours of sunlight on Champion Terrace and two thirds of Needham. We do not have full hours of daylight at the moment and those terraces would suffer enormously. We have also hung on to our allotments as a vital community facility a haven for wild life and essential calm and these dreadful blocks will definitely interrupt our horizon and skyline.

I cannot believe that these One and two bedroom flats will still be relevant as post pandemic needs have changed. There is no proper provision of outdoor space which people absolutely require and will demand. Of course something has to go there but really these proposals have no place here in these surroundings. A more sensitive plan must be brought to the table which benefits the area and is sympathetic to the style and nature of predominantly Victorian residential Cricklewood. If flats must go there much much lower blocks with air to breathe between them. We also do not have the infrastructure in Cricklewood to support so many new dwellings. School places are tight and so are GP waiting lists. Reconsider please for the good of the whole area and the health of its residents both mental and physical .

Local residents, school children and their parents suffer a lot Many people move their residence even though they love to stay this particular area.

However, I do not want Cricklewood become overcrowded and polluted. We all suffer significant amount of road traffic during school time. Local council struggled a lot of providing great service to the residents. The streets are already dirtiest than other council. More people coming living here means more pollutions and producing co2. I can not support that, pollution kills every many life and we must not walk to end human civilisation. We all need to breathe fresh air and less pollution.

The entire world suffering respiratory related threats and no one care for that! I don't want to leave a polluted environment for my daughter or new born. We must learn the lesson and stop global warning. STOP POLLUTION, STOP CO2 INCREASE.

Comment: I write on behalf of the Governors at St Agnes RC Primary, Thorverton Rd. Our school is situated very close to the proposed site. We oppose this development because of the increases in traffic and pollution it will bring about. We are also concerned about the pressure on public services so many new residents will bring about, especially when we have so many other new developments close by.

Comment: I used to live in Cricklewood so know the area well.

I object for these reasons-

Lack of advertising for consultation with community.

The development will change the character of the area beyond recognition.

Overbearing design and too dense.

No affordable units, housing does not meet local needs.

Blocks too high and overwhelming.

Out of keeping with the area and beyond.

Not sustainable, insufficient infrastructure.

Transport and parking inadequate for the increase in residents to the area.

Impact on the environment.

Noise and light pollution will be hugely increased to the detriment of neighbours and wildlife.

Developer is trying to ignore all important issues by using a reserved matters application.

A much more sensitive development is needed that is low rise and caters for local housing needs.

I object to this development as the extra traffic congestion, noise and air pollution this development will create will be intolerable. The high rise blocks cramming in as many housing units as possible are clearly conceived to maximize profits for the developer over concern for people's well being and quality of life and harmony with the existing environment. There is already pressure on public transport, GP & dental services locally. This development will have an adverse effect & should be stopped and entirely reconceived.

Their height is oppressive and leaves the whole area in shade and shadow. They create windtunnels because they are so densely packed. The environment is as a result chilly, gloomy and damp. Sunlight is massively reduced. They are grim.

I live very close with three small children, and we attend St Agnes school, the other side of Cricklewood lane.

The increased levels of pollution from what is already stationary traffic on the Cricklewood lane and junction with lichfield road is very damaging to small children's lungs, as has been shown in recent court cases. It is also a dangerous walk for us to school; and there are no cycle lanes along Cricklewood lane. This road needs to be made one way.

Furthermore I am concerned about a lack of school places, GP surgeries and other infrastructure.

I would urge you to reconsider this extensive development.

I cannot understand how a development of this type that is totally out of keeping with the area could even be considered. The proposed multi-storey blocks will be too tall, dwarf everything around and the development will be intrusive to a wide number of buildings - including residential homes - in the vicinity. There have been several large residential sites completed recently in the area and traffic congestion is already at capacity despite the westbound closure of Cricklewood lane for 9 months, I struggle to see how this will be eased by building thousands of new homes on the busiest road. The height of these new tower blocks is frankly an eyesore and I can't believe any one on the planning committee would want to live in a close proximity to here so why would you want them to be near other people. The Brent Cross development is huge and will be set back from the main area and that is enough for housing. No more.

Comment: I submitted a detailed and closely argued objection to this planning application on October 5th 2020. I wish every word of that to stand and want it to be taken into account.

Therefore I shall limit this to briefly reiterating some of the main points I made then. I stress that the London Borough of Barnet's 2019 update on what is considered the appropriate height for new high-rise buildings in Cricklewood ranges from 6 to 14 storeys. It follows therefore that according to the LBB's calculation, anything in excess of 14 is INAPPROPRIATE! Accordingly, it is obvious that the application for a tower block rising to the ludicrous height of 25 storeys is totally unacceptable and should be thrown out forthwith. NOTHING higher than fourteen storeys is acceptable.

There are no very tall buildings in Cricklewood. The character of the largely late Victorian and Edwardian residential and commercial buildings in the surrounding neighbourhood must be respected. Nothing should be constructed that so blatantly ignores these communities and conflicts with the architectural aesthetic.

I am not opposed to the construction of new housing units. The country is faced with a huge housing crisis. But certain criteria must be observed:

1. The application envisaged represents a huge over-development of the site This can only be achieved by the construction of monolithic tower blocks of unacceptable height.

2. It will result in an unsustainable level of traffic on the limited road capacity available, already destined by other local developments to add to the volume of HGVs using all adjacent roads, and hugely adding to pollution levels on the overused A5, one of the most polluted major roads in London.

3. The 1,100 units envisaged will add 3000+ new residents to a heavily populated neighbourhood, putting an impossible burden on local services and medical provision. It will impact very detrimentally on the Railway Terraces Conservation Area, where I live. Please reject the application.

Comment: Cricklewood is already a highly congested area and its links with the A5 are already strained.

The area had numerous roadworks and moving around the area by car or local transport is becoming harder and harder.

This proposal is not in keeping with the local area and will increase traffic and footfall within the already busy area.

The proposal does not have adequate parking for these new residents.

This proposal is designed to maximise the space for the contractor and does not improve the local residents' life nor the new tenants.

The height of this development is also a concern as it distorts the skyline for miles in every direction.

I feel this proposal needs to go back to the drawing board and be relooked at to ensure this works for the contractor and local residents.

The text of the Urban Design Study repeatedly praises the development with little or no explanation for its effusiveness. It makes aesthetic judgments without explaining or supporting them. It asserts, repeatedly, that the development has elegance (more elegant outline (twice), elegant proportions, elegant form, the elegance of each, elegant form and materiality, the elegance and crowning feature of the highest building, contribute to its elegance, the elegance and crowning detail, the building's elegance and meaning, increased in its elegance) without ever explaining the basis of that judgment.

Likewise, the study uses "generous" or "generously" seven times without any explanation, let alone an indication of what's being generously given. The summary paragraph states that the development "has the right to be visible", though the idea that a building has moral rights is nowhere argued and utterly novel, and ends "Its joyful and generously designed top adds meaning and richness to the vistas and glimpses above existing buildings in a celebratory and thoughtful way." Nowhere does the study explain what is joyful about the top or how the designers were generous, or what meaning it adds to vistas or how obtruding into views adds richness. It minimises the extreme visibility of the development by talking of glimpses, and then introduces the idea that it celebrates something, without saying what or how, and does so in a thoughtful way, without ever explaining what it is thinking.

We wish to add to our objections of 5th October and 14th October 2020 and the objections made by our members and fellow-residents then and recently.

The new Urban Design Study reinforces our concerns and demonstrates their validity. The windows, balconies and other details make the scale of the proposed buildings clearer and the disproportionate and overwhelming scale of the proposal more vivid.

The images achieve this even though compression into a small picture easily scanned by the human eye doesn't reflect the lived experience of seeing buildings from the ground, where the human eye and brain will not frame the view of the development with - as for example in the picture from Ashford Road, or those from Elm Grove and Oak Grove - nearby buildings on the left and right of our position. Councillors deciding on this application should see these pictures but should see them without such framing.

The images also make clear the poor quality of the proposed accommodation. The view from Lichfield Road above Cricklewood Station is particularly clear on this. The wide south-east face of each block (the 25-storey tower excepted) is deep in the shadow of the block beside it, even in the middle of the day. The overhead view, with stark shadows cast by a sun unusually high in the west, brings this out again.

Comment: Further objection on behalf of The Fordwych Residents Association, which represents people living on Fordwych Road & adjoining streets in the Fortune Green Ward, London borough of Camden, NW2/6.

Fordwych Residents Association strongly objects to the scheme on the grounds of over-development in such a small site, and the height of the towers and does not provide any social housing. Our residents living in Cricklewood are next door to this development and, as such will be significantly affected by it. The proposal is far too tall and dense, with tower blocks reaching 25 storeys, which is way too high. The tallest block in this scheme, should not be any higher than the scheme approved for 1-13 Cricklewood Lane, which includes a 9-storey tower. The tallest 25-storey tower is sited next to Cricklewood Lane and the railway bridge, instead of at the back of the site. This scheme is not in keeping with the character and scale of the Victorian buildings in Cricklewood town centre, which range in height from 2-3 storeys. The developer's drawings show the towers looming over Cricklewood, but they will be visible from wider areas in North West London. The huge towers will obscure daylight and overshadow large areas of Cricklewood and beyond. Our residents are extremely worried and concerned about the effects this proposal will have on traffic in Fordwych Road, Westbere Road and other local roads in the Camden Borough. This scheme will produce high demands on local infrastructure and services, which are already over-stretched. Local bus routes and Cricklewood Thameslink station will be unable to cope with additional demand with present infrastructure. Traffic on Cricklewood Lane will be grid-locked. A pedestrian route should be provided in the scheme, so residents of the development can move around it. This scheme, if approved will harm the nearby Grade II listed building The Crown public house, as well as the conservation area railway terraces and the Victorian Groves.

This development is far too large.

1. The height of the tallest blocks will overshadow other buildings blocking light for those nearby, and impacting badly from a distance.

2. It has ill thought out parking facilities

3 Social housing does not appear to be a priority

4. The overall number of units will generate an enormous increase on the local population thus impacting on

a. Local transport

b. Schools (scant provision here on the Barnet side which will surely cause overcrowding in Brent schools).

c Local amenities

d Health facilities (doctors surgeries already with waiting lists).

d. Footfall in general.

I have no objection to providing much needed housing per se, but not on this overdeveloped alarming scale on the furthest reaches of the Barnet boundary. NOT a good idea.

Twenty times the study speaks of a "landmark". It never establishes any need for a landmark or explains how one would benefit Cricklewood. Neither the centre of Cricklewood nor the railway station are hard to find; the centre is a simple crossroads on the A5, the station is signposted from there and elsewhere, and the area provide with Legible London signage. There's no evidence that large numbers of people are struggling to find their way to either one from miles around, or that either one, once found, would be so easily forgotten that we need a marker visible all day, every day from miles around. In an early discussion, the architect remarked on how good the view would be for tower residents and was discomfited to be reminded this meant that it would be visible from far around. The attempt to justify this visibility as providing a landmark is entirely inadequate and self-serving, and the repeated assertions don't make it any more valid.

The report begins by saying it "provides an independent design assessment". Later in that paragraph, we read that the consultancy "has been commissioned independently by Montreaux Cricklewood Developments Ltd ('the applicant')". It is thus not at all independent of the applicant and as we've seen, it can hardly be called an assessment; it's a string of unsupported assertions using repetitive and frequently irrelevant terms, and once the absurd claim that the entire development is beneficial simply because it replaces a carpark. Indeed, it repeatedly claims that its assertions show the effect of the development to be beneficial, but instead it demonstrates repeatedly that the authors lack the ability to make that assessment or substantiate it.

For these reasons, we object not only to the application but to any reliance being placed, in assessing the application, on the claims made in this "Urban Design Study" or on any of its conclusions.

The revised Transport Assessment placed on Barnet's planning portal in April not only has flaws but also reveals flaws in the application.

The estimate of 88 passengers travelling south by train in the morning peak hour is one example. On the one hand, it undermines the case for placing a very large development beside a station if only 88 commuters from 1100 residential units use trains to go into town. On the other hand, it is very weakly founded, guessing that two-thirds of commuters will be southbound with no evidence, and avoiding evaluating the impact of those commuters on train crowding, with neither statistics for train crowding nor recognition of the lived experience of commuters that already trains are often too crowded at Cricklewood for anyone to board. The covering letter suggests that the 88-passenger "result" "will inform any further discussions regarding CIL payments or S106 contributions." There is no indication how CIL or S106 funds could be used to alleviate overcrowding on trains, so this seems an entirely irrelevant suggestion designed to avoid the problems being taken into consideration when considering whether the application should be approved.

The assessment also avoids evaluating the impact of cycle users on local traffic and pedestrians, or the likely experience of cycle users. It asserts that cycle users will be so intimidated by the nearby junction with the A5 Cricklewood Broadway that they will wheel their bikes across, and so avoids evaluating the impact of cycle users on traffic there. If this was credible, then it would be necessary to evaluate the impact of many cycle users wheeling bicycles on busy pavements round corners, across pedestrian crossings and through torturous fenced pedestrian islands, continually obstructing and in conflict with pedestrians. It is however not credible; this is not the observed behaviour of cycle users in London nor how new generations are taught to use the roads in their school Bikeability courses. Rather, the Transport Assessment needed to evaluate on-road cycle movements.

Meanwhile the claim that the A5 is too intimidating is then ignored in calculating the area in easy reach, which does not factor in time spent wheeling across the road through pedestrians and negotiating the various phases of traffic lights, nor consider what would be in easy reach of cycle users if they fear to ride along the A5.

The assessment also neglects to assess cycle use of the supposed public benefit of narrow unsegregated shared-use paths through the development. If levels are to be high enough to constitute a public benefit, how will those users interact with pedestrians in the development and how will conflict be managed? How will they access Cricklewood Lane, and how will speeds of cycle users dropping from the development to Cricklewood Lane be managed without obstructing free movement of pedestrians and significant numbers of cycle users? Or will the combination of climbs into the development, narrow paths, obstacles and conflicts with pedestrians deter cycle users and render any public benefit insignificant?

Evaluation of pedestrian movements is similarly flawed and lacks consideration of interdependencies. The pedestrian isochrones assume all pedestrians can walk in every direction at the same uniform speed, with no delay at busy roads, and in straight lines across railways and through buildings. Routes are often evaluated as at current levels of usage rather than the increased levels following development. We see, for example, no estimate of the increased numbers passing under the Cricklewood Lane bridge to access trains, buses, schools and other destinations, but we do see an acknowledgment of that route's restricted with a suggestion that barriers might be required under the bridge, not accompanied by any estimate of how those would affect pedestrians or road users with regards to congestion or journey times, let alone wellbeing.

In short, this assessment fails in many ways to evaluate the effect of the development and its residents on the movements of either the current working and residential population of Cricklewood or the new residents themselves. The evaluations it does make show serious problems and its omissions signify more.

In about two weeks, this new consultation has attracted another 500 objections, some reinforcing their previous objections and some new. There is no good reason to discount any earlier objections and Barnet Council has given no indication that it might. In particular, the empty phrases of the Urban Design Study do not provide any basis on which to discount objections. Rather, they make it more starkly obvious that the harm this overwhelming and excessively intense development would cause cannot be justified.

The concentration and density of housing is also a concern. The streets are already congested and the trains at peak time in morning were difficult to board. Developing the b&q site makes sense but not with towers of that height

Local infrastructure will not be able to cope and traffic will be grid locked in surrounding roads. The developer should pay for assess to the Thameslink station to be improved, as it will become overwhelmed otherwise. There should be smaller blocks with a mixed retail use on ground level and more social housing would be more beneficial and in keeping with the surrounding area.

Comment: We live on the North East of the Mapesbury Conservation Area, just off the A5 and adjacent to the Brent/Barnet/Camden borders, half a mile from the site of the proposal.

I am a member of the Mapesbury Residents' Association Committee and of its Planning Sub-Committee

1,100 'residential units' will mean a minimum of 3,000 people living there. The traffic on the A5 is already horrendous and the pollution dreadful. We note that parking spaces are limited to 110 (how will these be allocated? Plus there is free parking nearby at certain times), but there will be hundreds of delivery vans on a daily basis driving up to the site making the congestion and pollution around the A5 totally unbearable.

The thousands of people living there will need schools, GPs, hospitals and infrastructure of all kinds. Brent and Camden will have to deal with the inevitable overspill.

The actual buildings would be overbearing, visible from far and wide, and are totally out of character with the surrounding townscape. A real 'blot on the landscape'.

The intensity of use is also a matter of concern. The pandemic has revealed how living on the 25th floor - or even the 15th - affects people's mental health.

And alongside all this, we have the new Brent Cross Town, just up the road, with 6,700 new homes. Meaning an additional 20,000+ people jammed into a few square miles alongside the 3,000 on this site. Not to mention the proposed development on the Matalan site.

Living in Cricklewood will become unbearable and unsustainable and this current proposal will be a major contributory factor.

The local amenities - shops, public transport, roads - are inadequate for such a huge development. The council should expand and improve local infrastructure - including green open spaces - before and during the build, rather than treating these things as add-ons to be addressed afterwards, if at all.

The actual buildings would be overbearing, visible from far and wide, and are totally out of character with the surrounding townscape. The height of the buildings - the 25 story one in particular - is horribly oppressive and totally out of keeping with the character of the surrounding neighbourhood. It will dominate the skyline for miles around and is of no architectural merit.

As nearly a million people have left London, (FT) then who is going to live in these flats? Who will be able to afford them? It is not certain those who invest in this scheme will reap any rewards given the direction of travel is people LEAVING London, this seems behind the curve of what is going on, on the ground.

Therefore who benefits from this scheme?? Not the local residents, or the people who purchase flats at inflated prices. I can see the council will get more tax without providing infrastructure. The cost will be on people who live here & feel driven out of the area by the daily barrage of planning applications and badly built towerblocks.

As a resident the other side of the Broadway I think the size and height of the development is too large and will have too heavy an impact on the neighbourhood in terms of traffic and population. Given the proposed development of Brent Cross / Staples Corner this will add to the overcrowding - which will come without the necessary schools / doctors surgeries / cultural spaces to make up for it.

It doesn't blend at all with the surrounding buildings and it looks so intensively developed that residents could lean out their windows and shake hands with their neighbours! There is a development further up Cricklewood Lane, I think done by Fairview, which is much more in keeping with existing stock, only 7 floors in the main building and 2 floors in the satellite buildings. Why can't it be more like that? I'm assuming that developers will have to provide parking on site as is usual but what about other infrastructure such as schools and doctors? Are they provided for?

This huge development in the heart of our community will increase traffic and the stress on local services. We note that there are no plans for social housing, dentists, GP surgeries. This area is already overloaded with properties of this type, and we will have more in years to come, if the Brent Cross development comes to fruition. We are totally overpopulated now, there will be no improvement, it seems in other infrastructure, such as transport. We encourage our families to walk to school and any increase in traffic flows and pollution will make this more difficult.

I live locally and access this area every day, whether by car, bus, or walking. And all three modes of transport are adversely affected around Cricklewood Lane. That road is too narrow as it is for the volume and level of traffic - foot and otherwise. A development of this stature will overload this congested area further. How has the highways department Okayed this?

I accept that London needs more homes but this development is UGLY. Surely the architects can be pushed into designing something on a smaller scale and better looking than this travesty!

Also sneaky to use proximity to Cricklewood Station as evidence of good transport links, when it can already be difficult to get on a train during busy times, and buses crawl along through the all-but-stationary traffic. People are leaving London and looking for homes with outside space - these Grenfell-style towers are insane, and will devastate our community, which lacks the resources to cope. It will ruin a lot of peoples lives especially as we are still in a pandemic. We need jobs not for them to be taken away. This is also our local hardware store and has been for years. Its extremely useful and the plans to remove it to build more flats is devastating. This will cause even more road blockages with all the added cars and people in Cricklewood it is not realistic. Its over congested as it is. The traffic is awful and it will only get worse with more flats and people added to this.

There is a lovely van who provides food for workers in the carpark they too would be moved on an its extremely unfair. Please stop only thinking about financial gain and consider the community more. There is much much more to lose with this proposed plans than to gain not mentioning the building would be disproportionate.

Comment: I strongly object to the above planning application for the following reasons:

1. The planned development would become a high rise urban ghetto with all its problems. It would be completely out of keeping with its surrounding area.
2. The additional motorised vehicles (cars, motorcycles, delivery and service vehicles) would cause further congestions and air pollutions in the area, particularly at the entry/exit points on Cricklewood Lane and Cricklewood Broadway.
3. Furthermore, any emergency vehicle (ambulance, fire brigade, police etc.) would be considerably delayed in reaching its destination, thereby be a constant danger to its inhabitants.
4. There does not seem to be any planned provision of nursery, primary and secondary school places for the estimated 1000 - 1500 persons aged 4 - 18 years of age.
5. Likewise there is no mention of medical facilities for the estimated nearly 5000 inhabitants. Indeed the only medical centre on Cricklewood Lane is planned to be closed down due to other developments.
6. This proposed development is ill-conceived and badly planned. If it were to be allowed to proceed it would be disastrous for the district's environment and its population, as well as for the future inhabitants of this proposed urban nightmare.

Comment: I repeat the objection I made to this planning proposal previously. I have lived at 18 Johnston Terrace for over 2 decades. The railway terraces form a unique and peaceful village in the noisy, busyness of the Cricklewood area. The proposed tower blocks will overlook and overshadow the terraces, and largely destroy this very special village atmosphere. They are ugly, overbearing and will block out light. They will also bring large amounts of new car traffic to an already badly congested area, creating more noise and pollution. I have no objection to low rise new buildings in Cricklewood, but these monstrous tower blocks are horrendous, and I, and my family, object to them most strongly.

Comment: I repeat the objection I made to this planning proposal previously. I have lived at 18 Johnston Terrace for over 2 decades. The railway terraces form a unique and peaceful village in the noisy, busy area of the Cricklewood area. The proposed tower blocks will overlook and overshadow the terraces, and largely destroy this very special village atmosphere. They are ugly, overbearing and will block out light. They will also bring large amounts of new car traffic to an already badly congested area, creating more noise and pollution. I have no objection to low rise new buildings in Cricklewood, but these monstrous tower blocks are horrendous, and I, and my family, object to them most strongly.

Comment: I would like to add to the extreme majority of comments to date my objections to the scheme.

The mock up images I've seen look completely ridiculous and out of place to the surrounding buildings. The majority of buildings along the Broadway and surrounding roads are 2-3 storeys high, and so to have blocks of up to 25 storeys is crazy. It will be out of keeping with the area as a whole, and the sheer number of new properties and therefore residents, will put a massive strain on an area that's already heavily congested at the best of times.

There is a great community feel in the area that would be completely shattered.

I appreciate that it would be good for there to be some development in the area, but at a much smaller scale so that it benefits the residents who already live in the area, some of which have lived here for many decades, and doesn't tower over them blocking out light for the vast majority.

Comment: I object to the proposed development at the B and Q site for its density, scale, height and for being entirely out of keeping with the Edwardian/20th century small town nature of the centre of Cricklewood which it will loom over and curse for decades.

No one cares about a bit of design embroidery at the tops of these buildings; the whole mass will be inescapable from every neighbouring street.

The entire plan needs to be halted and reconsidered. No one denies that more housing is needed in London but not in this spot, and not in this fashion.

You fail to take into account the changes local people have experienced during the past 15 months of spending more time near their homes: they appreciate local streets, spaces and amenities that they can experience at a human level, that have grown up by people's endeavour - like local gardens - and not by corporate fiat like mass building sites that will cause more road chaos and filth in the interests of producing a fake town centre where a perfectly decent one already exists.

Although there is a road widening scheme in progress at the moment, the additional traffic load through Cricklewood would be detrimental to the area. It would increase air pollution, in an area where lots of schoolchildren come through. There are not enough local facilities (schools, GP's) to serve this added population. What the area of Cricklewood needs is more green, communal space. Not more concrete, and high rise blocks.

Comment: I would like to object to this planning application on the following grounds:

1. Density of population and living quarters. 1100 households on such a small piece of land is not acceptable especially when there has been no provision for green spaces, environmental benefits.
2. Traffic - currently, without the addition of these households all roads in the surrounding area seem to be at capacity. And although residents are told they are not allowed cars, as no space, what about visitors? Delivery drivers? And public transport is not that great in the area. Trains are busy during normal hours, without the additional surge.
3. Local amenities and facilities - what about GP surgeries? These are all at capacity. Schools? Shops?

And what benefit are the developers providing the overall local community? What investment in local green spaces, or parks are there?

The buildings are also completely out of character for the area, do not add to the town vista. I strongly object and feel that these monstrosities would be extremely damning on the local and wider local community.

As ever there is a lack of fore thought as to the impact of having so many new residents will have on the existing overstretched amenities and services, eg, GP surgeries, schools and I'd like to say parks/green spaces but there aren't any! This road and area is already congested and overcrowded. Whilst the area may benefit from additional housing the scale and design is inappropriate and should be blocked.

There are no benefits to the existing community rather there is a removal of both existing amenities and jobs.

There would be an increase in traffic during the construction and a legacy of constant traffic problems on the already overcrowded roads

The building process will itself be an aggravation to the local residents

The proposal is both out of scale and out of keeping with the area. The suggestion that the project will provide a landmark feature is a poor and hypocritical attempt to justify this over development

There developer does not provide firm commitments to include any facilities and improvements for the local community and does not define the terms of the 'affordable' housing provision

Comment Reasons:

Comment:1. This objection is entered by the Cricklewood Town Team ("CTT") in response to Outline Planning Application reference 20/3564/OUT made by Montreaux Cricklewood Developments Ltd on the 03 August 2020 to redevelop the Broadway Retail Park currently occupied by B&Q and others ("the proposed development") and in light of the further Urban Design Study.

2. Cricklewood Town Team consider that the updated Urban Design Study exacerbates and highlights the concerns raised in our initial objection dated the 9th September 2020. The view of the Town Team is that the proposed development is completely inappropriate and would be a disaster for Cricklewood as it is currently proposed, in particular

It would strip Cricklewood of its character as a low rise and historic community and overwhelm the town centre and the residential neighbourhood.

a. The imposing towers would impact on the natural light in Cricklewood.

b. The proposed works would make Cricklewood severely overcrowded with unsustainable pressure on the already strained public amenities.

c. The Urban Design Plan shows limited if any green space and as such suggests that the development will reduce rather than enhance the already strained capacity in Cricklewood for recreation in green spaces.

3. Cricklewood Town Team would further put on record that it is concerned that the additional consultation period is an attempt to use procedure to minimise the voices of over 1000 objections raised in response to the initial consultation. Residents do not expect to have to reiterate their objections, nor have the council's new letters to residents suggested they need to. It should be noted too that the council has not made the new document easily accessible, instead breaking it into 9 pieces placed on the portal in jumbled sequence, now squeezed in amongst hundreds of comments. While fresh comments reinforce objections, any lack of a second comment must not be taken as any sort of indication that the new Urban Design Study has mitigated an objector's concerns. Cricklewood Town Team expects any planning decisions to fully engage with the strong representations made in opposition to the development from across the community.

Background to CTT

1. CTT works to improve the environment and build a stronger community, alongside residents' associations, community creatives, faith groups, local businesses, statutory partners including the police and Barnet, Brent and Camden councils as well as the voluntary sector. Straddling the junction of three boroughs and three wards CTT works in response to feedback from and surveys of residents, businesses and traders around Cricklewood to create a thriving local economy, increase visitor enjoyment and make a greener cleaner environment and a safe place for all of us - a community where all voices are heard and valued.

1. CTT was responsible for putting forward a bid to the Mayor's Outer London Fund (OLF) in 2012; drawing together a partnership of the 3 boroughs it straddles and Hammerson to support bidding efforts. £2.6m in total was secured from the Mayor's fund and from Barnet and Brent Councils.

CTT served as the glue that held the partnership together as an integral part of the stellar project team assembled to deliver the project, leading the Project Board and the key community engagement. It has continued to both manage and maintain OLF projects and assets, as well as execute the exit strategy and legacy projects.

a. Outcomes included:

b. humanising the Broadway by removing railings from the median strip and replacing them with trees and a town clock

c. widening the Cricklewood Lane pavement by the Green and planting it with trees, turning it into a welcoming space for markets and events and a relief from congestion

d. revamping shopfronts

e. decluttering and relaying pavements

f. the Hollywood-style Cricklewood sign on the Broadway

g. retiling under the Railway bridge with Cricklewood signs on both sides, still regularly and often cleaned voluntarily by residents

2. Since 2010 CTT has staged a wide range of events, from the innovative mobile Town Square festival around Cricklewood to concerts and annual festivals on the Green (which in turn contributed to the recognition and registration of the Green as an Asset of Community Value), plus artistic installations, community-made murals, music, Maypole dancing and Christmas lights switch-ons, against a background of year-round street greening and cleaning. It has also been involved in local developments including:

a. The spectacular enhancement of Cricklewood station, transforming a drab entrance and the station tunnel and platforms into a colourful and welcoming experience with a community garden, dramatic signage, artworks inside and outside the station and lately repainting the bridge itself, in a series of projects and ongoing efforts variously led by CTT, residents associations and schools, in partnership with Govia Thameslink, Argent Related, Barnet Council and Network Rail;

b. the transformation of the Swan Hill - beside the Cricklewood rail bridge - with the efforts of the Community Gardeners and the local artist installing the Swans;

c. and the work done with LB Barnet and TfL to plan the installation of Legible London signposts from the station in 2019.

The Application

3. The application seeks permission for the demolition of existing buildings and the comprehensive phased redevelopment of the site for a mix of uses including up to 1100 residential units, and up to 1200 sqm of flexible commercial and community floorspace in buildings ranging from 3 to 25 storeys along with car and cycle parking landscaping and associated works.

Grounds for Objection

1. CTT welcome improvement of the Cricklewood area but are concerned that the proposed development has fundamental problems and should not be accepted without considerable amendments being made to the proposal.

Ground 1 - Community Character

2. Cricklewood's community character is characterised by housing which is predominantly Victorian and no more than 3 storeys high. If one considers recent developments in the locality one finds only:

- a. the 5-storey Travelodge built at 214-218 Cricklewood Broadway
 - b. A 6- and 8-storey building at 112-132 Cricklewood Lane
 - c. an approved application for a 6-storey development on the Galtymore site, 194-196 Cricklewood Broadway
 - d. an application that has been passed by the planning committee but not yet approved that includes a 9-storey block at 1-13 Cricklewood Lane, described by Barnet planning as "an appropriate height barometer for future development of the neighbouring site"
 - e. an outstanding application for a 7-storey block with 8th-storey protrusions and services, further up the Broadway on the Matalan site.
3. These developments are however outliers and Cricklewood remains a predominantly low-rise locality.
 4. CTT considers it important that any developments respect, retain and contribute to the character of the community rather than fundamentally changing it by overdevelopment of Barnet's small part of it.
 5. CTT is concerned that the proposed development will undermine the work of the last few years by producing a building which will dominate rather than compliment the locality, explicitly creating "maximum impact on people coming through the bridge" and superfluously "help[ing] people find their way around Cricklewood" by overlooking and dominating the entire neighbourhood. The development would be overbearing and diminish the appearance and experience of the streetscene and the wider locality.
1. CTT considers the proposal for very tall buildings, whether 14-, 16- or 25-storey, to be disproportionate and an overwhelming overdevelopment of the proposed site. If approved, such buildings would dominate Cricklewood's social space and locality in a way which would change the identity of Cricklewood in a negative manner.

Ground 2 - public transport

2. CTT notes that trains leaving Cricklewood Station during peak times are crowded to such an extent that it is often impossible to board the scheduled services. Similar issues apply to local bus and tube services.
3. CTT is concerned that the proposed redevelopment will result in a situation where public transport services are overburdened and the quality of service for Cricklewood residents will be reduced.

Comment: I object most strongly to the proposed development. The prospect of 1,100 new dwellings is beyond daunting because of the overwhelming pressure it will add to an already over-capacity infrastructure. The surrounding roads are incredibly congested, the shopping facilities, schools and NHS provision will no doubt be overwhelmed. Please do not flood this congested area with 1,100 more families

a. The spectacular enhancement of Cricklewood station, transforming a drab entrance and the station tunnel and platforms into a colourful and welcoming experience with a community garden, dramatic signage, artworks inside and outside the station and lately repainting the bridge itself, in a series of projects and ongoing efforts variously led by CTT, residents associations and schools, in partnership with Govia Thameslink, Argent Related, Barnet Council and Network Rail;

b. the transformation of the Swan Hill - beside the Cricklewood rail bridge - with the efforts of the Community Gardeners and the local artist installing the Swans;

c. and the work done with LB Barnet and TfL to plan the installation of Legible London signposts from the station in 2019.

The Application

1. The application seeks permission for the demolition of existing buildings and the comprehensive phased redevelopment of the site for a mix of uses including up to 1100 residential units, and up to 1200 sqm of flexible commercial and community floorspace in buildings ranging from 3 to 25 storeys along with car and cycle parking landscaping and associated works.

Grounds for Objection

2. CTT welcome improvement of the Cricklewood area but are concerned that the proposed development has fundamental problems and should not be accepted without considerable amendments being made to the proposal.

Ground 1 - Community Character

3. Cricklewood's community character is characterised by housing which is predominantly Victorian and no more than 3 storeys high. If one considers recent developments in the locality one finds only:

a. the 5-storey Travelodge built at 214-218 Cricklewood Broadway

b. A 6- and 8-storey building at 112-132 Cricklewood Lane

c. an approved application for a 6-storey development on the Galtymore site, 194-196 Cricklewood Broadway

d. an application that has been passed by the planning committee but not yet approved that includes a 9-storey block at 1-13 Cricklewood Lane, described by Barnet planning as "an appropriate height barometer for future development of the neighbouring site"

e. an outstanding application for a 7-storey block with 8th-storey protrusions and services, further up the Broadway on the Matalan site.

4. These developments are however outliers and Cricklewood remains a predominantly low-rise locality.

5. CTT considers it important that any developments respect, retain and contribute to the character of the community rather than fundamentally changing it by overdevelopment of Barnet's small part of it.

6. CTT is concerned that the proposed development will undermine the work of the last few years by producing a building which will dominate rather than compliment the locality, explicitly creating "maximum impact on people coming through the bridge" and superfluously "help[ing] people find their way around Cricklewood" by overlooking and dominating the entire neighbourhood. The development would be overbearing and diminish the appearance and experience of the streetscene and the wider locality.

7. CTT considers the proposal for very tall buildings, whether 14-, 16- or 25-storey, to be disproportionate and an overwhelming overdevelopment of the proposed site. If approved, such buildings would dominate Cricklewood's social space and locality in a way which would change the identity of Cricklewood in a negative manner.

Ground 2 - public transport

5. CTT notes that trains leaving Cricklewood Station during peak times are crowded to such an extent that it is often impossible to board the scheduled services. Similar issues apply to local bus and tube services.

6. CTT is concerned that the proposed redevelopment will result in a situation where public transport services are overburdened and the quality of service for Cricklewood residents will be reduced.

Ground 3 - overcrowding

7. CTT is concerned that the proposed redevelopment will put a strain on already stretched public services. Accessing local medical centres already requires a long wait.

8. Further, Cricklewood Broadway has standing traffic for significant periods of the day. CTT is concerned that the local roads lack the capacity to cater for an increase in vehicles that would come with the proposed development. CTT is concerned about the associated air pollution that would ensue.

Comment: The area is already scruffy and overcrowded, and the traffic is terrible. Schools are overloaded and GP provision is really hard to access effectively. The area is overcrowded and this will make it worse. As well as being high rise buildings totally out of character for the area. Our sewers, public spaces, healthcare, traffic, transport and education services cannot cope with this. Be real. These developments make money for the landowners, developers, the council and the contractors; at the cost of the quality of life of the residents. That is the honest truth.

CTT is concerned that the local roads lack the capacity to cater for an increase in vehicles that would come with the proposed development. CTT is concerned about the associated air pollution that would ensue.

Ground 4 - policy

4. CTT notes that Barnet has housing targets but is concerned that the proposed development fails to have due regard to the need to develop the necessary public services.

5. Cricklewood does not have a dedicated community space. There is no publicly run leisure centre within Cricklewood. It is unfortunate but related that local library provision is poor, with the Childs Hill Library open for very limited hours and staffed by volunteers. There is also a concern that there is insufficient outdoor play space and green community space in the locality. CTT is concerned that the proposed development is not consistent with Barnet's policy of providing sufficient inclusive and integrated community facilities (policy CS10).

6. The police in the local area are overstretched and Cricklewood has had problems with antisocial behaviour in the recent past. CTT is concerned that the creation of excessive housing would worsen this situation by placing a greater strain on local policing (contrary to policy CS12).

1. The Cricklewood Town Team is opposed to an application which has very tall buildings in the town centre. Such a development would:
 - a. Radically alter the character of the locality by creating an overbearing tower block in the heart of Cricklewood and thereby undermine the community feel that has been nurtured over the last decade;
 - b. Risk overwhelming public transport services;
 - c. Stretch already limited community services and facilities and potentially damage social cohesion by forcing local residents to travel elsewhere to access the services that they need.
2. CTT remains committed to making Cricklewood a vibrant and pleasant place to live but consider that the proposed development will not achieve this goal. CTT considers that:
 - d. any plans that are approved must ensure that there is provision for the creation of public spaces which will be usable by the community or improvement of existing public spaces;
 - e. there is sustained funding for community events and spaces;

f. and the quality of life in Cricklewood, in existing properties and in new developments including any development of this site, is not sacrificed in order to achieve quantitative targets.

3. In summary, we object to this proposed development plan because it would make Cricklewood into a high-rise annex of the Brent Cross Regeneration and deprive Cricklewood of its identity as a historic town centre location.

There is nowhere in the are that is over 2 stories high & a close knit community, can well do with out this ugly planning project, that should & can in the centre of BARNET next to your MANY stations & open spaces. Comment: I wish to my objection to this proposed development as strongly as possible. This development is an exercise in squeezing as many abodes as possible onto what is a considerable land space. A better use of the land and lower buildings would be much more suitable.

The number of residences is obscene considering the limited infrastructure of Cricklewood Broadway and surrounding areas.

The newly published "Urban Design Study" is a complete sham. Unashamedly praising the development at every aspect with no information or suggestions as to why it is so good other than the limited perspective that "it looks good".

Cricklewood Broadway is already inundated with construction traffic, HGVs and large load vehicles. There is no infrastructure in place other than the existing cramped roads to deal with this. We have a proposed site at Matalan, along Cricklewood Broadway (opposite the terraces), the Galtimore site as well as traffic from Brent Cross West. I for one do not wish to live in a construction site for the sake of some poorly build flats.

There is also little or no provisions for council housing in this development which is morally oppose in all developments.

Rather than re-generate the area, buildings of this type will make cricklewood even less desirable than it already is. We feel it will block light too and actually we can't see a single benefit other than to line the pockets of the developers. All the talk of affordable housing is rubbish. These developments never benefit anyone except the developers and the council perhaps. I am talking as a resident who had already had to put up with a very ugly building being erected at the end of our garden where the affordable houses cost from 500,000 to 1.2 million. Please don't ruin our area even more.

The roads are already congested, this will do nothing to alleviate the problem. High rise buildings are totally out of keeping with the area and not what residents need or want. I am against this size of development. I may support something smaller that would have less impact on the local area, more specifically the rail station.

The literal size of the development is not in keeping with the local area and would dominate the skyline.

The amount of congestion is already bad and this will make things worse.

Make something smaller and they will probably get more support. Everyone I speak to at the moment is fully against this.

Please don't let this continue as it is. It's simply too big and will put a massive strain on resources.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Whilst I welcome the redevelopment and rejuvenation of the site, the proposal as it stands is entirely unacceptable for the area. There are numerous reasons for this, some as follows:

- it is out of keeping with the architecture of the area. It is an ugly eyesore which will blight the area and will be a white elephant from the moment it is built. Instead, a village feel would be more in keeping with the Victorian nature and it could be carefully integrated to increase the value and appeal of the area;
- it is in no way appropriate for a 25 story building to be built in an area which only accommodates low level buildings;
- Cricklewood and surrounding areas infrastructure will not be able to cope with the additional population: doctors, dentists, transport
- we already have very high crime rates and social issues in this area and without careful consideration to additional community services such as policing and activities for young people, the influx of population will impact this;
- green space needs to be maximised in an area which lacks this;
- the increase in carbon emissions resulting from the increase of population / traffic is not OK in one of the worst areas for air quality.

It's not only completely out of keeping for the area, but all the justifications for this amount of housing on the plot size are completely at odds with the community already living here. There is no way that this development won't cause the area's current facilities and infrastructure to seriously struggle, and the residents to suffer the fall out.

- Request to speak at committee

Comment: We need hundreds of thousands of new homes in London. Cricklewood has fantastic transport links and is in need of new investment. I believe this proposal is absolutely what we should be doing.

The current site is an eyesore and while I'll miss having B&Q nearby the benefits of this site entirely outstrip me having to go further for my occasional trips there.

Densification at this scale is necessary if we are to build at the scale needed whilst protecting the green belt (we should be building on the green belt next to transport hubs).

The proposals will help deliver new public realm and I'm glad to see the 35% affordable housing requirements will be met. Ideally some would be for some form of social or affordable rent rather than Shared Ownership.

My only comment of note would be to enquire what steps will be taken to ensure that steps Barnet will take to ensure delivery of public realm and high quality design once the developer secures outline consent as I hope they do. Speaking from experience this can sometimes fall away. Hopefully there is some kind of design code and steps to ensure approval is sought for substantial changes to the proposals.

Comment: I object to the plans that are grossly out of keeping with the surrounding area, both in terms of the dense footprint and the height (almost nothing close by excess 3 floors). The visuals in a near 360 degree radius would be obliterated.

There is no case given for Cricklewood needing a landmark and neither do these plans support belief that these plans are in fact a landmark and not an eyesore.

The impacts of 1,100 residences are not fully assessed with reliable supportable backup. This is a significant volume on an existing neighbourhood and there are no clear plans to support the burden that would be placed, both in terms of amenities and infrastructure.

In fact the development remove shops that serve the neighbourhood well.

There is a ludicrous idea that cyclists would cross a main road in the A5. As a regular cyclist this would not be my behaviour and only very rarely is this observed at the most busy junctions...this is not a definition I use for in Cricklewood.

There is limited support for the train modelling nor any assessment of the impact on the existing services that have always been heavily loaded at peak times.

It is overbearing, overwhelming and totally out of keeping with the Cricklewood town centre and surrounding neighbourhoods which are made up of two and three story buildings/homes.

First, it will be a total eyesore and totally out of keeping with the area.

Second, it will cause major issues for parking. There are no plans for securing parking for all of the flats so where will they park?? This area is already extremely tight for parking.

Third, the traffic in cricklewood is already horrendous. An increase in population but such a HUGE amount will no doubt increase the horrible traffic there already is.

Finally, the amount of flats is based on pure greed and are never sold at reasonable price. Lies are told with statements such as 'affordable housing' where people are sold a dream and given a tiny box, made poorly for an extortionate price. Build proper homes at reasonable prices for the local people - not for investors.

No social housing is offered and an aspiration to provide the minimum of 35% affordable units does not meet the needs of the community or London.

The tower is described as deserving to be seen. This statement has no real meaning and provides no reassurance for the community that its needs will be met or taken into consideration. The proposed buildings are far too high. Dwarfing neighbouring buildings and dominating the centre of Cricklewood.

The impact on local amenities will be considerable. Doctors in the area are already under pressure.

Comment: Cannot believe, that Barnet council is trying to overwhelm the very edge of Brent with horrendous blocks of old fashioned flats & putting 1,000's of people's on to the already crowded area hundreds of extra cars & all the extra pollution in this almost village feel , we are a great mix of people & have great respect for each other ,this would ruin the area !! With Brent Council pulling out the stops to make us all more healthy,!!&!streets cleaner

BARNET has many more miles in their district plus plenty of train station not to mention OPEN SPACES , this is totally unacceptable for the residents & our air level & cannot see how any thought what so ever with this MAD IDEAR was really thought about " we don't approve of tall money boxes .actually rubbish

Comment: The proposals are a disgrace and show a complete disregard and disrespect for the local community. The buildings are far, far too high and completely out of keeping with the surroundings. It would dominate the horizon for miles around and create wind tunnels and cutting out sunlight. Who wants to live and shop in the dark?

Furthermore, the local infrastructure could not support a development of this size. The surrounding roads are already in gridlock and adding extra cars is simply adding to an existing problem.

The lack of social housing also adds to the perception that the property developers are simply trying to maximise their profits. There is no social awareness or concern for the community. Surely the local authority would be better to approach a housing association to take charge? At least that way Barnet would get a development that would put people first.

Comment: I object to this proposal as I have done in the past and in person to a representative of Montreaux who met with members of the Cricklewood Grove association. This development would completely dwarf all buildings around it, changing the residential character of the neighbourhood irrevocably and turning it into yet another soulless area of London. It does not take into account the effect the increased population would have on transport, traffic, schools etc. The area is already being changed with the Brent Cross extension, which thankfully does not seem to include tower blocks. Cricklewood is a vibrant, international, interesting neighbourhood full of history and lovely old buildings, filled with residents who care about preserving the intrinsic nature of the area. It is not a work in progress that needs to be constantly developed and filled with more residents and chain stores. I understand completely the motivations of Montreux to build taller and bigger buildings to meet housing needs and make a substantial profit, however, the height of the buildings is my main objection. The design needs to be rethought completely. If the development included perhaps a new library, a community centre, a theatre/performing arts space, shops that would include our local shopkeepers and not chain stores, it would be a friendlier proposal to the community. In the drawings, the buildings cast shadows over each other and will certainly be a blight on the landscape for existing Cricklewood residents. I urge Montreux to reconsider these proposals and make them truly community friendly.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The Urban Design Study confirms my view that this scheme is too high, too dense, oppressive and totally wrong for the site. It is at odds not only with older, low-rise Cricklewood but also with the many new blocks of flats planned for the area, which are no higher than 9 storeys. It contravenes Barnet's tall buildings policy and would set a very dangerous precedent for future development.

I support building housing on the B&Q site, but this is an alien monster that completely re-invents Cricklewood's built environment rather than complements or enhances it. The visualisations of Cricklewood Station, Kara Way, the Railway Terraces allotments and the Grove roads are shocking. The 'in-your face' metropolis at the top of Kara Way (the only way into the Railway Terraces) is the antithesis of everything that makes the conservation area special and will harm its historical significance. It will overshadow Kara Way playground, which is currently sunny and open, intrude on the allotments and loom over Campion and Needham Terraces.

Sealing off the entrance/exit for vehicles to Cricklewood Lane will increase traffic on the severely congested Edgware Road. Even if few residents are car users, the number of service vehicles generated by 1,100 flats plus commercial premises will be significant. Add in pedestrians and cyclists cutting through between Cricklewood Broadway and Cricklewood Lane on a cramped shared path through the blocks, and there's a perfect recipe for a death trap.

Supporters should be aware that the green and pleasant scene illustrated is a deception. Outline permission covers only height, massing and means of access. The lavish planting illustrated would not thrive in the shadow and wind tunnels created by extremely tall and tightly packed towers and will never happen.

The grandiose, subjective descriptions of the project insult the intelligence of Cricklewood residents and the idea that we need a 25-storey tower to help us find Cricklewood station is ludicrous

The intensity of the housing is obviously too high for the ground on which it stands and there is little possibility for the people resident on the site to 'escape'. There is no way that such an intensive development can end up as anything but a modernist ghetto attracting the worst characteristics of urban development and living. You will be creating a hell hole from which residents and neighbours will pay dearly for the few decades it remains.

It will reduce light and constrict views, even of the sky, from every point of the compass around it.

There appears to be little, or no, provision of extra facilities for the residents of the new development, let alone the wider community.

Traffic along Cricklewood Lane and the Edgware Road is already at breaking point. This development will add and create more problems.

Environmental considerations appear tokenist, e.g. the developers propose a cycleway through the development, but what does this cycleway link to when it leaves the development...overcrowded roads.

1100 homes means a lot of extra pressure on local services, e.g. bus and rail services, particularly at peak times.

This is a once in a lifetime opportunity to develop a very large site in the centre of Cricklewood for the benefit of the community as a whole. Combining homes with required services such as GP practice/health centre, dentist, leisure facilities and green space. This proposal completely lacks imagination and sensitivity and has no concerns over its impact on its immediate surroundings. It should be wholeheartedly rejected.

Comment:1) Montreaux's new "Urban Design Study" and revised transport assessment have failed to address any of the previously submitted substantial criticisms and valid objections made by myself and more than 95% of respondents. My previous comments, therefore, still stand. The Urban Design Study is effectively a parody of itself; the document lacks meaningful content as it accompanies an outline application. The statement paints a glowing description of a "beneficial" impact to the Cricklewood area that a supposed high-quality development would bring. This is hypothetical as matters such as the design and appearance of the building; the landscaping including open public spaces; the layout including new community facilities, and the scale in terms of the overall size, density, height, width and length, are reserved for future applications and are likely to differ considerably from the "joyful and generously designed" fantasy of the Urban Design Study.

The design statement is an aspiration and appears as a sleight-of-hand, an embellished ploy designed to appeal to planning decision makers. In reality, all that is being requested for in the outline application is an in-principal agreement to a very large, densely populated development that could only be delivered by rabbit hutch flats in over-large and over-tall buildings with no or minimal truly affordable public housing. The images and creative words are purely illustrative. It is just as conceivable that the development would be a different eyesore structure with roughly the same dimensions and no additional facilities.

Comment:2)Whatever the superlative vision of the design descriptions, nothing alters the fact that a development on the scale of the outline application request is out of keeping with the area. Its statements have totally disregarded the concerns expressed in response to the previous version of the planning application. It is essentially puff, e.g. "They recede as accents against the sky, much as the Mosque campanile does. While the apparent scale is compatible with the context, the verticality of the various elements has the campanile as a companion. While the maximum parameters defy the elegance, in their slimmer form and sympathetic materiality, qualities of compatibility with their context and marking of the centre, public landscaped spaces and the station give rise to a moderate impact which is beneficial to the townscape". Given that such matters as scale and design are reserved, this is a trivial diversion. I find the lack of response to previous community objections insults the many previous genuine and thoughtful comments. Nothing can alter the fact that the scale and height proposed are not in keeping with the local 2- and 3-storey buildings. Nothing in the Cricklewood area is anywhere near as tall as this or as dense as this. It is wrong to paint this as an advantage.

Yet again the Urban Design Study sprinkles insubstantial glitter on the proposed development insisting on the "elegance of the tallest building.... that will be a landmark with an "open and generous crown", as if they're doing existing Cricklewood residents a favour. However, there's no justifying height and bulk like that in Cricklewood. It is completely out of scale with the neighbourhood. Its extraordinarily high-density would overwhelm the centre of Cricklewood, looming not only above its nearest neighbours in Barnet but all the Brent and Camden residents of Cricklewood.

The buildings in Cricklewood are no more than 5 storeys high. To suggest tower blocks of up to 25 storeys is ludicrous. This area is made up of Victoria / Edwardian type buildings. An ugly monstrosity is not needed or wanted in this area, to call it a landmark is ridiculous. We have clear signage and no need for a huge blot on the landscape. Cramming thousands of dwellings into an already densely crowded area will put a strain on transport, GP surgeries, schools etc. not to mention the pollution from even more traffic. There are already plans for more housing etc. at Brent Cross, we do not have the infrastructure to deal with more. Please give serious consideration to the residents of Cricklewood and refuse this development. Thank you.

Comment:3) Residents of Cricklewood pointed out that such a high density would stress local facilities and infrastructure to breaking point. The additional documents in presenting a glossy hypothetical high specification development do nothing to address any of the issues raised. It is proposed that there will be 110 parking places, with 33 will for people with disabilities, for the proposed 1100 flats (an adult population of 2000 - 3000 people). It doesn't say how the non-disabled places will be allocated. They might go with the most expensive flats, creating second class citizens or maybe there will be bidding wars and high costs for sublet parking spaces. Residents of that development will be told they can't park on the neighbouring streets. However, it is likely to lead to illegal parking; illegal trading of council residential and commercial parking permits spaces and parking on pavements and across driveways. For pedestrians, the assessment says the pavements under the railway bridge may need barriers. It doesn't say how people will squeeze through if there are barriers. The pavement by the rail station going towards bus-stops on Claremont Road and Cricklewood Lane have already been narrowed by Barnet Council and would not cope with adding around 3,000 more people into the area. On the scheme itself the poor design of pathways has pedestrians and cyclists competing for space and is thus hazardous. It says it's a good area for cycling, but then shows bad scores for Healthy Streets. It says that - "Crossing Cricklewood Broadway presents safety concerns for cyclists and it is likely that most will dismount and use the pedestrian-crossing," thus creating competition for and over-crowding of the limited pavement space.

Comment:4.

The assessment suggests that the welcome-pack for new residents would explain optimal cycle routes but there's no realistic long-term commitment to helping and encouraging people in the development to cycle and there is no understanding that the mobility needs of residents will change as they get older and patterns of vehicle use will alter.

The assessment admits the developers got their rail assessment substantially wrong, thinking there were 12 trains into London every hour and, they had greater (i.e. 12 coach) capacity. The figure for additional train use has been revised to merely 88 passengers travelling during peak hours. This figure is unrealistically low and appears designed to lower payments to Barnet for infrastructure.

Conclusion

Nothing in the document addresses the real concerns that a development of this scale will put insurmountable pressure on local facilities and infrastructure, including transport, schools, GP and dental services. I urge Barnet Council to refuse planning permission for the redevelopment.

Comment: I strongly object to the proposed development. The area is already highly populated and very busy, the Chichele Road/Cricklewood Br & Cricklewood Lane between Cricklewood Br and Claremont Rd are constantly jammed. Walking kids to school every day along these streets is a nightmare. It's loud, stinking and polluted already. Bringing new flats with new cars to the site will make this much worse (if it's even possible it's so bad already). Pavement under the Cricklewood station bridge up is so narrow that you have to walk in line with the kids. During peak time it's impossible to pass through. Where the bike racks are put next to the station, you can't pass through with the buggy if the bikes are left at the racks. Clearly this whole development will discriminate against women again as the women are the ones mostly doing school runs and walking with buggies and kids on scooters.

Besides the availability of the Coop, the Polish shop next to it, the B&Q and the Poundland makes the area much more attractive and is very convenient to local community and especially to families without cars who cannot travel far to do shopping.

The trains at Cricklewood station between 8 and 9am are so packed that you usually can't get in and have to wait for the next one.

And last but not least, these huge tower blocks do not suit the area at all. They are HUGE.

All the benefits of this development you have listed must have been done by someone who has actually never been to the area as none of them is true nor realistic.

Comment: I strongly object to this application.

The application seeks to justify excessive height, massing and density by claiming the proposal solves trivial or non-existent problems.

Repeatedly, the 25-storey tower is described as an aid to wayfinding and legibility. No evidence is presented that people are having trouble finding their way.

The application makes much of providing a public pedestrian and cycling route between Depot Approach and Cricklewood Lane. However, it would not serve pedestrians coming to or from the Railway Terraces via Kara Way; that route is already blocked at Kara Way.

- It would not serve cyclists travelling between Cricklewood Lane and the A5 junction with Depot Approach.

The application criticises Cricklewood for not having a library or a town hall, but does not say it will rectify this or offer any other community facilities, with the exception of public access to the spaces between building plots. It calls one of these spaces a Town Square, though it would sit apart from the roads, and shows it with a brightly lit cinema or advertising screen shining into the windows of the residents across Cricklewood Lane (no assessment of this impact is offered).

The developers have no clear ideas on how the ground-floor commercial spaces would be used, and no strategy for encouraging appropriate uses, let alone allocation to develop the community. There is no policy to ensure they are let and do not remain empty as at nearby Fellows Square.

No social housing is offered and there is only an "aspiration" to provide the minimum of 35% "affordable" units. This fails to meet London's needs and it fails to meet the needs of our community.

The statement of community engagement makes it clear that the developers have not consulted Cricklewood residents so that our views will be taken into account. The statement ends with a brief series of rejections of every criticism.

For all these reasons the plan should be REJECTED.

If there was one child in half of the units on offer, there would be 550 extra children that would need to be accommodated in the current schools in the area; Will the local authority be increase class sizes to accommodate them, or will they be building new schools?

The traffic will also be worse than it is now with the addition of 1100 new families.

I think the development needs to be scaled down - a 25 storey block in Cricklewood? I don't think so. We can't have developers/accountants determining the building density.

During the construction, because of the relatively narrow roads in the immediate area, there will be a huge amount of traffic congestion which will make access over a wide area difficult. The air pollution will be enormous.

The services needed by such a large increase in people in the area are not available and haven't been planned. There will be a need for GP practices, schools and different utilitarian services.

The change of use of Cricklewood Station from passengers to freight will affect a large number of travellers and commuters. The Brent Cross West station will be difficult and very inconvenient for many regular users as people come from a wide area by bus and foot to commute daily. Older and disabled people will find it very difficult to get there.

I object strongly to the 25 storey tower and other high rise buildings included in this development. The shadow calculations for this development have shown that there will be a loss of light that stretches as far as Hampstead. As the sun moves during the day, hundreds of local gardens will be deprived of their sunlight. This would include my property and would greatly affect the enjoyment of my garden which I have had for 40+ years.

I also strongly object to these towers as they are totally out of keeping with the surrounding Victorian architecture. They will dwarf the surrounding historic terraces and show no respect for the architectural heritage of the area whatsoever. Shame on whoever designed these plans!

Whilst traffic improvements are currently being undertaken at the junction of Cricklewood Lane and Cricklewood Broadway, there will still be an increase in traffic and pollution from this development.

The buildings are too high and crowded with too many units crammed into the small space. Whilst it is appreciated that more residential property is required, this can be achieved by having better architecturally designed and lower rise buildings with fewer units. This will turn Cricklewood into another overly urbanised area lacking character, less distinguished and 'passing by' area.

I strongly oppose this development which will set back our neighbourhood for years to come. It will bring pressure to the local facilities and transport infrastructure. It will simply add next to nothing but take away a lot.

Comment: I write on behalf of the Railway Terraces' Residents Association which represents some 250 households. A recent planning application for a concrete batching plant by Capital Concrete on land immediately north of the Cricklewood Railway Terraces Conservation Area was rejected by Barnet's planning committee because:-

"The proposed development would cause harm to the setting of the adjacent Cricklewood Railway Terraces Conservation Area and would not preserve or enhance the character and appearance of that Conservation Area contrary to Policy

7.8 of the London Plan (2016), Policy CS5 of the Barnet Local Plan Core Strategy DPD (September 2012), and Policy DM06 of the Barnet Local Plan Development Management Policies DPD (September 2012)."

The proposed development by Montreaux of the B&Q site is EVEN CLOSER to the terraces than the application by Capital Concrete and would most certainly cause harm to the setting of the Cricklewood Railway Terraces Conservation Area and would CERTAINLY NOT preserve or enhance its character or appearance. We therefore strongly request that this application be rejected on these same grounds, as well as for all the many other reasons given by the people of Cricklewood.

I also confirm that the earlier objections lodged by the Railway Terraces Residents Association still stand. The CGIs recently uploaded by Montreaux only served to confirm and reinforce these objections.

The impact on houses in Claremont Road and The Groves will be dreadful, tower blocks looming over them, overbearing, loss of light and loss of skyline. The development is completely out of keeping with Cricklewood's low rise Victorian buildings and equally out of keeping with the new modern ones that have been recently approved, all of which are much lower.

It is also unacceptable that the outlook for children using the Kara Way playground will be dominated by huge, overbearing tower blocks. Children need to see the sky!

The NorthWestTwo Residents' Association (see objection lodged by Ben Tansley) has carried out a detailed analysis of the latest documents uploaded by Montreaux. Our association fully endorses all comments made by Ben Tansley

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Proposals of this scale have no rationale or fit with the local community, in several aspects including:

- Schooling: nursery, primary, and secondary school places are already stretched, and will be under even more intense pressure with the level of new housing proposed.
- Medical: likewise, local medical services including GPs, hospitals, dentists, and opticians are also already very stretched and will be unable to cope with the new pressures of this housing development.
- Transport: local transport services, even with the new Brent Cross station, are already at breaking point; and with current budget resource constraints for TFL will only get worse with extra housing pressure.
- Environment: housing at this scale will cause significant environmental harm during construction and add to pressures once all the people move in.
- Community facilities: there is already a severe lack of adequate facilities including libraries, play spaces, halls, and sports; all of which will be under even more pressure.
- Size and scale: it is completely out of character and unnecessary to build so high in an area that just isn't like that, and will be visual pollution for thousands of local householders and residents.

There are also several other regeneration proposals for this area including Brent Cross Partnership (over 6,000 new homes), at the old Galtymore site on Cricklewood Broadway, Hassop Road on Cricklewood Broadway, the Matalan site, and further up Edgware Road with several new housing developments. All of these combined with the B&Q will make the local area unliveable in practical terms.

Yes there is a need for local housing, especially affordable. But the current proposals are ill thought through, will cause harm and damage, and are not needed.

Therefore, please reject this proposal and force the developers to come up with something so much more sensible, practical, and appropriate for the local community.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I wish to add to my previous objections last year on behalf of constituents in The adjacent Fortune Green Ward in Camden.

The new Urban Design Study which repeatedly tells us how elegant these proposals are, simply reinforces the overbearing nature of these huge blocks which will dominate over our discreet Victorian terraces for miles around. The harm it will do to our suburban environment is incalculable. The overshadowing both metaphorically and literally will destroy our local environment.

Overall the language used in this design study is sheer fantasy - with so many recorded objection - how could it ever be described as "joyous" or "celebratory"? "Generous" it may be - but to whom? Not to its neighbours certainly and probably not even to its future residents!

Likewise, to quote the local residents Association, "Twenty times the study speaks of a "landmark". It never establishes any need for a landmark or explains how one would benefit Cricklewood. Neither the centre of Cricklewood nor the railway station are hard to find; the centre is a simple crossroads on the A5, the station is signposted from there and elsewhere, and the area provide with Legible London signage. There's no evidence that large numbers of people are struggling to find their way to either one. A landmark is hardly necessary.

I cannot see that these updated design proposals add anything to ameliorate the concerns of the hundreds of objectors, and, do not begin to address our previous concerns about the paucity of green space and facilities (schools, doctors etc) not the potentially disastrous effect on local traffic. My original objections are hereby confirmed and strengthened.

The shadow calculations for this development have shown that there will be a loss of light that stretches as far as Hampstead. As the sun moves during the day, hundreds of local gardens will be deprived of their sunlight. This would include my property and would greatly affect the enjoyment of my garden.

I also strongly object to these towers as they are totally out of keeping with the surrounding Victorian & Edwardian architecture. They will dwarf the surrounding historic terraces and show no respect for the architectural heritage of the area whatsoever.

Are we to believe that the high street will become unnecessary as it will not have the space to provide the necessary services. The A5 is one of the main routes to Wembley which pre pandemic was already severely congested. The idea of a 15 minute neighbourhood should include all the services that local people require where will they be situated or is this for properties to be left empty or AirBB for Wembley events. The heart is now being ripped out of this community and further up in Hendon we are also subject to the same situation where are these people to socialise? or is that now off limits as covid has kept us all inside.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I am writing to object to the proposed development at the B&Q site.

- 1) The size, height and density of the proposed buildings for the site are out of character for the area where buildings are mainly of 2-3 storeys. A 25-storey building would have a negative impact on and damage the character of the area.
- 2) There is no provision of social housing.
- 3) The proposed development contravenes Barnet Council's own policy on tall buildings.
- 4) Local services are currently under severe strain. GP surgeries within the area are already full and would not be able to accommodate the additional number of residents. Schools, dentists, train services and other local services will also be affected. The proposed development does not address these issues.
- 5) The developers propose 110 parking spaces for the 1100 flats. Where will the new residents park? Presumably on the congested streets of Cricklewood.
- 6) Roads in the area are already congested. Traffic at the A5-Cricklewood Lane junction is often at a standstill. Additional residents would add to the congestion and to pollution in the area, making life unbearable to existing residents.

While I appreciate that we need housing, I strongly object to this development. It is too dense with buildings that are too high for the area and additional residents will have a negative impact on the area as described above.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The absurdities of the revised pitch by the Montreaux spin doctors made me laugh (but not in a good way). Rose-tinted words do not prove that black is white.

As an example, the summary paragraph includes, "Its joyful and generously designed top adds meaning and richness to the vistas and glimpses above existing buildings in a celebratory and thoughtful way."; straight from a cheap television advert and without adequately supporting its assertions elsewhere.

As before, the important issues include:

- 25 storey blocks of flats are entirely out of keeping with the 2 to 3 storey buildings in Victorian Cricklewood, and will dominate the area for miles around. The developers bizarrely appear to flaunt this incompatibility.
- there is nil affordable social housing.
- there is totally inadequate parking (110 parking spaces for 1100 units), and vehicles would be displaced onto the streets of Cricklewood.
- traffic at the Cricklewood Lane/A5 crossroads is already at a standstill during peak hours. How the developers intend to remedy this is not explained.
- bus services are already often delayed or suspended crossing the A5 during peak hours. This excessive development has the power to bring services to a standstill.
- the developers have accounted inadequately for the increased number of rail commuters, and the near exponential growth in numbers of walkers and cyclists in Cricklewood.

- Overall, the development would lead to a huge increase in pollution from an already excessive level.
- the developers have not accounted for the massive increase in demand for schools and health care facilities.
- the developers have not adequately explained fire protection resources to be installed in up to 25 storey buildings, nor how the local fire service is to be equipped to cope with emergencies.

For the above reasons I object to the Montreaux proposals. Although not in keeping with the locale and a strain on local resources, personally I would somewhat reluctantly accede to the provision of up to ten storey accommodation, which would provide less stress on the area than the published development proposal. However, this would be unlikely to provide such a windfall for the developers and their associates.

The planning committee recently rejected the planning application for a concrete batching plant at the north end of the group of railway terraces where I live. One of the reasons was that it would neither preserve nor enhance the character appearance of our Conservation Area. If this development goes ahead, it will loom above the cottages at the south end and destroy the views out for all terrace residents, dominating the skyline, arguable more so than the concrete batching plant would have done and certainly neither preserving or enhancing the character appearance of our community. I therefore request that the planning committee similarly reject this application.

Comment: Dear Planning Committee

I write to you to express my and my family's deepest frustration about the proposed development. Year on year our area has been subject to large developments without any off-set and increased road and parking spaces to accommodate the increased number of residents.

A member of our family suffers from COPD and I would like to use this opportunity to held the committee and the London Mayor personally responsible for the worsening of their condition if this proposed development goes ahead.

We will be subject to years of increased traffic, pollution and noise whilst these buildings being build and after that once the huge influx of residents moves in.

The surrounding area was also a subject to non-traffic neighbourhood schemes which increased the number of idling cars just in front of our house by hundreds if not thousands.

The area is also high crime spot and with increased social housing provided by this development no wonder the number of murders, muggings and other crimes will also raise.

We haven't seen anything positive from the council recently, only high level of crime, yellow traffic boxes and roads full with potholes.

I consider this development to be anti-social, anti-local and absolutely not blending with any of the local surroundings.

The Council purpose is to create good environment for its residents but instead we are getting years of misery.

In the light of all of the above I and my household object this development.

Your Sincerely

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The "elegant" and "generous" Urban Design Study (it uses these words multiply with no justification other than subjectivity) is an example of poorly explained creativity. The "landmark" (20 mentions) effect never explains why this is not just a disproportionately large building; the term "eyesore" would fit far more appropriately. The report misleadingly terms itself "independent" whereas it was commissioned by the planning permission applicant; this is wilfully misleading.

In reality, the Urban Design Study is purely hypothetical in matters such as the design and appearance of the building, the landscaping including open public spaces, the layout including new community facilities and, the scale in terms of the overall size, density, height, width and length. As it accompanies an outline application, such matters are "reserved" for future applications and are allowed to eventually differ considerably from the "joyful and generously designed" Urban Design Study.

The Transport Assessment is unbelievable in its estimate of only 88 passengers travelling south by train in the morning peak hour. This development will surely be sold to its 2 to 3 thousand adult residents substantially on its transport links, with the Thameslink station being the prime example. It also fails to assess the impact of cycle users on local traffic and pedestrians, or the likely experience of cycle users. There is no justification of the claim that cycle users will wheel their bikes across the Cricklewood Broadway junction, thus avoiding both evaluating the impact of cycle users on traffic there and avoiding the extra challenge to pedestrians at that junction. I am unaware of cyclist currently dismounting for the existing junction or for similar junctions. Over-optimistic, biased conjecture cannot be presented as evidential.

Comment: I strongly object this proposal due to the number of people that will lose their jobs as well as the drastic effect this proposal will have on the environment. Finally, I would like to say that I will be very disappointed if this proposal goes ahead as I am a frequent customer at my local B&Q and I wouldn't want to travel a long distance to do my shopping there.

'Joyous'? 'Celebratory'? 'Generous'?..... Only to those lining their pockets off the back of the wholesale destruction of the local area in the face of a chorus of horror and disapproval from its residents.

For Cricklewood, 'catastrophic' would be closer to the mark. Who in their right mind could genuinely think otherwise?

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The redevelopment of this site by an offshore developer has nothing to do with a genuine attempt to increase useable and affordable housing for the local area and people resident in London. It has everything to do with providing safety deposit boxes (or glorified hotel rooms) for overseas investors of dubious origin. In addition the local authority is attempting to satisfy its meaningless housing targets by over developing the more urban areas of the borough leaving the leafier areas blight free (its no coincidence that the local ward is not (thank God) a supporter of the current regime). The Uglification of London is well under way.

Areas of concern have been covered by many of the excellent contributions already made.

Briefly:-

1. The number of towers on the site is not in keeping with the local area creating dark shadows over the nearby landscape and adjoining blocks.
2. Local services including, Health & Transport are already overstretched.
3. Pollution levels are already high along Cricklewood Lane & Cricklewood Broadway.
4. There are no significant Green Walls within the development which demonstrates an unimaginative off the shelf make a profit and run mentality. How very Conservative How very Brexit.

I suspect the well meaning comments and convictions outlined in all the objections will at least serve as an historic record of the fast paced monetization of local assets and democracy benefitting a small unseen group wholly unconnected to the local area and quite possibly the UK.

I hope the members of the planning committee have sufficient integrity to implement the wishes of the local residents & reject this application.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: We wish to add to our objections of 5th October and 14th October 2020 and the objections made by our members and fellow-residents then and recently.

The new Urban Design Study reinforces our concerns and demonstrates their validity. The windows, balconies and other details make the scale of the proposed buildings clearer and the disproportionate and overwhelming scale of the proposal more vivid.

The images achieve this even though compression into a small picture easily scanned by the human eye doesn't reflect the lived experience of seeing buildings from the ground, where the human eye and brain will not frame the view of the development with - as for example in the picture from Ashford Road, or those from Elm Grove and Oak Grove - nearby buildings on the left and right of our position. Councillors deciding on this application should see these pictures but should see them without such framing.

The images also make clear the poor quality of the proposed accommodation. The view from Lichfield Road above Cricklewood Station is particularly clear on this. The wide south-east face of each block (the 25-storey tower excepted) is deep in the shadow of the block beside it, even in the middle of the day. The overhead view, with stark shadows cast by a sun unusually high in the west, brings this out again.

The text of the Urban Design Study repeatedly praises the development with little or no explanation for its effusiveness. It makes aesthetic judgments without explaining or supporting them. It asserts, repeatedly, that the development has elegance (more elegant outline (twice), elegant proportions, elegant form, the elegance of each, elegant form and materiality, the elegance and crowning feature of the highest building, contribute to its elegance, the elegance and crowning detail, the building's elegance and meaning, increased in its elegance) without ever explaining the basis of that judgment.

Likewise, the study uses "generous" or "generously" seven times without any explanation, let alone an indication of what's being generously given. The summary paragraph states that the development "has the right to be visible", though the idea that a building has moral rights is nowhere argued and utterly novel, and ends "Its joyful and generously designed top adds meaning and richness to the vistas and glimpses above existing buildings in a celebratory and thoughtful way." Nowhere does the study explain what is joyful about the top or how the designers were generous, or what meaning it adds to vistas or how obtruding into views adds richness. It minimises the extreme visibility of the development by talking of glimpses, and then introduces the idea that it celebrates something, without saying what or how, and does so in a thoughtful way, without ever explaining what it is thinking.

Twenty times the study speaks of a "landmark". It never establishes any need for a landmark or explains how one would benefit Cricklewood. Neither the centre of Cricklewood nor the railway station are hard to find; the centre is a simple crossroads on the A5, the station is signposted from there and elsewhere, and the area provide with Legible London signage. There's no evidence that large numbers of people are struggling to find their way to either one from miles around, or that either one, once found, would be so easily forgotten that we need a marker visible all day, every day from miles around. In an early discussion, the architect remarked on how good the view would be for tower residents and was discomfited to be reminded this meant that it would be visible from far around. The attempt to justify this visibility as providing a landmark is entirely inadequate and self-serving, and the repeated assertions don't make it any more valid.

The report begins by saying it "provides an independent design assessment". Later in that paragraph, we read that the consultancy "has been commissioned independently by Montreaux Cricklewood Developments Ltd ('the applicant')". It is thus not at all independent of the applicant and as we've seen, it can hardly be called an assessment; it's a string of unsupported assertions using repetitive and frequently irrelevant terms, and once the absurd claim that the entire development is beneficial simply because it replaces a carpark. Indeed, it repeatedly claims that its assertions show the effect of the development to be beneficial, but instead it demonstrates repeatedly that the authors lack the ability to make that assessment or substantiate it.

For these reasons, we object not only to the application but to any reliance being placed, in assessing the application, on the claims made in this "Urban Design Study" or on any of its conclusions.

The revised Transport Assessment placed on Barnet's planning portal in April not only has flaws but also reveals flaws in the application.

The estimate of 88 passengers travelling south by train in the morning peak hour is one example. On the one hand, it undermines the case for placing a very large development beside a station if only 88 commuters from 1100 residential units use trains to go into town. On the other hand, it is very weakly founded, guessing that two-thirds of commuters will be southbound with no evidence, and avoiding evaluating the impact of those commuters on train crowding, with neither statistics for train crowding nor recognition of the lived experience of commuters that already trains are often too crowded at Cricklewood for anyone to board. The covering letter suggests that the 88-passenger "result" "will inform any further discussions regarding CIL payments or S106 contributions." There is no indication how CIL or S106 funds could be used to alleviate overcrowding on trains, so this seems an entirely irrelevant suggestion designed to avoid the problems being taken into consideration when considering whether the application should be approved.

The assessment also avoids evaluating the impact of cycle users on local traffic and pedestrians, or the likely experience of cycle users. It asserts that cycle users will be so intimidated by the nearby junction with the A5 Cricklewood Broadway that they will wheel their bikes across, and so avoids evaluating the impact of cycle users on traffic there. If this was credible, then it would be necessary to evaluate the impact of many cycle users wheeling bicycles on busy pavements round corners, across pedestrian crossings and through torturous fenced pedestrian islands, continually obstructing and in conflict with pedestrians. It is however not credible; this is not the observed behaviour of cycle users in London nor how new generations are taught to use the roads in their school Bikeability courses. Rather, the Transport Assessment needed to evaluate on-road cycle movements.

Meanwhile the claim that the A5 is too intimidating is then ignored in calculating the area in easy reach, which does not factor in time spent wheeling across the road through pedestrians and negotiating the various phases of traffic lights, nor consider what would be in easy reach of cycle users if they fear to ride along the A5.

The assessment also neglects to assess cycle use of the supposed public benefit of narrow unsegregated shared-use paths through the development. If levels are to be high enough to constitute a public benefit, how will those users interact with pedestrians in the development and how will conflict be managed? How will they access Cricklewood Lane, and how will speeds of cycle users dropping from the development to Cricklewood Lane be managed without obstructing free movement of pedestrians and significant numbers of cycle users? Or will the combination of climbs into the development, narrow paths, obstacles and conflicts with pedestrians deter cycle users and render any public benefit insignificant?

Evaluation of pedestrian movements is similarly flawed and lacks consideration of interdependencies. The pedestrian isochrones assume all pedestrians can walk in every direction at the same uniform speed, with no delay at busy roads, and in straight lines across railways and through buildings. Routes are often evaluated as at current levels of usage rather than the increased levels following development. We see, for example, no estimate of the increased numbers passing under the Cricklewood Lane bridge to access trains, buses, schools and other destinations, but we do see an acknowledgment of that route's restricted with a suggestion that barriers might be required under the bridge, not accompanied by any estimate of how those would affect pedestrians or road users with regards to congestion or journey times, let alone wellbeing.

In short, this assessment fails in many ways to evaluate the effect of the development and its residents on the movements of either the current working and residential population of Cricklewood or the new residents themselves. The evaluations it does make show serious problems and its omissions signify more.

In about two weeks, this new consultation has attracted another 500 objections, some reinforcing their previous objections and some new. There is no good reason to discount any earlier objections and Barnet Council has given no indication that it might. In particular, the empty phrases of the Urban Design Study do not provide any basis on which to discount objections. Rather, they make it more starkly obvious that the harm this overwhelming and excessively intense development would cause cannot be justified.

The CGI representation only confirms the overbearing nature of the development, which is far too high and dense in the context of the locale.

As a resident in the neighbouring Railway Terraces conservation area, I believe that we will be dominated by this development, which will cut out light and views to the East. It is absolutely out of scale with any buildings in the area.

The traffic in Cricklewood is bad enough at the moment, my road is very busy and we don't need traffic levels to rise, also for safety! Everyone takes a short cut to avoid the Broadway traffic lights and come up my road, it would be a nightmare with all these cars crossing over the other side of the road! I also don't appreciate the fact of being overlooked, especially when I am in the garden, they have recently built an ugly building overlooking the back of my garden, plus we have Ashford Court overlooking us, how much more do we have to put up with? I want my privacy! Plus we are going to be deprived of light! You can't have that monstrosity in an area full of small houses! Also it's very hard to park in our road, and this is going to make it even worse! I have grandchildren who come to visit and I am concerned about their safety, as I have already suffered the loss of my cat killed by a runaway car in the road! Please leave Cricklewood the way it is, it's already gone through a lot of changes in the last few years, and all for the worst!

Comment: My previous objections to this application still stand. The CGIs uploaded by the developer on Barnet's planning portal only confirmed my views that this development would be a disaster. I live in the Cricklewood Railway Terraces Conservation Area. The impact the development will have on our homes, our allotments and the Kara Way playground will be catastrophic. Kara Way is also the only vehicular entrance to our conservation area. What a hideous sight will greet people as they arrive in our conservation area made up of small historic cottages. Towering skyscrapers that might be appropriate in central London but would dwarf our cottages. There is no place for tower blocks in London suburbs, let alone Cricklewood!

I refer you to the planning application for a concrete batching plant on land north of the Terraces and suggest that these same reasons are used to reject this application. The reasons for rejection were:

"The proposed development would cause harm to the setting of the adjacent Cricklewood Railway Terraces Conservation Area and would not preserve or enhance the character and appearance of that Conservation Area contrary to Policy 7.8 of the London Plan (2016), Policy CS5 of the Barnet Local Plan Core Strategy DPD (September 2012), and Policy DM06 of the Barnet Local Plan Development Management Policies DPD (September 2012)."

The Montreaux development is even closer so will have a far worse impact on the terraces and will do nothing to preserve or enhance its character or appearance.

I am concerned about the impact on Cricklewood in general and not just in the Railway Terraces where I live. Tower blocks are not wanted - the planning committee needs to take heed of the many objections posted about this development and reject it. Local residents are stakeholders, not nuisances to be ignored.

I agree with the Railway Terraces Residents Association's objections and with the comments posted by Ben Tansley for the NorthWestTwo Residents' Association. If the London Mayor is minded to support this scheme, the people of Cricklewood and the residents of the Railway Terraces will let him know why he should not do so!

Barnet needs to be brave and Say No Now! CUT THE SCHEME BY HALF and you may be surprised to receive support instead of objections!

Transport is already at a standstill at peak times in the area.

The high rise nature of the development and the large number of towers is completely out of character with the surrounding area which is predominately 2/3 storey Victorian.

The towers will adversely affect the area impacting visually creating shadow and imposing on privacy.

The development offers nothing to the people of Cricklewood but big returns to the developers.

It basically shouldn't be allowed at this scale, it's just common sense that the buildings are too large and too dense.

The current infrastructure around cricklewood cannot cope with the existing residences. The amount of houses that have been turn into HMOs over the years, Heavy traffic, electrical supply issues and sewage drainage that are at the maximum. (in fact I was told once the drains go upstream to hendon)

I'm hoping that Barnet council do the right thing and only agree a development that supports a low rise neighbour that creates community and is in keeping with cricklewoods history and the current housing that surrounds it.

This combined with the provision of suitable health care provision. Should the planning committee approve this plan it would show that they have no understanding of the current lack of educational and health care in the area.

Having said the above, with the significant reduction in the population of London in the last year and more people planning to move out, what is the genuine need for 1100 properties in the area when there is also significant amount of similar projects in the area. Has there been any consultation with Camden and Brent as the three Boroughs all meet within a few hundred metres. There is no evidence of this. All this project will lead to is social deprivation in the area and Barnet tax payers will have to pick up the costs.

The first comment must be the extreme height of some of the development, up to 25 stories. This is higher than any other buildings nearby and will completely dominate the skyline. It does not fit with the historic look of the area. The second grounds for opposition is any development that introduces additional population that require transport links, education, health provision and green space that is infrastructure to sustain it.

Comment: I would be grateful if my objections to the original planning application for this development could be considered in full in the context of this updated application.

In addition - having looked at the CGIs within the new Urban Design Study, I am more convinced than ever that my very serious concerns about this development - and those of many, many more local residents - are more than justified. The CGIs amply demonstrate that it is completely out of scale and keeping with the surrounding area - too tall, too dense, essentially just too big.

As a resident of the neighbouring Railway Terraces Conservation Area, I am extremely concerned about the development's stark and imposing intrusiveness from many parts of the Terraces, including the playground, the allotments, Kara Way, Needham and Campion Terraces, and indeed Midland Terrace where my own family's privacy will be overlooked and overshadowed by the new high rise blocks.

The developers say that the blocks won't be visible from some parts of the Conservation Area. They completely miss the essential point that this is not just an "area" but a closely knit community, and what affects any part of it affects us all.

Comment: As a secondary school teacher who lives in the Railway Terraces but has to travel every day to work, I face daily gridlock on all sides, no matter what routes I take.

Have the latest developments taken into account the needs of workers like myself who have no option but to drive (I work in Harrow and there are no direct links from Cricklewood AND I have piles of marking to take with me every day)?

As a resident, I also strongly object.

What I cherish of my time off school in the weekends when I am not marking, is to walk around a friendly neighbourhood.

The arrival of these horrible tower blocks are intimidating.

I fail to understand the sheer scale of the development. In my daily drive to Harrow (and I take multiple routes), I have never encountered such a high development and so very much out of proportion to the low-rise area.

I see little justification for any building above eight storeys, let alone the unfathomable 25 storeys being proposed.

Desist, please, in the name of our local neighbourhood, our key workers, our children!

The entire area will be affected, traffic, infrastructure loss of history and strong community spirit. It would become another high rise blot on the landscape. We have already seen the effect the high rise flats built on the Edgware Road at West Hendon and Colindale has affected communities there and increased traffic, anti social behaviour etc. Please consider the overall ramifications of this proposal which is purely to make money for greedy developers and has no benefit to local people.

Let us consider transport. The Edgware Road /Cricklewood Broadway are the main artery for this part of North London and are already at full capacity. A bus journey is a slow business. In addition East/ West cross roads do not exist apart fro Cricklewood Lane and Mill Lane. There are no cross links North of this site. All traffic must use Cricklewood Lane. Why the load extra density into this congested area? Agreed there is Cricklewood station which is to be upgraded but this important commuter line is already at full capacity at rush hour. Some of these new residents will also require vans or cars for their trades. This will add impossible pressure to traffic.

I have objected to this planning proposal before. The important thing that 90% of objections focused on was the height of the buildings. What has actually changed on this new proposal? In what way have residents' objections been listened to and addressed? The main point is being completely ignored.

The buildings are disgustingly tall, and will loom over several surrounding residential areas, peoples' gardens, windows etc. Most definitely including mine in Campion Terrace. I will be able to see it from my garden, my bathroom and bedroom windows.. it will significantly block the morning sunlight into the gardens and bedrooms. there is a lack of light anyway on that side as it is North East facing. There is nothing even close to the size of this in Cricklewood. The areas' current landscape must be respected! This is not Wembley or anywhere else that was essentially wastelands, old factories and actually in need of redeveloping. This is a bustling community, that is already full to bursting point!!

You think a little bit of road widening at the end of Cricklewood Lane is going to justify you cramming Cricklewood with as many flats as possible? 1100 flats, which means at least 2-3000 new residents. It is far too much. It is pure greed from the developers. Barnet council, you will destroy this area and cause too much build up of traffic, you will clot one of the main arteries into London. Cricklewood itself is already a daily nightmare for traffic, congestion, hold ups, cars in bus lanes (all of the businesses on cricklewood broadway are constantly loading in and out of their premises, always causing disruptions at all times of the day. The new DB cargo station with HUNDREDS of HGV movements everyday. Cricklewood bus garage that needs to park dozens of buses outside on the A5 every night, the new blocks popping up or being proposed left right and centre is TOO MUCH TOO SOON.

Comment: I'm objecting to the proposed development because it is clearly of inappropriate scale, does not reflect current housing needs and will put an unbearable strain on local infrastructure, both physical and social.

I am an ex-Surveyor and it is 50yrs since I started in real estate, during which time I have been a valuer, investment advisor, developer and financier. I built up the skills to judge whether a development will be successful or not.

My interest in this proposal is because my (already failing under strain of numbers) GPs' surgery is a few hundred yards away and I shop regularly at the nearby Co-Op.

It is obvious this is an overdevelopment of the site, inappropriate for its location, lacks the provision of facilities to mitigate the likely considerable negative impact on the surrounding area, requires considerable prior upgrading of local infrastructure (both physical and social) and is a massive provision of a type of accommodation that is becoming increasingly unpopular (not least because of the Leasehold, Cladding and Safety scandals).

The need for Social and Affordable Housing in this district is considerable. This development does nothing to provide it. There is no commitment to sell apartments on a Commonhold basis.

There is no provision of facilities on site that will be required by occupiers; this will negatively impact nearby existing facilities which are already inadequate in this location, particularly GP surgeries, dentists and nurseries. Traffic generation is likely to be considerable in an already congested and polluted location and the on-site parking provision is 1/10th of what it should be. Neighbourhoods close by will undoubtedly be swamped by parked cars.

Because of the bulk of the development neighbours will suffer loss of privacy and light. There is an argument that the bulk of the buildings be cut back to minimise this negative impact.

It is difficult to imagine Barnet Council approving this Devt on the basis of good planning, something I would expect a non-Party Political organisation to agree with, such as the Planning Inspectorate.

Comment: Such dominating blocks of flats with the claustrophobic effect they create will destroy completely the character of the area. Precious open spaces, commercial premises and low rise accommodation are all being sacrificed in this and surrounding areas to erect high density housing and continue to increase the population density. More people means more traffic whether it is in the form of private cars or service vehicles. At the same time as car ownership and use is being aggressively discouraged, extra traffic is being generated. At the same time as healthy neighbourhoods are being promoted ever increasing population density is ensuring that any outbreaks of illnesses or epidemics will be more contagious.

Comment: Having viewed the latest documents and Urban Design Study for this application, I would like to reiterate my previous objection to this development.

The height of the proposed blocks is out of keeping with the local area, and the density of the development far too great. The design of the blocks is unattractive and will dominate the view for all other residents in a way which will be oppressive and in no way 'celebratory' as the design study suggests. Smaller blocks which match the height of other buildings in the area, such as the 7-storey Travelodge, would be far more suitable.

Cricklewood is an area with a strong community and where residents have come together to improve the area and develop community activities in recent years. The lack of any communal space for people to meet and connect with one another in the plans for this development would undermine this progress and lead to increased isolation and disconnection for those living in the blocks. These must be amended to include both indoor and outdoor communal meeting spaces for public use.

Local services and transport networks are already under significant pressure, and this site is located at a major pressure point. As a resident of the area for whom cycling is my main mode of transport, I have particular concerns about this aspect of the transport assessment. Cricklewood

Lane, the underpass under the railway, and the junction with Cricklewood Broadway are all extremely congested and difficult to navigate by bike; yet the pavements around the junction are even more so, and to suggest cyclists will need to walk their bikes here is both unrealistic and potentially highly dangerous. In practice, anyone intimidated by the levels of road traffic will choose not to cycle, increasing the impact on other forms of transport above the levels estimated in the assessment.

Those buildings are too large and overbearing, more so in an space where it is very dense. It is even worse in an vastly populated area and with other development plans in fruition, that will stretch public services and bus network, already very limited and overlooked. Not only is congestion, and noise pollution still an major problem, this will also ruin the whole idea that Cricklewood is meant to be an network hub between several areas, disrupting its main advantage of the area.

Further more, as someone who would like to see more housing in Cricklewood and afford an place of my own, I welcome more homes built. However not at this aggressively large scale. Or out of character with the area, that comes across as an dumping ground for further developments, rather than spread new housing across ALL other Barnet wards. Still not enough social or affordable housing either.

Comment: Hello,

We live near the B&Q site.

Over the last 5 years there has been improvements to the area and it is changing for the better. Many new trees, old buildings have been redone. New interesting shops etc My perception is that this development would be a step back when the neighborhood has made significant effort to step forward. No doubt development and housing is needed but the proposed scale, look and feel do not in its current state seem as if it will be an asset to the local community.

My concern is mainly with the planned 25 story high building. There are no such tall buildings in the eyesight of the neighborhood. This will stick out like a sore thumb . It's far too tall!

Regards

Magdel

Comment: The tall buildings look terrible on the neighbourhood of houses. They should be located somewhere else. Also, all those buildings will bring more traffic to the roads that already has bad traffic. The pollution will increase and considering the social distance we all will have to face in the following years, that will be very difficult to do considering there will be more than one thousand, probably two or three thousand as these are flats that will be occupied by families. I don't think it is safe to fit one thousand people in a neighbourhood that is already busy.

Comment: i object for many reasons including,

- * it will be a high-density overdevelopment & it's size, siting, bulk and design is out of character to the local & wider area....they will be the tallest group of buildings for miles & a total eyesore.
- * detrimental to the character and appearance of the streetscene and wider locality & no similar buildings anywhere nearby - there must be a reason for this in the past.
- * noise and disturbance, loss of residential and visual amenity
- * the size, footprint, massing and width ... * overdevelopment, unduly obtrusive and detrimental
- * it would appear overbearing and result in loss of outlook
- * the amenity areas could be too small, inadequate for future occupiers
- * the height, massing, siting, scale and density
- * inadequate parking, harmful impact on highway safety and free flow.
- * though the majority of residents will not be given permits there will still be increased vehicle traffic - including taxis & delivery vans to the proposed development.

- * this does not provide the maximum viable amount of affordable housing
- inadequate outdoor amenity and play space, no contribution to off-site amenity and play space either
- * no undertaking re carbon off-setting or zero CO2 emissions

* the utilities infrastructure may be compromised.

this project could only work were the development to be a third of the height & less buildings - therefore more space could be utilised to spread out ultimately it's just far too many flats crammed into too small an area within an already densely populated area.

Comment: This planning proposal is completely out of keeping with the area (all being low rise) and the proposed size and enormous scale of the cheek by jowl tower blocks would be a blight on the area causing further deprivations on an already very congested community.

It beggars belief that Barnet Council would allow such a huge development with no appropriate green spaces and each tower casting shadows over the neighbouring towers and the local community.

This scheme simply feels corrupt and a full public enquiry needs to take place as to the legality of the planning process in Barnet Council.

Comment: I have already objected to this scheme. It is enormous, totally out of character for the area and will never be supported by the transport, health care, sewerage and utilities, schools, litter and refuse collection, community support and other services that are essential for people. I know all sorts of commitments will be made; they will be broken, unenforced and the local people will suffer.

But I would like to add:

- how can Barnet build this right on its border with Brent. Barnet is building its inappropriate ridiculous scheme on its border so that it shares the pain with Brent. Like a homeowner putting out their rubbish on the periphery of their land, because they don't want to put up with their own rubbish

- when the fine people have left the area, the area is knee deep in litter and no one wants to live in tatty high rise flats, who will be around to say "sorry; I ruined Cricklewood".

This scheme is a money maker. And in 20 years time, cricklewood will be a dump no one wants to live in. Shame on you.

Again this development will only serve to put money in the pockets of developers and Council and will leave all those living in the area with increased traffic, increased population in the area and ugly buildings towering over the whole of Cricklewood.

I cannot believe that we are still building high rise buildings for the rich to get richer with no consideration for the local community.

Westbere road is already overloaded with traffic coming from the part closure of Cricklewood Lane. Just this small change has made a huge difference to the lives of those living in the area, so to have 1100 extra flats will make a huge detrimental difference to the area.

Barnet Council should be ashamed of itself!

Comment: The overall site offers a great opportunity to provide additional housing, amenity, commercial and recreational facilities to Cricklewood. Unfortunately the proposals offer an unduly obtrusive and overwhelming scale, number and size of buildings that are totally out of character with the area. Other than a few platitudes there are few specifics of the amenity areas, transport considerations and facilities that a development of this size would require or any real consideration of the material affect that any such development would have on the existing never mind the proposed new residents of the area. For example is Barnet comfortable that the medical, education and other facilities in the area will be adequate? What if any job opportunities will arise from the development? The proposals offer no real specifics as to the carbon imprint of the proposals. There is I am afraid no comparison with the details and considerations included in for example the recent Brent Cross/Clitterhouse development proposals, whatever may think of that development. The proposals are a great disappointment and should be reconsidered.

Might I also ask where would the residents park? On the already dangerously crowded and narrow streets? Mostly made up of ubers you refuse to address, resulting in the public vandalising them Again, council completely out of touch with the public, you've lost my vote, and soon you'll loose taxpayers money when we move away

As if north London isn't a shit hole already with the robberies, drug deals, stabbings and how SHOOTINGS, you can't guarantee anyone would want to live there, well no one who can afford the prices would want to live there.

Cricklewood is already stretched thin, with access to services such as healthcare and education already over subscribed.

Traffic is horrendous and this development will impact further.

To suggest such a development is ludicrous and the existing residents in the area should be given further consideration

Cricklewood is already over subscribed with little to no resources. We have a shortage of healthcare and educational facilities. Traffic is constant and already has an unfortunate impact on the environment.

If there must be a development this should be reasonable and in keeping with what already exists within the vicinity of the area.

To build this development will infringe on the privacy of its neighbours. The height and sheer number of flats needs to be reconsidered and based on the already existing community, it should not be based on the opportunity for financial gain by developers and the local authority

I sympathize with the need for additional housing in London but dropping mega-developments that are completely out of character with the surroundings, in locations that don't have and never will have the infrastructure to support them, is a lazy way to try and solve the problem. Some politicians might get their 'targets' and move on but the negative impact of these ill-advised developments will continue to affect the area for many many years to come.

I am not against building housing however such a design and height is what I object to. The area, high street and public transport will become more populated changing the vibe and feel of the place.

The reason I chose to live in North West London is because of the beautiful charming style of properties that exist here. This building project will change the feel of the area completely Comment: The area is already overpopulated, it is a challenge to get a GP appointment or a place in a local school at present, already, not to mention the traffic on Cricklewood Lane and Broadway.

New homes in smaller sympathetic buildings, in keeping with the local architecture would be acceptable however High Rise blocks of flats will set an unacceptable precedent. A few new developments have been built in the recent years in Cricklewood and they are struggling to sell all their units, that shows that there is no need for that many flats.

In addition, about a year ago I received a call from a company recruited by the council and they asked my opinion about the proposal to build high rise blocks, I objected, I believe most respondents would object, can we see the results of that telephone survey? After all it was paid by us the residents (from the taxes we pay) and it has to be taken into consideration.

Thank you

Comment: I'm more than happy to support sensible proposals for housing in the London Borough of Barnet, but not 25 storey towers in a sea of 2 storey terraces. The issue for me is the change in the urban fabric in outer London. Whilst I'm not a resident the area (though my Mum grew up there), I would suggest 7 storey buildings as the maximum height. That's my view, others may have other thoughts.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The proposed development is completely out of scale with the surrounding area and its character and will dominate thousands of homes creating an ugly eyesore. The addition of so many extra dwellings in an area without also improving an infrastructure, which is already inadequate, is likely to lead to overcrowding issues and social problems. The development is adjacent to the Thameslink station but many people will use this service to change onto the Underground at West Hampstead which is already overcrowded with commuters filling narrow pavements to cross from one station to another. The creation of residential tower blocks does not reflect demand from most residents who prefer to live in or near to low rise blocks with private amenity space. Cricklewood does not need a focus in this location to act as a landmark and its character will be adversely affected by trying to create a mini Croydon or Canary Wharf. If people are trying to find Cricklewood rail station they can look on a map or at a street sign rather than "wayfinding" it by looking for a 25 storey tower block. The blocks will overshadow nearby houses. The proposal is one of the worst examples of developers creating a substandard parody of a Le Corbusier vision. Following Grenfell people are desperate to escape their "luxury" tower block flats so why create more of the same? They will be seen as complete folly by future generations if they are allowed to be built.

It is impossible to get an appointment at the greenfield medical centre, even before Covid . The Granville Road development is quite hideous being built behind my back garden, and the dust and disruption is very bad for air quality, making it impossible to leave ones windows open. When all the new homes are occupied I do not believe that the council has arranged a new school or medical facilities for that let alone another hideous development down the road. Since I came to live here the whole area has been turned in to a concrete jungle. B&Q is a very useful store as is Poundstretcher and the tile shop. I would have thought that the bingo hall would be protected architecture.

When the Garth Hotel was built decent houses were destroyed and now it is housing asylum seekers.

There would be an outcry if the leafy parts of Barnet were destroyed in such a way.

Nobody wants to live in such high-rise blocks anymore, they've been proved to be miserable places to live in since the 1970s.

I have been far far too many new apartments and new developments built over the past three years in the Greater London area, which are absolutely not necessary to sustain the current population never mind the overriding probability of the decrease in London and other urban area population in the years to come.

The only beneficiaries of the property developers and anyone wishing to make investments in property which will most likely remain empty and eventually derelict, and quite possibly the corrupt element of local councillors and planning department.

Comment: Proposal represents significant overdevelopment and there is concern that an outline application for such large scale will allow for poor quality design once parameters have been set.

The lack of meaningful associated infrastructure proposals makes this an inappropriate development. Cricklewood Station doesn't have that regular a service and is already busy, with trains likely to become even fuller anyhow as Brent Cross South develops.

Finally, this is one of the highest points in the area and any massing of that scale will seriously damage the comfort and enjoyment of the existing neighbourhood.

This is simply a case of an applicant made up of individuals with little personal stake in the Cricklewood area, who will bear no negative impact from the scale of Development they are proposing.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: This proposal is disgraceful. It is an attempt to squeeze a large number of flats into a small area by building unacceptably high and very closely packed together tower blocks.

It will be unpleasant to live in, and have a negative effect on those living nearby

The site is on the edge of the London Borough of Barnet, with much of its impact on the London Borough of Brent where I live. This means there is a democratic deficit in these proposals.

I see no sign that the extra infrastructure required will be provided.

Public transport is a particular issue, as the roads are already overcrowded so that bus services cannot easily be increased. Additionally, the only rail service, Cricklewood Station on the Thameslink Line, has a very poor service, much worse than that of West Hampstead Thameslink (despite the fact that West Hampstead has stations on two other lines).

I am left with the impression that Barnet Council is trying to meet its house-building obligations by cramming houses into a neglected corner of the borough at minimal electoral and financial cost.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The sheer scale and height of this development will dominate the surrounding streets of terraced houses and will create even higher density in an area that is already very densely populated. While providing more housing on the site is to be welcomed, 25 storey high blocks of flats should not be part of the proposal. This is yet another development that fails to provide the local area with what is needed and, by being on such a massive scale, severely impacts on the surrounding neighbourhood.

What is needed is something more imaginative that really serves local needs, for example live/work spaces, some social housing and a much higher 'green' content. Something that reflects the nature of the railway cottages conservation area (which it will inevitably dwarf if it goes ahead), with small areas of green space, would have been infinitely more welcome.

Given how bad the traffic has been in this area for many years, this proposed development is only going to exacerbate that problem.

It should go back to the drawing board and local people should be consulted before the plans are drawn up, not after the event.

It is clearly a way to try and cram as many "new builds" into the area. The proposed high rise buildings are way too high and out of sync with the character and houses in the surrounding area.

It will materially change and ruin the look and feel and skyline of the vicinity. These proposed blocks are far too tall. This is not central London. We will also lose a very nice popular shopping area including B&Q with the resultant loss of jobs.

This must be rejected for the sake of the residents of Cricklewood.

Comment: I will begin by noting that I believe this site is a good site for residential and mixed use development and I am disappointed to not be able to support this application. I further despair at the amount of time and energy the applicant has drained from the community. At every turn, the local feedback was clear and consistent, and at every turn the community has been ignored. From the beginning, the applicant was informed of the strength of objection and concern from local residents. No adjustments have been made to reflect the extensive consultation response and over 1000 objections to the first consultation, there are clearly many more now.

I strongly object to this application in my capacity as London Assembly Member for Barnet and Camden.

The application involves 1100 units in blocks ranging from 3 to 25 storeys on a small site. There is simply no site as dense in any area nearby.

A height of 25 storeys is completely unacceptable in this location, and will have a domineering, overshadowing impact over the surrounding area. Of further concern is the impact of other tall buildings in the scheme - 15, 16, 17, 18, and 19 storeys which will create an overbearing collection of tall buildings, set in each other's shadows. There are no other buildings nearing these heights anywhere nearby.

The density of 1100 units in this location is a substantial overdevelopment, which will lead to an appallingly overdense site. The new super dense area would lead to severe pressure on local infrastructure in a location where infrastructure is already creaking. It is beyond what Cricklewood is able to cope with, especially given the Brent Cross regeneration next door.

This is a cycling hostile proposal and I have serious doubts about the reality of achieving the claimed benefits of the scheme, including relieving traffic queues on Oak Grove and reducing anti-social behaviour.

I urge the committee to reject this application and I look forward to speaking at the planning meeting.

The buildings should not exceed a height of six storeys and the entire plan should be overhauled to account for this. As it currently stands, the development will seriously hurt Cricklewood's future. The buildings will be visible from everywhere in the area and will be an eye sore. We need to look after, value, and improve Cricklewood, not exploit it for developers easy greedy money. Please do not accept this proposal and demand a proper revision with low risers instead or reject it altogether.

Cricklewood is busting at the seams with traffic as it is, and adding over a thousand additional residential units is only going to exasperate the strain on the infrastructure.

Further, 25 storey towers are completely out of character in the area.

A much better suggestion is to develop underground parking & transport links and provide improved amenities for local residents.

My biggest objection is due to the height of the blocks, they should not be anywhere near the proposed height. 25 story's is utterly incompatible with the surrounding area. They are architecturally uninspiring monolithic blocks. They are completely unsympathetic of the surrounding area. There is an opportunity to develop the site with something that could improve the area in so many ways. Something more appropriate to the surrounding architecture that could contribute to the local area. This development should in no way be allowed to go ahead. This proposal is brutal, dominates the area for many miles around and contributes very little.

Comment: I cannot believe that the council would even put out to consultation the erection of 25 storey high blocks in Cricklewood, a largely residential area that needs investment in local amenities and sympathetic planning to improve the area and reflect changing working patterns.

Blocks at the height proposed are totally unsuitable, will increase congestion, will blight the housing around the development.

It appears to be an anachronistic planning proposal post Covid, when quality of local environment is ever more critical as employers move to a Hub-and-spoke model with expectation of increased local working arrangements. In other words suburbs like Cricklewood should become better configured for more home working and local coworking spaces, with amenities that meet the fast changing needs of residents in this respect (not dormitories).

Let's see more quality builds similar to the new blocks with balconies further north along the A5 past the bus station, of about 4-5 stories.

I object to this scheme in the strongest possible terms.

All of my objections previously listed in detail twice in this consultation process still stand. Barnet Council must stop this planning proposal from ruining the Cricklewood area.

Here are my comments again from 20 May 2021:

In addition to my objection made to Barnet Council in the 2020 consultation on the proposal for the development of the B&Q site in Cricklewood, I am now objecting again to the proposal in the strongest possible terms.

My objections are:

1. The scale, number and size of the buildings - 15 and 25 storey tower blocks are significantly higher than any surrounding buildings in the Cricklewood area in Barnet, Brent and Camden. Most of the area has 2- 3 storey buildings, with a few 9-storey exceptions. The new visuals show the proposed tower blocks are overbearing, unduly obtrusive, and totally out-of-keeping with the rest of Cricklewood.
2. The new visuals describe the tower blocks as "...their animated tops, where there is a generosity of detail and a separation of the planes. The group embody an interesting progression of architectural status, the highest clearly representing a genuine landmark. ... moderate impact ... beneficial effect." This is total nonsense, the tower blocks will overwhelm the landscape, and will certainly have a big detrimental impact and effect on the locality. Cricklewood does not need a "landmark" of looming tower blocks, it is wholly inappropriate for the area.

3. None of the proposed blocks offer social housing, this is totally unacceptable in the Cricklewood area, where there is great need for social housing. Barnet Council should reject the proposal on this point alone.

4. There will be significant loss of light and privacy for the residents in the area near the proposed tower blocks.

5. The increased number of residents in the tower blocks (1100 flats) will overwhelm the facilities available

Here are my comments again from 20 May 2021:

5. The increased number of residents in the tower blocks (1100 flats) will overwhelm the facilities available in Cricklewood, and will significantly increase traffic in the whole area. Cricklewood is already congested, so any increase in traffic from the tower blocks would be disastrous. Also, the increased levels of air pollution caused by the additional traffic will go counter to the Mayor of London's clean air initiative, and ULEZ requirements.

6. Cycling and pedestrians - the proposed plan says cyclists may use the narrow pedestrian paths through the development - this will create conflict between pedestrians and cyclists, and is not a benefit for either pedestrians or cyclists, as claimed. The concept fails to meet Transport for London's London Cycling Design Standards. Diverting off straight roads to cycle up and down sharp inclines and in amongst pedestrians fails to satisfy the core outcomes of directness, comfort, coherence and adaptability to increasing volumes, and breaches the principle that bicycles must be treated as vehicles, not pedestrians.

Comment: While I note that the tallest tower has been reduced by 6 stories, there has been no change to the other tall blocks which will be more than twice the height of anything else in the locality. This is just a sleight of hand and should not change the need to reject all aspects of this so-called development.

Comment: The new proposals do not answer the issues and problems raised in the previous consultation. Cutting the height of the tallest building from 25 storeys to 19 storeys will still mean that the building will be twice the height of anything else in Cricklewood, totally out of keeping in the area and creating wind tunnels and dark shadows cutting out the light.

Furthermore the new proposal still packs 1,050 residential units, down just 50 from previously. This is far, far too many for the local infrastructure and would continue to put a strain on an already congested area. And where if the provision of social housing?

Comment: Again this developer is just far too big for the area. The height of the buildings will tower over everything else in the area and I can imagine it will have an impact on house prices detrimentally. The increase of traffic, which is already quite bad in the area, will also increase significantly due to the increased number of residents and even more pollution will impact the area. I understand the want to develop this space but does it really need to be to the detriment of the area and the existing residents. We are hoping to bring our children up in this area but this development will impact the infrastructure in the area by putting a high demand on the resources, and will impact the families in the area due to the fact that no extra schools or doctors are being added to this area- maybe a smaller development combined with a new school?

Comment: My previous 2 objections still stand. We have seen it before in Cricklewood where developers make a token change and then at the planning meeting say it is important to note there were subsequently less objections.

Cutting the height of the tallest building from 25 storeys to 19 storeys still packs 1,050 residential units onto this site, down from 1,100. There are no other changes. The 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19-storey blocks aren't being changed and the tallest buildings will still be more than twice the height of anything else in Cricklewood. Don't let developers claim our town centre for profit.

I have no objection to this site being developed but the developers are ignoring the hundreds of complaints from neighbouring residents and businesses and not addressing concerns about amenities (health services, schools, parks and open spaces, leisure facilities, playgrounds, youth facilities), transport, traffic and parking, and the cumulative effect of multiple development. What happens on this site will define Cricklewood's town centre.

Comment: These revised plans only make minor adjustments to a development that is totally out of proportion with the surrounding vernacular. I am not against the redevelopment of the B&Q site per se but living on Needham Terrace in a conversation area, these buildings will swamp many surrounding vistas and place considerable extra stress on local infrastructure. I am particularly concerned about extra stress on already congested and busy road systems along Cricklewood Lane and the A5. Buses are already frequently overcrowded, traffic at a stand still for many hours during the day. There will be large numbers of deliveries needed to service these flats and without parking more pressure on public transport.

I would wish to see far lesser density of development, with no buildings of higher than 8 floors.

With the current plans I believe that there will be significant impact on the light available to our neighbours gardens and that this development will have a significantly detrimental impact on the outlook from the terraces and on our quality of life.

Comment: Congestion in the proposed area is already too high and will not be able to support additional traffic. Transport links are poor for the TFL services. The medical infrastructure is already under considerable pressure from the recently completed housing development.

Also the amount of noxious chemicals necessary for the production of building materials is a danger to the immediate area and all the residents and children attending the numerous nearby schools. Given the location of the proposed building many infant/junior & senior schools will be overlooked.

These buildings will oversee us and invade our privacy. They are completely inappropriate for the area.

In addition, I would like to raise that our community is small but extremely biodiverse and these buildings will affect the delicate balance of nature in the area. I believe this is very unusual for central London and the council has a duty of care to preserve it as per strategic government guidelines <https://www.gov.uk/guidance/natural-environment#biodiversity-geodiversity-and-ecosystems>

The roads, schools and dr surgeries would become further stretched, I believe a mass of homes on this scale would be damaging to the area and would become an eye saw, I would firmly object to a building of this size especially when it would directly be in my eye line from my house. These streets are not for New York buildings or have the public services for 5 story's less on one building. Five pieces of sugar off the Montreux cake is still a huge profit to them and loss for us. Hard enough getting an open reach engineer ie internet connection and keeping a GP practice open.

The height of all buildings need to be further reduced to 10 storeys (so they are aligned to the height of the residential buildings next to Virgin Active) in order for Cricklewood to not lose its unique identity and negatively impact local residents living within a mile of the monstrous site. 19 storeys will block sunlight and be an eye sore on Cricklewood's landscape for generations. Unacceptable.

Reducing the maximum height from 25 to 19 storeys is still not a material change to the proposal (as both the developers and Council must know), so I continue to object for the reasons given previously.

It is a shame that the developers are wasting time with marginal amendments like this which do not address the clearly expressed concerns of local people. Instead, they should be getting on with building new homes on the B&Q site, up to about 6 or 7 storeys, in keeping with the area's character and infrastructure capacity.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The size of the new proposed drop in number of flats and height of buildings is still a massive problem. It will dwarf the homes in residential streets. They are ugly. Pollution will be a problem for the residents. The infra structure will be woefully inadequate for the number of residents being proposed.

There will be little or no adequate outside space for people.

Its time to think again about design of buildings for multiple households, to think ecologically and particularly for people's mental health which requires community, low level, green thinking.

Comment: I have previously objected to this residential development and despite the revisions by the developers, my objections remain the same. These buildings are totally out of character with the surrounding area and remain far too high. In my opinion, totally inadequate adjustments have been made. I don't believe that the strongly held objections of the vast majority of local residents have been taken seriously. The surrounding area has not got the infrastructure to support over a 1000 new dwellings on this site. The pollution from traffic in the area will only worsen, to the detriment of the health of the community- particularly children and the vulnerable. I would like all of my other previous objections to be scrutinised. The height of the buildings will change the horizon and the character of the area for good. These revisions made by the developers are totally unacceptable.

I am disappointed by the limited change submitted by the developers in this latest proposal, which does not substantially address any of the concerns I and many other commentators and residents have raised about the disproportionate height of the development in comparison to its immediate surroundings; and the excessive density without sufficient public amenities or adequate/safe transport routes.

Considering neighbouring buildings, current social services provision and residential areas, I believe it would be wrong to give permission for buildings higher than 8-10 storeys. Changing one tower from 25 to 19 and leaving all others at the same height has resulted in essentially the exact same proposal. They will all still dwarf all other buildings in the area by a significant amount, look completely out of place with the area and add a huge number of additional residents placing even greater strain on the infrastructure.

Comment: I strongly object to this application. Both the initial and revised application are excessive and wholly inappropriate for this area. The current size of the buildings would be extremely oppressive for residents of the terraces and others in the surrounding area. Given its size it would have a negative impact on a vast amount of residents not just visually but in terms of the local services that are already stretched. It would block out significant amounts of light, especially for the children's playground on Kara Way and dominate the skyline. The buildings are exceptionally and disproportionately high and should be dramatically reduced to a more reasonable size that is more similar to the height of other buildings in Cricklewood. There is no justification to allow a development of this size and height to be approved.

Comment: I have written several times objecting to this development as many of the neighbours and local residents have done. I am disappointed that this has resulted in only small, token amendments to the developer's plans and they have been left largely unchanged.

The Cricklewood town centre will be ruined with too many very tall and out of place crowded buildings and ugly blocks of flats, which stand out of the surrounding area like an eyesore.

It is disheartening to see how the feedback and views of local residents do not amount to much and this consultation appears to be another box ticking exercise leading to the inevitable.

Whilst most people appreciate the need for more housing and support these initiatives, I believe they need to be done in a proportionate and considerate ways to the local communities, environment and local facilities.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The proposals are completely out of context for this area. Cricklewood Broadway is a very busy town center and could be overwhelmed by the addition of 2000 plus new residents.

The tower blocks are intrusive and have a potential for creating a detached group of residents surrounded by bleak windswept rough grass zones as in the bad old days of the 1960's.

For a more human scale for new housing please see the schemes in Camden Borough during the 1970's, namely Alexander Road, Highgate New Town and Branch Hill. Other examples are available!

Visual intrusion, and scale (also resulting in increased wind effects and less daylight for nearby properties) as well as possible overcrowding in the nearby area are my main objections. I am not a nimbby but please do not try to solve the housing crisis on one site!

Comment: This is still a ridiculous development plan, regardless of the few stories shaved off the tallest structure. Note that the residences have only dropped by 50 and the suggested 1000+ homes in the area with no increased infrastructure is incomprehensible. I strongly object to this, and all previous objections still stand.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: This development lacks any consideration of the impact on local services, local residents, the loss of light in surrounding areas and is likely to bring predominantly negative affects to Cricklewood. The reduction in height by 6 floors is insufficient - the blocks need to be no taller than 6 floors maximum. The number of units is 1050 on the edge of Barnet which seems to be a favourite thing for Barnet council and developers to do - away from the core of the Borough with less upset for your constituents and far greater impact on Brent and Camden local residents. The developers have ignored concerns raised in consultations and it's clear that the reduction of 1 block was always a buffer zone. It's just unacceptable to impact on the local Victorian and Edwardian architecture with such imposing buildings that will stand out like a sore thumb! Please do not allow this development to proceed - our health and well being will be adversely affected.

please do not destroy our local environment by giving us high blocks which totally change the character of the neighbourhood.

They would also be a prime target for terrorists, being so close to Staples Corner, which has already attracted bombs since I moved to the area 30 years ago.

Comment: I consider the revised proposal (reduced height) only the most marginal improvement on the original, and as making no material difference. The height and scale development remains grossly disproportionate to the surrounding area, and will have a devastating impact on the local community. Even allowing for the proposed improvements, it will place an intolerable burden on local infrastructure - the local roads are already subject to very heavy traffic, and I dread to think about the impact this development will have. If it goes ahead, Cricklewood will unfortunately become a place I go out of my way to avoid, rather than my neighbourhood.

Comment: It's hard not to believe that the strategy has been to dupe people into believing that 19 floors is an acceptable reduction from the original 25. The revised application has come in so quickly: it must have been prepared well in advance. First fall back position. The reality is that the buildings even now are excessively tall, out of proportion to the surrounding houses. The heart of Cricklewood is being replaced by a mess, perfunctory buildings without character, residents without community. These are the sorts of flats families live in for a few years and move out as quickly as they can. The future residents of Cricklewood deserves much better than this.

Comment: I acknowledge the small concession made to the >1000 challenges to this original proposal reducing the size of the proposed flats from 25 storeys to 19.

However this revised plan is still completely unacceptable and insulting to residents like myself who have already submitted their objections on the basis that this proposed development and the thousands of new residents it may attract:

1. Will overwhelm current transport infrastructure (roads, rail, parking, buses and tube)
2. Will overwhelm current health and welfare provision (doctors, dentists, childcare and schools)
3. Will overwhelm other leisure facilities (retail, gyms, parks)
4. Create massive and prolonged disturbances (noise, waste and transport pollution).
5. Would be a complete eyesore visible from miles arounds and not in fitting with local buildings at 19 storeys.
6. Would create pockets of increased street crime with the current design.

These plans simply cannot be allowed to go ahead in it's current state.

Local residents (including myself) will do whatever it takes to block this development unless a reasonable compromise is reached that complements and fits in with Cricklewood's urban environment and vision for the future.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Though it may be the case that housing is a need within London and there are many projects like this one to transform larger plots into housing- I would like to strongly voice my opposition to this development. Cricklewood is a densely populated area with a heavy footfall as is. This development will increase the residential figures with a cost to environment and to the tax payer which would then likely result in unaffordable properties, rental or otherwise. This goes without mentioning the planned height and dimensions of the development obscuring a good amount of natural light to existing properties and the surrounding areas. Furthermore the businesses that currently occupy the lot are of great value to the communities of Barnet and Brent and to lose these would be a much greater loss than the gain of homes that will only draw more people to this area and raise the price of living - increasing the impact of gentrification in London, which is already rife. I hope you will consider this opinion of a local resident, a long time Barnet resident until recently as I have newly moved to Brent. I would strongly implore you to reconsider and take our views into consideration before deciding what is best for residents of Cricklewood.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I still strongly object to this development. As far as I can see all that has changed is to lower the tallest tower by 6 stories. But the whole development is massive and cannot be supported by the current infrastructure. And there are other developments also in the pipeline which will also adversely affect air quality, public transport, schools, health services etc etc. Traffic is already horrendous around Cricklewood Lane near Cricklewood station and such a large number of new flats will definitely increase car ownership, whether or not residents are intended to own vehicles.

19 stories is still way way too high and the mass of tall blocks will dominate the landscape for miles around, blocking light, creating wind tunnels and making the area an unpleasant place in which to live and shop.

I personally welcome having a diy shop and garden centre nearby and will be very sorry to lose it. Moving such resources out of town is contrary to current thinking about moving away from out-of-town shopping centres with their accompanying reliance on cars.

Comment: The proposal for a 19 storey block is still completely out of keeping with the surrounding architecture. It will dominate the skyline and reduce sunlight to surrounding areas. Furthermore overly tall towers lead to a loss of community and quality of life. Roadways in the sky is a long devalued concept for improving quality of life and sense of community. Lower level blocks are more desirable in all aspects. I would argue that 6 or 7 floors as in nearby West Hampstead developments would be much more appropriate.

Comment: This amended plan has no material impact on the consequences I highlighted in my prior objections. The residential unit numbers have been reduced by less than 5%. This has no effect on how overpopulated and condensed the area will become. It still fails to address the woeful lack of social housing. The max height reduction does not counter the fact that the result will still be a monstrous building that will be a blot on the landscape and overshadow the entire area.

Comment: Whilst encouraging that the developers have responded to feedback and reduced the number of dwellings on this site, the height of the building remains totally incongruent with the rest of the buildings in the area. It's towering nature will be an eyesore, casting shadows over NW London and detracting from the quaint charm of the locality.

Moreover, I am concerned that the current transport infrastructure is insufficient to accommodate the extra travellers during peak rush hours, particularly from Cricklewood Thameslink which is already underserved at these times and I would suggest that the building has no more than 12 floors.

No improvement of local amenities.

Wrong type of housing for area - is this what locals want to buy? Have they been asked? Outside space for all now deemed even more important than pre-pandemic.

Ridiculous concept of developers that the area needs a tall landmark to help people find it.

Frankly, that idiocy alone should make the council throw it out.

It will devalue the area as again the area has lovely Victorian residential roads.

Obstructs your view massively from the high road.

The leasehold tenants will have to pay massive ground rent and service charges which is unfair and unaffordable for young first time buyers.

It won't increase the wealth of Cricklewood residents.

Where will Cricklewood residents park to use the local shops? Disabled users won't be able to park to access the high street stores. The B&Q car park supported disabled car users who needed to alight there for the Co-op and Iceland

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I strongly object to the plan to construct a group of skyscrapers inside the ordinary traditional London residential area.

As far as I know, no such scale of group of skyscrapers is found in any traditional London residential area. It is true that there are some 15+ story tall buildings even in residential areas but those are in most cases single-isolated ones or very close to the busy business area.

To justify such an unusual construction, the developer emphasizes that the buildings will be 'a landmark' of the area. However, residents of the area generally do not need such a landmark. We just want to live in peace.

The development will not only completely change the character of the area but also worsen many existing problems which residents are already suffering from. A5 is already very congested throughout the daytime everyday. Other roads are to be easily congested once some construction works/accidents happen.

Thameslink Cricklewood station is also easily to be chaotic once some trouble happens on the railway and that actually happen quite often. School shortage is obvious so that many residents are forced to move out to secure a school place for their child. GP center next to the site is scheduled to be abolished. The new construction is very likely to worsen the situation which is already bad to the residents.

I don't believe that the assessment which is done by the developer shows the truth of the area. Many of the assessment results just look unrealistic.

So, all in all, I must conclude that the plan cannot be justified from any perspective. It will not make anybody happier than now, probably except for the developer. I strongly hope that the council will take much consideration on how the character of the area can be maintained. Although I am a big fan and frequent user of B&Q, I don't oppose to the demolition of the site. However, I will strongly oppose to any attempt to totally change the landscape of the area.

Fifty less residential units also doesn't decrease the huge impact upon local infrastructure - medical, schools, traffic etc.

If each of the 1050 residential units housed just one child, there would need to be at least one more school in the area.

Although you have decreased down to 19 storeys it's still too tall for the area and will cause less daylight (see what these tall buildings have done to the Wembley area), also with the proposed number of residential units housing more personnel already Cricklewood is well populated.

I think this whole project should be scrapped.

Definitely NO to the planned proposal.

Comment: Hello,

The project is not suitable for the area. It comprises very high rise buildings compared to the surroundings. It make the area look very ugly, and disharmonious. It will place towering blocks in front of the houses, creating a city scape in a neighbourhood. There will be tremendous pressure on public services in the area like traffic, pollution, schools, doctors, parking, etc. You are going to add around 300 cars on single lane roads effectively, assuming 30% of apartments will get cars which is a low estimate. The areas is already congested.

The main issue is the ugly towering presence in a low rise area. This is a residential neighbourhood not a downtown city. the development should be in keeping with the neighbourhood. If ugliness is created it can no longer be changed.

Housing issues cannot be solved by building ever more property in a limited area. It will soon turn into an unliveable slum. The population is not going to stop growing and additional housing is just going to delay the inevitable shortages for sometime only. Soon enough there will be more people to house and more after them!

There is a limit to how many people can live within a limited area while retaining a decent quality of living space. The quality of the areas should not be sacrificed for the sake of housing more and more people which will not be enough in any case. The whole area will sink down into a terrible state. Pollution, crime ugliness, services broken and unable to cope, traffic grid locks and misery to everyone.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: It is not in keeping - not very pretty like the buildings across the road on the Broadway. See Neville Court in Dollis Hill, London. They can have the same number of units but they need to make it look better. It could look iconic. We need more flats but not like this. This is a town centre, not a estate on outskirts. Also, where is cycle parking (like a secure carpark for bikes?)

Comment: I still very much object to these plans. Whilst I appreciate there has been a reduction in storeys and units. The overall plan is still not in keeping with the area, and does not enhance our community. There needs to be a master plan for Cricklewood, Barnet needs to push developers to create something that will enhance the area, to ensure it is successful and a prosperous place to live. We need low rise, low density, green spaces, community spaces, and clever and considerate design. Try harder!

Comment: This scheme is a monstrous planning application and is totally out of keeping with the character of Cricklewood. This is not Central London.

The proposed tall residential towers will overwhelm the the area and ruin the nature and feel of the place. Cricklewood consists mainly of houses and low rise apartments.

There will be even heavier road congestion around the Broadway (which is already slow moving). Jobs will be lost as B&Q and other retailers will shut.

I am strongly against this scheme. have lived in Cricklewood for many years. Frankly, this is an attempt to build as many flats as possible without regard for the neighbourhood.

I have spoken with many friends and local people- everyone opposes this scheme

This is an attempt by developers to get away with what they can. Barnet Council must do the right thing, protect the people living in Cricklewood and reject the proposed scheme.

The skyline for miles will be blighted by the sight of these huge buildings. The local infrastructure, services and amenities are not equipped to handle an additional 1000+ households. There is no affordable housing. I strongly object on all those grounds.

I said before if it is that good build it in Totteridge. All of Barnet council's rubbish is shoved onto the borders of Brent. How about building for the good of the local community. Trying to disguise another money grabbing scheme as "good for us". They are not even planning on building a doctors, school, leisure centre to go along with it. Who are they hoping to "put" in these properties. They are too tall for children, the elderly, those with health issues of any sort. Going to be sold/"given" to those with no local connections so they won't give a damn if neighbouring roads are then sourced for demolition. The top of Temple road is going (Matalan), Gladstone Parade has gone. Which road is next "for the greater good".

Any new additions should be of the same height or lower to match the character of the area.

Introduction of 19 story buildings is grossly oversized for the area.

Adding extra 1050 flats to the overpopulated area WITHOUT adding any supporting infrastructure is just criminal.

Are you opening new GP surgeries?

Are you opening new dentist surgeries?

Are you opening extra schools or nurseries?

Are you adding extra roads?

Are you opening a new library?

Are you opening a sport facility (not private membership)?

Provide sufficient infrastructure to support the overdevelopment and greed.

Local people cannot afford to buy a place in the area. There is a severe shortage of social housing

- are you making a large proportion of the new flats a council housing?

I am against a development on this scale.

It is not fitting with the area and it will put a significant pressure on the current arrangements.

Too much traffic, not enough green space, parking issues, pollution, no consideration given to amenities like schools, GP surgeries etc... Cricklewood is already extremely overcrowded, and is currently undergoing big development at Brent Cross with many additional new homes, with smaller (yet still significant) developments at Granville Road and Mortimer Close. There is simply no way we can accommodate this huge number of new homes without irreparably damaging our community.

Comment: The amendments proposed do not alter the nature of the application, and show a disregard bordering on contempt for the objections that resulted in the developer having to make changes.

Blocks at the new height proposed are still totally unsuitable, will blight the streets around the development, and will detract from the area.

I hold to my original objection that it appears to be an anachronistic planning proposal post Covid, when quality of local environment is ever more critical as employers move to a Hub-and-spoke model with expectation of increased local working arrangements. In other words suburbs like Cricklewood should become better configured for more home working and local coworking spaces, with amenities that meet the fast changing needs of residents in this respect (not dormitories). Because of this, we need a town centre that attracts residents in, who will spend more money in local shops and restaurants, and increase the gdp of the area. This proposal will do the opposite and create an eternal blight.

I still object to this scheme in the strongest possible terms.

No one is against developing the B&Q retail park into shops, residences and outdoor parks and gardens but tower blocks will neither compliment nor enhance the area. They are overbearing and will possibly cause wind tunnels and cast shadow over large swathes of existing residential areas, especially east of the railway line.

The development will have a bad impact on the area amenity because there is no additional infrastructure to accommodate such excessive density. As it stands, road traffic congestion/pollution is appalling. The current transport options are full to capacity. Again I ask, who will live here - in a tower block overlooking the railway line? Doesn't look like the flats will be "affordable" either

London needs more affordable homes, but this development seems simply to offer barely adequate 'housing units' for profit, without facilities or proportionate green space and will diminish quality of life for existing residents.

The plans seem to be based on an old fashioned model, particularly in view of changes in working practices over the past year. Sites like this are incredibly scarce in London: it vitally important that they be used creatively to build ecologically sound homes fit for the future rather than outdated tower blocks.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The proposed development, even though revised plans reduce the maximum height from 25 to 19 storeys and reduces the residential unit numbers from 1100 to 1050 is far too large and too high for this location. The new tower blocks will dominate surrounding housing and streets and will be an eyesore spoiling views from miles around. Cricklewood does not need such large tower blocks in this location. People going to the railway station do not need a tower block to help them find where it is. Cricklewood has a defined character with its low level Victorian housing and similar subsequent infill developments. Tower blocks are generally not popular and have a relatively short useful life. In particular following the Grenfell tragedy residents of tower blocks are concerned about escape in the event of a fire and use of materials which have subsequently been found to be unsafe. The large number of additional residents will put a strain on the existing inadequate infrastructure in the immediate and surrounding areas. Many residents will use the Thameslink service from Cricklewood to change onto the Underground at West Hampstead where the streets are already overcrowded with commuters in rush hours and will become even more so when the O2 centre is redeveloped with much more housing. This is an ugly inappropriate development which will spoil Cricklewood. If the area needs to be redeveloped it should have low level housing. Please reject this awful scheme.

1. Footfall throughout the surrounding area
2. Traffic volume
3. Schools. (v few in Barnet area)
4. Transport...Cricklewood a small station with infrequent service.
5. Doctors surgeries...most have full lists.
6. Character of surrounding area...overbearing height at 19 stories.

It is unwise to clump so many 'units' so close together, so high and in an area already straining under lack of amenities.

No objections to providing housing but inappropriate on this scale in this position. Barnet could surely spread the load by developing sites further into their boundaries.

Comment: I strongly oppose the proposed development and the amendments submitted on height. 19 storeys is far too high, and is out of keeping with the whole area. The proposed height of the flats will totally overshadow all the locality's pleasant Victorian houses, and be an ugly blot on the skyline. It would be much more in keeping to build low level houses and flats, and provide a far more acceptable living environment to residents. It has been shown in other developments that there need not be a significant reduction in the number of homes by building low level, as less open space is required.

Also, the traffic situation is really bad on the A5 and this development will only make it worse. As someone who regularly uses the shops and facilities in Cricklewood, I see the slow moving traffic and congestion around the Cricklewood Lane junction. There is considerable pressure on buses and the Thameslink line already, without more passengers. Please do not pass this application which smacks of developer greed, it can only cause misery to those already living in the area, and future new residents.

Comment: This is the third time I've submitted a comment, every one of my previous objections still stand. I'm astounded that someone thought slightly lowering the height and a few less units would address in any way the number of objections there have been to this proposal. This is not a compromise by Montreaux, it's closer to an insult given the time, effort and thought so many people, whose lives will be very much affected if this goes ahead, have put into expressing their concerns.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The proposal from 25 to 19 storeys is farcical. It is inappropriate for this area, nothing over 5 storeys should be built here. Cricklewood consists of mainly Victorian buildings with some beautiful architecture, towering buildings would be totally out of keeping with the area .

Please consider the awful impact such a development would have on the residents of Cricklewood, overcrowding, pressure on schools, doctors surgeries, public transport, traffic congestion and pollution etc. would be so much worse than it already is. There are already 'new' apartment blocks on Cricklewood Lane and Edgware Road. Enough is enough. Say NO to this development. Thank you.

Comment: No no no! These revisions make no difference whatsoever. They will still be more than twice the height of anything else in Cricklewood.

I live in the railway terraces, as well as compromising our personal privacy, this will affect light, noise and footfall in an area that has a great deal of biodiversity.

Are there any projections on noise, light and footfall levels available? And have any studies been done on the variety of species in the Terraces, we have a vast array of insects, birds and amphibians???

I want the council to adhere to government guidance on preserving biodiversity. There is not much of it left, particularly in inner London. These flats will create far too much imbalance and cause far too much of a threat to light and noise.

Comment: Reduction in building height from 25 floors to 19 floors maximum height - although a tiny step in the right direction does not address previous comments that the scale of the proposed buildings are completely out of keeping with the neighbourhood, destroy more local amenities than currently exist and don't address the need for off-street parking for the new residents. The streets around the site are already over-loaded - this proposed development will exacerbate the situation

Comment: These buildings will be over twice the height of any others in the local area. This will negatively impact my personal privacy and amount of light which I wish to strongly object to.

More importantly, I would also like to point out Barnet council is accountable for preserving and being aware of any impact to biodiversity as part of approving planning. I don't believe any survey has been done in the Terraces area in terms of understanding the very rich variety of wildlife, particularly in the Spring and Summer. If it has please make it available along with proof that this development will not affect out wildlife?

We have frogs, birds, and bee colonies and wildflowers that thrive here. It takes decades to establish a balance like this and these buildings will increase noise and footfall and decrease light.

<https://www.gov.uk/guidance/biodiversity-duty-public-authority-duty-to-have-regard-to-conserving-biodiversity>

I expect council to adhere to their responsibilities as outlined in government guidance when assessing whether the local area is suitable for development of this kind.

Will there be new, doctors, schools, busses? In my opinion the developer needs to reduce the scale by at least 50% so that it's more in keeping with the other buildings in the area and make substantial contributions to new public facilities for these homes to use.

Comment: Whilst the proposal has reduced in height by 6 floors all of my previous objections stand. A building of this height, 19 floors is still incredibly high, will detrimentally impact the light amenity in the local area. The proposal is out of keeping with the density and height of the built environment in the local area and will negatively impact residents. The significant increase in density will not be able to be supported by the local transport infrastructure. The roads in the area are already congested. The build process itself will also be incredibly disruptive to those that live nearby, and also travel through the area. It is not clear to me why something like a six story development, which would be much more in keeping with the area has not been proposed. It's also unclear that considering the size of the site, it's proximity to a local high street, and in an area where community assets are lacking, the local authority has not taken the opportunity to develop an SPD which would provide a clearer indication of what the local area needs and is in keeping with the local area.

Surely the developers do not think that taking off a few floors from the tallest carbuncle will make this monstrous development less of a gigantic blot on this area. Yes, we need housing and tall buildings have their place. But the impact that this group of monoliths will have on the surrounding area will be catastrophic. It is entirely out of place in this locality.

Comment:

I have previously objected to the development proposals on the grounds that the buildings are far too high.

I am referring first to the highest building of 25 which has now been reduced by only six storeys to 19.

Given that 19 storeys is more than double the number of storeys of any other proposed new build in the area, this is still a woefully inadequate response.

Could the developers explain how this latest proposal addresses the objection to the height expressed so many times in the previous comments? It would be interesting to hear the criteria for ignoring the objections of nearby residents.

BUT it isn't just the highest tower that I, and many others, object to. The other buildings are also far higher than anything else in the area and there has been no attempt to reduce this.

There are also inadequate explanations as to how the surrounding area will be able to cope with the narrowest of pavement space towards the railway station, the already congested traffic around Cricklewood Lane, the lack of primary and secondary schools, and the insufficient public health facilities.

There are still inadequate provision of affordable homes within the scheme. This will still create significant extra road traffic in an area already identified as a problem by TfL. It will also put further pressure on public services like schools, nurseries and GPs.

Overall this is really inappropriate and unwelcome development still. Changes made are still really just tweaking and don't address the many hundreds of objections people have already submitted.

This is a very small change to one building only by the developer, and is totally inadequate'. All buildings need to come down by many floors, and more green space incorporated into the development. Too many people are planned for living on top of each other, setting the area up for social problems, poor mental health etc. The high-rise built in the 50's & 60's were established as a failed social experiment which went badly wrong, and many were later demolished as a result! The sense of community was non-existent, leading to social isolation and social problems. Plus the issue about local amenities; where are the plans for those needed to accommodate large numbers of unhappy folk moving into Cricklewood? The closing down of our well used local health centre recently doesn't bode well... Please build new homes 'fit for human consumption' where people can lead good lives, not those inhumane super high, tightly cramped monstrosities

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Dear council

The previous objections still stand, the buildings are far too high - this small change to one building by the developer is totally inadequate. The concerns of the community should be taken into account, this development will impact our quality of air, access to public transport, traffic, etc.

The proposed buildings are not of a design which is in keeping with the scale, character, or appearance of the area.

Comment: My previous objections still stand, the buildings are still way too high - this 'concession' by the developer is woefully inadequate. While I totally support the demand for regeneration in the area, this development isn't what is needed or helpful. Cricklewood's infrastructure cannot cope with it. There is one local overland station, therefore this will increase pressure on buses or lead to far more cars. Pollution in the area is already worryingly high- this will exacerbate it exponentially. What about doctors surgeries? Already there are waiting lists. One local one has closed with all those registered now having to travel much further. How will a 19 storey tower block worth of apartments be accommodated? We are asking the developers to please consider the lives of residents above profit for once. There needs to be far greater compromise from them- we will continue to object until they can come up with a more reasonable proposal that benefits this neighbourhood rather than just making them money.

People should be housed at heights which are in scale with them. Why are existing derelict and uncared-for houses not being bought up and rendered fit for habitation? There are many successful renovations in evidence.

Comment: There is no room for all these extra people. Cricklewood Lane is already frequently blocked solid with backlogs holding up traffic on Cricklewood Broadway and Walm Lane. This congestion preceded the current road restrictions. Furthermore the pavements on Cricklewood Broadway are extremely narrow and already do not manage the pedestrian footfall - try getting through there with a bike or pushchair. Local GPs are already oversubscribed, and the schools are full. There are no nearby open spaces.

The heights of the proposed blocks are preposterous, they are twice as high as anything else locally and would be visible from miles around, including large areas of Barnet. And the development does nothing to address the local need for social housing and council housing.

Comment:As a local resident I strongly object to the revised version of this proposed development. A high-density residential development in this location would put great strain on local infrastructure and resources.

The tall buildings, going up to 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19 storeys, would be an extreme contrast to the character of the area, with its 2 to 3 storey buildings, and in my opinion would exert a depressing visual effect rather than functioning as some sort of 'landmark'.

The proposal makes many vague claims about potential benefits from this development which do not stand up to scrutiny. For example, included in the very limited improvements to transport is a new cycle route which would in all likelihood bring cyclists and pedestrians into conflict.

Comment: There is still no vision and no coherent design which takes into account at all the locality and the huge impact that this astonishingly huge development will have on the whole area of Cricklewood.

Even South Croydon did not have such an overwhelming sized development imposed on it.

Even a reduction in the height of one tower block from 25 storeys to 19 is no real concession by the developers.

Please refuse planning permission and make them produce a design which actually fits in with the locality. This currently revised design has everything in it that reflects badly on a modern urban design aimed at only maximizing profit and which is intended to be dumped on the local area of Cricklewood..

The developers will not live here, but they will adversely affect the future generations to come in a totally unforgivable way.

This is a truly eco-unfriendly design in every way that it could possibly be.

Comment: For over a year the area surrounding the intersection of the A5 and A407 has been congested and polluted. Buses have had to be diverted. This is the result of work on one short building at the intersection being made smaller and some road works. I cannot even begin to contemplate the disruption that will be caused by the scale and height under the amended plan.

It is a nightmare to walk, take a bus or drive through that intersection for people living in the vicinity.

The buildings are taller than any other in the neighbouring two boroughs of Brent and Camden, and are taller than the recent buildings in Barnet along Childs Hill and Claremont Road.

I have some questions:

- 1) In order to undertake the work at the B&Q site, how much longer would the intersection of the A5 and the A407 be impacted?
- 2) The Brent Cross Town plans are also likely to impact the traffic situation at the A5/A407/Claremont area. Surely it is sensible to minimise further disruption?
- 3) Why are there no plans showing the roads and sidewalks that would be available for use (or out of use) during construction and post construction?

Comment: This is my third time of objecting because Montreux the developers are not taking on board anything we are saying. I live right next to the proposed development. It is one of 3 new developments immediately around us that are seeking or being given permission to proceed. The plans are a gross over-development of the site. If you look at sympathetic developments in places like Wingate Square in Clapham Old Town, no blocks there are higher than 6 stories. That would be a completely acceptable height for blocks planned on the B and Q site here in Cricklewood. Anything over 10 stories will overpower the neighbourhood completely. 19 stories is way too high, too many units. The local transport and services will not be able to cope. Their plans are inhuman and the impact on the existing communities would be utterly destructive. Many people think their objections already lodged are sufficient, and don't realise that if they don't object AGAIN, Montreux will try to persuade you that we think it's OK this slight reduction from 25 to 19 stories. It isn't. We are in despair.

So read my previous objections and this one and take into consideration that if you grant them planning permission to build these high blocks you will destroy the centre of Cricklewood and the quality of life we have here. I beg you - no more than 10 stories high. Maybe we can assimilate that.

Thank you Veronica Roberts.

The effect on the local area just fills me - and everybody I have spoken to - with absolute horror.

The design of the development shows little architectural merit in terms of its appearance; the buildings are dull, ugly and just box-like.

The original planning drawings showed 8-story buildings. I would propose that 10 storeys should be the absolutely maximum of any development in this area.

I object in the strongest possible terms to the plans.

Comment: The application for the construction of several very tall buildings (even accounting for the reduction of the tallest of those buildings from 25 to 19 floors) would be in stark contrast with the neighborhood, which is essentially made up of low buildings (with the exception of a handful of ugly concrete post-WW II buildings).

The proposal is clearly not in keeping with the general look and feel of the area. A perfect illustration is the rendering on page 2 of the following document:

https://publicaccess.barnet.gov.uk/online-applications/files/CC54B377635573B8B79673483C6FEF9A/pdf/20_3564_OUT-URBAN_DESIGN_STUDY-5154572.pdf

That picture also highlights that the new construction would just be an island of concrete and impersonal towers built in the middle of a leafy, green network of streets lined with individual houses and gardens, part of which is a conservation area.

Work on the site will create traffic chaos, pollution and disruption to an area already under severe stress. A building of this height is at odds with modern enlightened policy in residential building and will create the slums of the future which will only have to be knocked down in 29 years time as we have seen with the first wave tower blocks. It's at the very margins on Barnet borough and looks like an attempt to push their responsibilities onto the neighbouring borough

Comment: I am deeply troubled to note that, despite the strong and reasoned objections to this development, the latest change has been for only one tower's height to be reduced. The reality is that the majority of the proposed towers are too high. The impact on the skyline, light and character of the neighbourhood remains profound and unacceptable. Further, the density of the population is unsustainable on neighbourhood resources and, again, inconsistent with the character of the neighbourhood. I do not object to development in principle and I recognise the aim of providing housing. I think that something like 8-10 stories per building is probably acceptable, depending on design, spacing, orientation and configuration. A radical redraft is needed to reduce both height and population density. The aesthetic also requires further work, even if the height is reduced.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The amended plans continue to demonstrate the developer's complete architectural ignorance of the Cricklewood neighbourhood. The height and style of the proposed buildings is too high and way out of keeping for the area.

I am concerned that the continued resubmission of plans that simply make minor alterations rather than fully addressing the objections of residents in a meaningful way is a cynical ploy to ensure fewer and fewer comments as we all get gradually worn down by this process.

Comment: I have previously objected on the grounds that the development is too large for the area.

The new application reduces one tower by a few stories and thus 50 people. It does not address the major concerns around multiple large tower blocks being built in Cricklewood with all that that entails regarding construction disturbance, the buildings being so large and out of keeping with the surrounding area, the blocking of light, the lack of infrastructure in place to support such a development (health care, education etc). The development needs to be scaled back significantly.

Comment: Still completely out of character for the neighbourhood. This is clearly just someone who is trying to make money by piling as many flats into a space as possible. This is testament to although they claim to have altered the plans, they are actually only down 50 flats overall and still providing 1050 flats. The traffic and the services are already completely over subscribed and there is no way that without proper infrastructure changes that the area wont collapse under the strain for more than 1050 residents moving into the area.

If the counsel want to approve such a plan, they need to provide evidence that they are investing in the infrastructure first.

Comment: My previous objections still stand. Having now cynically reduced the height of the tallest tower, Montreaux clearly thinks the battle is over. It is not - the proposed height of 15+ storeys of the rest of the towers is way too high and there are still too many units. If this development goes ahead as proposed, it will dominate the landscape, increase pollution and impact an already overcrowded, overpopulated and congested area.

Comment: The amendments that Montrose have submitted are only a slight reduction in their plan to create an area that would be overcrowding by design and completely out of character for the local area. The intention is greedy profiteering but with no consideration for the quality of life for the people in the new development or the people living in the surrounding area who will have a huge influx of new residents in an overcrowded area and no provision for the extra amenities needed. Within a mile radius there is a new town center going up at BXS. There are new blocks of flats planned along Edgware Rd all the way up to Staples corner. They are more than enough provision for new homes in this area. Plus there is unlikely to be as much demand as there was in the pre Covid and pre Brexit era.

The current proposal would be ridiculous side by side with the Railway Terraces and cast a shadow over the playground. The plans remind me of that terrible tower block in Margate that towers over the seaside town as a beacon of bad taste. There seems to be no sensitivity to creating modern urban dwellings. Also, the actual design and selection of materials is totally unsympathetic to the other buildings in Cricklewood.

Comment: The proposed reduction in height of these buildings is merely a reiteration of earlier documents submitted during the previous round of public consultations some two or so years ago. Nothing fundamental has changed in the plans offered by Montreux to develop the site - and this is just another cynical ploy by the developers to appear to be listening to local opinion. Who are these dwellings aimed at? - certainly not the local constituency. Why is there no affordable housing included? Why is this the only truly high rise development proposed throughout the Brent Cross redevelopment project? Why can this site not be developed to the same standards as the Claremont Road sites - which are not as intrusive and contain much more green space?

It is obvious that local public opinion is hugely against the construction of these monoliths - and one has to ask why Montreux continually trying to foist these totally inappropriate buildings on a neighbourhood that utterly rejects such plans. Profits perhaps?

High rise developments is unsociable, health & safety hazards, destroy sky line views and block natural sunlight and in the end is a profit making exercise for developers.

Comment: I previously objected to this planning proposal and my objections still stand. I am concerned that public infrastructure and facilities would be stretched beyond breaking point with another 1050 residential households moving in next door. It is already nearly impossible to access GP services, the local supermarkets and transport links are overcrowded and it will only get worse from here.

A reduction of unit numbers by 4.5% and a reduction to 19 stories will still be far too much for this area and out of keeping. It will block an unacceptable amount of light from Kara Way Playground and the only entrance to the Railway Terraces.

I am also concerned that whilst provision has been made for all electric heating/cooling, there is no mention of embedded renewables such as rooftop PV on the properties. I think that this needs to be reconsidered. At minimum the council should mandate that Future Homes Standard is reached, not the interim 30% uplift that is currently in place.

The proposed reduction from 25 to 19 Storeys is totally inadequate and will in no way ameliorate the concerns and issues raised in my previous objection. Similarly the proposed reduction in residential units from 1100 to 1050 is minimal. These small changes by the developer are therefore piecemeal, totally inadequate and ignore the very real concerns of our community.

Comment: This application was wholly inappropriate for the area in the first instance and the subsequent reduction in a few units does not go any way to mitigate the devastation that the development will inflict on the surrounding parts of Cricklewood. The proposed buildings are far too high and will be a brooding presence that will limit light and be detrimental to the mental health of hundreds of people living in their shadow. The local infrastructure including the sewers, water supply, local traffic and roads, schools and medical facilities will be totally overwhelmed by the influx of new residents. Where other areas are demolishing their tower blocks, now seen as a cynical social experiment from the 1960's, the only beneficiaries will be the developers of these eyesores. As the owner of a property in Needham Terrace NW2, I bought into an area of charm and history not a soul-less environment like Canary Wharf. Barnet Council is supposed to be looking after the interests of existing residents not acting as lackeys to the development company, who will profit from our misery. Development to enhance our environment and bring benefits of the 21st century are to be welcomed but not this ill-conceived plan to drag us back to the era of Grenfell Tower planning.

2/ The proposed blocks are monstrosities visually. Also how is the area going to handle the extra traffic required for the residents of the blocks. They all may not have cars but will require Taxi's to carry them around some of the time, increasing traffic again on the A5, which is already a bottleneck.

Comment: Whilst the reduction in height of the tallest building from 25 to 19 is a move in the right direction. It is still double the height of any other building in the area. The high density buildings will overwhelm the centre of Cricklewood. The impact of this massive building on the environment, the neighbourhood of Brent and Camden cannot be overstated.

As a Town Team representing the residents and businesses in Cricklewood, we appeal to the planning officers to ensure that all objections to the development submitted over the past year are included in the review of this minor amendment. As there has been no advertising, nor notices around the area, there is no way that this revision can be reviewed without taking all objections into account.

The Town Team would welcome a broad discussion with all the developers and planning officers to develop a broad plan for Cricklewood which would help to meet residential needs but remain in keeping with the historic nature of the centre of the town.

Comment: I am writing to reiterate my objection to the proposal. The fact that the application has reduced the maximum height of the towers from 25 to 19 and the number of units by 50 is laughable. This is still not an acceptable building development for the area.

1. It is too high density. This will bring an influx of 1000s of people.
 - a. The area will not be able to cope.
 - b. It will bring an increase of pollution, traffic, overcrowding, public transport will be stretched.
 - c. Existing facilities will not cope. The area will need new schools, doctors, dentists, opticians etc.
2. The maximum height of the buildings should be 5. Very tall buildings will be totally out of keeping with the area. It will be an eyesore. Existing properties and residents will be overlooked.
3. I understand the need for housing. Housing should be affordable. Residential units should be built so they are affordable to the current residents of Cricklewood.
4. There should be more green and open space. A communal area for residents of the new development and a green space for the general public.
5. There should also be a provision for public parking. Currently, the public who want to shop in Cricklewood and patronise the facilities, park at the back end of the B&Q car park. With this loss of parking people will be unwilling to do their shopping in Cricklewood and the local businesses will suffer.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The height of the properties proposed are too high & disproportionate to the rest of the neighbourhood. The density of the development will bring more traffic and strain on public transport. The traffic is already causing jams & pollution without the increased high density proposal on a relatively small footprint. Outside of lockdowns/restrictions it is difficult to get on the Thameslink at rush hour due to overcrowding and this will exacerbate the situation. Consideration should be made to people already living in the area.

Comment: The concerns raised in my previous objection are all still relevant and have not been addressed by the minor amendments.

The bulk, height and massing of the development is far too excessive on surrounding areas. Loss of privacy and adversely affecting peoples enjoyment of their own amenity spaces due to the height of buildings still persist with these amended proposals.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I originally submitted an extensive comment the majority of which does not appear to have been addressed by the amended application reducing the residential units by 50. I do not have the energy or time to restate the many objections contained within my original comments - suffice to state that the enormity of the development, taking into account the current developments (Brent Cross south; Matalan; rear of Cricklewood Lane; Child's Hill (former Nisa store) plus others that do not come to mind) and recent developments (Hendon Football Ground; Edgware Road (north of Lidl); Former Dairy Express site); Former Cricklewood Trading Estate; Cricklewood Production Village on Cricklewood Lane (adjacent to Virgin Health Club) plus other smaller developments (Dersingham Road) and others that do not readily come to mind, and future developments (recalling the stalled application for the Co-op corner site (corner of Cricklewood Lane and Cricklewood Broadway), the upshot is a lack of coordinated planning across the three boroughs (Barnet, Brent and Camden) that can fully take on board the seismic changes to the Cricklewood area and the need to ensure support and ancillary services are fit for purpose (schools, health facilities transport - to name but a few).

Comment: This proposed development will impact the area very negatively. It is way too high - 19 storeys is not in keeping with character of local housing (I understand the tower blocks at the end of Claremont Road are being knocked down so why replace these elsewhere?) . The local infrastructure is already at breaking point - pupils and families in my school are waiting lengthy times for dental and medical appointments. A further 1050 residential units would negatively impact this. The traffic in the area is very bad - huge congestion in surrounding roads and cannot cope with anymore. Our school is at maximum capacity and I cannot see where the school places for extra children from 1050 residential units would go to.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The proposal brings much needed residential accommodation to the area. London has an acute shortage of decent homes and this development will assist in delivering these.

The scale of the development will allow for a complete transformation of the area and rejuvenate a plot that has become tired. Investments of this scale and value do not happen often and should be encouraged and their journey made seamless.

My concerns are the loss of retail that the local area has come to rely on. High floor area retail is in short supply but this could be mitigated by more online supply. Nevertheless large budget items need to be seen and touched prior to purchase.

My other concern is whether this will be for owner occupation or rental. Also with the race for space and the increase in home working will the development truly sell? This is a decision for the developers but for the neighbourhood this must be supported.

The reduced height should be supported so that a monstrous white elephant is avoided.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I object to the revised plan as the new proposal still includes buildings that are significantly higher than the surrounding area which are comprised of 2-3 storey buildings. The proposed development will overshadow existing, conservation-area housing (The Terraces) and areas that were developed for the community via an Outer London fund grant (the town square and Kara Way pocket park) to improve community health and wellbeing.

And, due to the height of the buildings, homes in the area will lose privacy in their gardens.

In turn, the number of proposed units and residents will put added pressure on local services, walkways and roads.

The designs of the buildings are also not in-keeping with the surrounding area. There are also no other buildings within a significant distance that are of similar design and structure.

2-3 storeys would be an acceptable height. I have objected to this development a number of times and will continue to do so until plans are submitted that show buildings of significantly reduced height.

Comment: I object to the construction of such tall buildings. 19 storeys is too high; the tallest buildings are still over twice as high as any building in Cricklewood. The height of the tallest buildings must be reduced to no higher than 10 storeys.

In addition, the current infrastructure of Cricklewood will not be able to cope with the influx of new residents.

Finally, the number of residential units means an increase in the number of cars in the area leading to further pollution when we are facing a climate emergency.

The reduction of floors to 19 is wholly inadequate and fails, along with all the other revisions, to take account of the significant concerns already stated about this development by myself and others. The height, scale, scope, footprint, and resource demands of this development need to be scaled back dramatically. My prior comments about resources, traffic, parking, overload to the local area, transport, parking, traffic, policing, utility and other issues remain. The development will ruin the area, and surrounding boroughs. The changes proposed have done nothing to address all the concerns of residents. REJECT IT.

If they are demolished ALL!! Commuter tourism (people who live close enough but come to Cricklewood for b&q but visit the other shops) will fall to almost 0% as there will be no where to park destroying the trade for all the small business in the area.

Also putting far too much strain on the already overly populated area, too much demand on the already extremely congested public transport links. ALL For the purpose to line some far cats pockets which already would be lined as they have the money and investors to propose such lunacy in the area.

Cricklewood is already too populated and the additional populous would be too much for the infrastructure to cater for.

I strongly object to any and all development plans at the Cricklewood B&Q site

The development itself looks like a complete eyesore.

This really should be about the greater community that already reside here, and looking at ways to better support a community that is already suffering not adding to it which puts a strain on everyone.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Despite a relatively minor concession in the height of the tallest block, the gist of my original objection remains:

We on live in the North East of the Mapesbury Conservation Area, just off the A5 and adjacent to the Brent/Barnet/Camden borders, less than half a mile from the site of the proposed development. I am a member of the Mapesbury Residents' Association Committee and of its Planning Sub-Committee

1,050 'residential units' will still mean a minimum of around 3,000 people living there. The traffic on the A5 is already horrendous and the pollution dreadful. We note that parking spaces are limited to 110 (how will these be allocated? Plus there is free parking nearby at certain times), but there will be hundreds of delivery vans on a daily basis driving up to the site making the congestion and pollution around the A5 totally unbearable.

The thousands of people living there will need schools, GPs, hospitals and infrastructure of all kinds. Brent and Camden will have to deal with the inevitable overspill.

The actual buildings would be overbearing, visible from far and wide, and are totally out of character with the surrounding townscape. A real 'blot on the landscape'.

The over intensity of use is also a matter of concern. Cramming this number of people into such a small area is likely to lead to serious social and mental health issues

And alongside all this, we have the new Brent Cross Town, just up the road, with 6,700 new homes. Meaning an additional 20,000+ people jammed into a few square miles alongside the 3,000 on this site. Not to mention the proposed development on the Matalan site. Living in Cricklewood will become unbearable and unsustainable and this current proposal will be a major contributory factor.

Comment: Without doubt from the social, aesthetic and planning perspective this development, cramming so many households within the site and minimal green space is a disaster and example of corporate greed and Barnets submission to it. Nothing much changed. 25 to 19 stories is cynical irrelevance when the whole project will distort Cricklewood for generations. The Colindale development is more humane and I assume profitable for its developer. 12 storeys at most and more green space and Barnet councillors when they occasionally pass Cricklewood it will not have to hang their heads in shame.

Comment: The proposed development is very intensive for the area. It will mean a lot of congestion. The three tall towers with very little parking. The road infra structure will not be able to support this development. traveling from Cricklewood Broadway to Claremount Road and Golders Green will become impossible with the additional traffic generated.

The whole development project is not in keeping with the environment of Cricklewood.

This development is completely out of keeping with the neighbourhood. Clearly, whoever thinks this is acceptable with regard to infrastructure and traffic and consequent impact on the area has absolutely no regard for the local population. That the council could even consider this is an outrage.

Comment: These tall towers are completely out of scale and utterly inappropriate in Cricklewood, a low-rise suburb. Furthermore they will be visible from a number of neighbouring conservation areas, including the Mapesbury Conservation area and have a detrimental effect on the setting of many historic buildings. They will intrude on our view over rooftops and while we all know there is a need for new housing we also know that this development is for commercial gain and profit and is not to do with providing desperately needed homes for families. The number of units is far too high and will lead to further overwhelming of already busy public transport (bus, tube and trains) and local roads. Tall buildings blight the areas around their base creating wind tunnels and a horrible environment and I see no evidence that this development will benefit our local area. There is no unified plan for Cricklewood and it is shocking that developers are being allowed to get away with such hugely out of scale commercial developments as a result. I urge Councillors to reject these plans and insist upon appropriate low-rise, less intensive development with parkland and gardens which will benefit families and the environment.

At last a tiny step in the right direction with the 6 storey reduction of the tallest tower. Hooray!

No reduction in the height or density of all the other very tall towers. Boo!

If the whole redevelopment issue were not so serious, possibly even tragic, this saga would be like a very bad pantomime.

Almost every comment from the public about this application deplores the density and height of the proposals, and many put this down to developer greed allied with Barnet Council's indifference to the Cricklewood area. The reality is that Barnet's own 'Preferred Approach' document dated January 2020, part of the as-yet unadopted local plan, specifies an indicative residential capacity of 1007 units for the B & Q site, with a potential for tall buildings and significant intensification. Thus any potential developer is being encouraged to bring forward proposals that are much denser and taller than the existing surroundings and, unsurprisingly, Montreaux have been happy to comply. Is this greed or mere opportunism?

Barnet's figure of 1007 units comes from their defining the location as 'Central', which leads to the very highest density allowed anywhere in London as designated in the 2016 London Plan produced by the London Mayor's Office. The appropriate location designation for Cricklewood is 'Urban', leading to the density accepted for the adjoining Co-op site redevelopment, and the Matalan site on the Brent side of the Broadway. On the 'Urban' basis, the maximum number of units for the B & Q site should be 650-750, depending on the mix of flat sizes.

- 1/ The buildings will dwarf their surroundings and will form a hideous out of context skyline.
- 2/ Block the morning sun from the back of our house.
- 3/ Become a local symbol of greed and profit over environmental quality and community cohesion.
- 4/ Too many dwellings in an already overcrowded neighbourhood.
- 5/ Provide minimal improved infrastructure so support the expansion of population.

A more realistic height for the buildings would be a maximum of 5 stories.

Comment:Part 2 of 2

On building heights, Barnet's own Tall Building Update 2019 specifies a maximum height of 14 storeys for Cricklewood town centre, unlike Brent Cross South and West where taller buildings are sanctioned, so almost all of the proposed B & Q site buildings are too tall. Any building of 15 storeys or more are classified by Barnet as Very Tall Buildings, and none were envisaged by Barnet for Cricklewood. The planning officer's assessment for the adjoining Co-op site mentions the 9 storey block recommended for approval acting as a barometer for future buildings on the B & Q site.

Understandingly the Government and Mayor's Office are keen to build as many housing units as possible, but all the guidance stresses this should not detract from the nature of surrounding places and the quality of life of those living and working nearby. The tallest existing/recently approved buildings in Cricklewood are 9 storeys high - there is no logical reason for new buildings to be any higher, in an area predominantly 2-4 storeys high.

This objection is couched in technical terms for which as a retired Architect I make no apology. Barnet Council is failing its residents by suggesting a higher density than is appropriate for the area, and then ignoring their own height guidelines when discussing the developer's proposals over many months behind closed doors. The appearance of the buildings is largely irrelevant at this stage as this is an outline application to get approval for massing and heights.

This is my third comment on the proposal and my previous comments still apply. Now that the "Landmark" building has had its head chopped off, Barnet should do the right thing by asking Montreaux to withdraw their application and open new discussions, preferably with some meaningful community consultation, on a much smaller scheme more appropriate to the historic centre of Cricklewood. All local residents, both current and future, deserve a better redevelopment than this.

All my previous objections still stand . Houses will be darker and there will be an awful 'view'. That is no view absolutely ghastly . It looks ugly and does not belong in this part of inner London which has wonderful Victorian history and architecture .

I cannot imagine there will be a call for this sort of housing reduced by 50 units in the new plans anyway . People are looking for space particularly outside space . This kind of development is outdated before it is started . Create something beautiful please which will enhance our lives not ruin it !!

The small change to one building by the developer is totally inadequate and does not address the many problems that such inappropriate tower blocks will cause for the Railway cottages and the whole surrounding area.

To summarise:

The buildings are too high.

They will dominate the entire area and ruin the character of Cricklewood.

They will impose on this conservation area and its important role as a green oasis in the city.

They will affect views for many people.

They will hugely curtail light to residences.

We are not the among the Developer's paid professionals engaged to submit a steady gamesmanship stream of inconsequential amendments designed to dilute previous huge negative public feedback to this unwholesome project.

I expect that very few of any previous silent objectors have changed their minds, a fact impossible to determined unless an independent random poll is mounted, approved and paid for by some rare counterpart to the developer to question, say, a random sample of 200 now-silent of them.

Why not ask Tim Harford of Radio 4's "More or Less" to adjudicate? Meanwhile Objection Exhaustion sets in and the Developer's hirelings can crow that their minor twiddles are effectively approved because there's now dwindling negative public feedback.

ALL the developer's buildings remain far too high to nestle comfortably within their existing neighbouring community. Even Brent's upcoming Matalan plan set its height limit at an ungainly 9 stories. Thus our developer's gamespersonship of attempting to dilute local objections should be robustly ignored by the Planning Committee. Make Barnet match Brent at a compromised 9 stories maximum height in Cricklewood.

Consider too that the emerging likelihood of repeated pandemics increasing the surging trend of urban exodus. If it's easier and perhaps safer to work remotely online from the county (as reflected in rising country property prices) why battle the trend by risking future empty nests too high in the sky?

Comment:a) The impact of the number and height of the tall buildings is completely out of keeping with Cricklewood which is Edwardian/Victorian in character.

b) The density of the units is inappropriate in a suburban environment and will destroy the human scale of the area. Add to that the emerging likelihood of repeated pandemics.

c) The loss of light to the existing (and especially the Railway Terraces C will severely decrease the quality of life.

d) The visual dominance of the proposed height and number of the tall towers and buildings will destroy the character of this part of London.

e) the increase pressure on local resources, increase to traffic (already at breaking point) will make life unbearable for local residents.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I wish to reiterate the very strong objections I have already made and which are posted on the LBB's Portal. I shall add one or two additional points.

The reduction of the tallest of the proposed towers from 25 to 19 storeys is nowhere near sufficient to make it remotely compatible with the other tall buildings in Cricklewood. For example (and this is a point not included in my original objection) the tallest residential high-rise block, Ashford Court is 8 storeys high. It is in Brent, but very close to the B&Q site and can be seen from the A5. A building rising to the height of 9 storeys on the B&Q site would dominate the skyline on Cricklewood Lane and the surrounding neighbourhood. One rising to 19 storeys is totally unacceptable. Something closer to 10 storeys is at the limit of what would be acceptable. I want to make clear as a resident of the Cricklewood Railway Terraces for 45 years, that never before in all those years has a planning application so totally inappropriate to the existence of our cherished conservation area been made. Not only (for reasons fully stated in my earlier objection) is it inappropriate; it is profoundly insensitive and arrogant of the applicants to imagine that they can get away with it. To imagine that the reduction to 19 storeys would dupe us into accepting this as a magnanimous concession, insults our intelligence. We live in a LBB conservation area of Victorian cottages of a character possibly unique in London. Anyone with the slightest awareness and concern for such a cherished and nurtured environment would understand immediately that to build a massive high-rise concrete conglomeration of this size and towering height, would never be accepted to the local residential and commercial communities. This objection has nothing to do with 'nimbyism' or opposition to residential buildings. There is a desperate need for more social housing. The objection is to THIS particular development in THIS particular location.

All points previously made remain valid.

In addition I wish to add that we all know this is the tactics developers adopt. Over ask then make "concessions" which results in what they realistically think they can get away with.

Well it looks like the people of Cricklewood will not be hoodwinked and feel very strongly about this development.

This whole proposed development will forever alter the character of the area. Rethink and come back with something that will enhance the area.

Hi-rise living is for the city centre: New York, Tokyo etc, not Cricklewood!

Comment: My previous Oct 2020 objections remain as firm on today's Bastille Day as I suspect do those of most other local 10/2020 objectors. We are not among the Developer's paid professionals engaged to submit a steady gamesmanship stream of inconsequential amendments designed to dilute huge earlier negative public feedback to this unwholesome project.

I expect that very few among Oct 2020's remaining silent Objectors have changed their minds today, July 14th. But this contention remains impossible to determine unless an independent polling of any Oct 2020 Silent Ones can be mustered, approved and funded by some rare moral counterpart to the developer. What's needed is a statistical benefactor who questions, say, a random sample of, say, 200 the Still-Silent among us.

And why not ask Tim Harford of BBC Radio 4's "More or Less" to adjudicate the result? Meanwhile Objection Exhaustion sets in and the Developer's hirelings can crow that their minor twiddles are effectively approved because there's now a dwindling degree of negative public feedback.

ALL the developer's buildings remain far too high to nestle comfortably within their existing neighbouring community. Even Brent's upcoming Matalan plan set its height limit at an ungainly 9 stories. Thus our developer's gamespersonship of attempting to dilute local objections should be robustly ignored by the Planning Committee. Make Barnet match Brent at a compromised 9 stories maximum height in Cricklewood.

Consider too that the emerging likelihood of repeated pandemics increasing the surging trend of urban exodus. If it's easier and perhaps safer to work remotely online from the county (as reflected in rising country property prices) why battle the trend by risking future empty nests too high in the sky?

PS

On 8/10/2020 five public Support votes existed for this project. Today that ration is 43 Supports and 1921 Objections or 2.2% Oddly no Support comments can be viewed via Barnet's site. Why? They could in October 2020!

Comment: I still object to this application.

- Reducing the tallest building to 19 storeys is a move in the right direction, but it is still far too tall for the area.

- These towers would still be far higher than anything else in the area and would still be dominating and oppressive. Reducing the highest to 9 or 10 storeys would be more in keeping.

- The density of this development is inappropriate for this area. With these latest changes it remains too large and dense a development which will overshadow the surrounding area

- There is still the issue of the negative impact it will have on the traffic on the A5

- There is still the issue of the negative impact it will have on the local infrastructure, which has not yet been addressed

- There does not seem to be a provision for community facilities or for green space for the residents.

- This development is out of all scale with the surrounding areas and needs to be seriously reduced in scale and density so that it does not have a detrimental and oppressive impact on all the surrounding areas, communities and amenities.

As we have all said before, this high rise buildings are completely out of fashion with the Cricklewood landscape and they will stick out like a sore thumb. We do not want them as you can see by the objection scores, and you wont get away with just slightly amending this plan each time to open a new case. Why is every developers solution just throwing new flats into an area? If you really wanted to help, you can design something for the people already living here to do.

By knocking down areas of entertainment and shops, and adding more people into the area with flats and not replacing areas of entertainment, you increase crime! How densely populated does Brent have to be before the council realises this is the issue? It's not that hard, here are some examples: a bowling alley, a dance hall, crazy golf. Can the council please look after its residents for once?

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I find it disappointing that the developers have made so few changes to these plans despite the feedback they have received from many people in the community. This does not bode well, Pocket Developers on Oak Grove and Argent developing Brent Cross South have sought to respond to community concerns with their developments. Reducing the height of one tower from 25 storeys to 19 storeys is not sufficient. I oppose so many tower blocks of 16-19 storeys. All of my original concerns in my original objection still hold. Design in terms of bulk, position of buildings (on top of a mind so adding height) and their negative effect on the surrounding area are of huge concern to me. These buildings will tower over and dominate my road of 2-3 storey Victorian houses. They will overlook and invade my privacy and add to the nightmare of traffic on Cricklewood Lane and in the Groves. I do not believe none of these households nor their visitors will have cars. Where will they all park? Barnet, Brent and Camden offer no amenities or services to the existing residents of Cricklewood so how will all the new households needs be met. The centre of Cricklewood is being turned into a building site and Barnet has no overall plan for the local area. The Galtymore site is still not built on, one the Co-op, health centre site is gone and then B&Q is gone, where do we shop, work, receive services? This developer cares nothing about that, Barnet cares nothing about the 'heart of Cricklewood'. This plan does not provide the public realm nor green space we need, it just seeks to exploit the B&Q greenspace by piggybacking this oversized, too dense, greedy development onto our B&Q green. Please reject this development and invite a reputable developer who will build, buildings of 9 storeys or less in keeping with Co-op and Matalan proposed developments. Finally, the Cricklewood trains will not be able to cope with all the proposed passengers from this bloated, allegedly car-less 1050 home nightmare.

Comment: The tallest building will still be 19 stories, far taller than any others in this area. This will cause a loss of light to many of us living so near to this proposed development, meaning our homes will be dark for much of the day. Would any of the developers want to live somewhere that was dark and gloomy, or do they just expect us to?

The increase in people will see an increase in commuters. With the new station being built at Brent Cross it will be almost certain that getting on at Cricklewood will be harder to find a seat, with the amount of flats being proposed we will be crammed together like sardines - not how we want to travel now we are living with COVID, but even without COVID who wants the stress of packed buses and trains?

There will be more pressure on the infrastructure in other ways - it is very difficult to get a GP appointment locally within 14 days, it will get worse with more people registering at local practices, and especially with the loss of the walk in centre behind the co op.

We welcome some sort of regeneration of this area, but it has to put our quality of life first, not profit for a small few. What about building lower blocks, making sure there is social housing, a council run gym, a green space, a youth club/community centre? These are the things that will benefit Cricklewood, not a scheme that will put pressure on existing residents, making life even darker and louder than it's become in the last 20+ years.

All the objections that I've made on previous iterations of this application still stand, namely: that the building does nothing for the wider Cricklewood community; that it is out of proportion and out of keeping with other buildings in the area; and that this is poorly integrated with the local area in terms of cycling, walking and green space. It is an eyesore and only a building with many fewer storeys, and greater provision of some sort of public realm improvements should be considered here.

Cricklewood doesn't have the infrastructure to cope with the services that will be needed to accommodate so many more people - schools, GP's, transport. Buses and trains will become even more crowded, they are busy enough already and as COVID has taught us it's not good to be packed together.

The pollution from the extra cars on the road will affect our health, especially given the Brent Cross regeneration just down the road.

By all means do something with the site, but something that benefits us not makes our community miserable and harder to live in

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Disgusting proposal that will ruin the neighbourhood I was born and raised in. Not appropriate at all for the location in terms of height and amount of tenants that greedy developers wish to fit into these new build flats. Area is already overcrowded and congested, the introduction of these towers will create a lower quality of life both for the existing neighbours as well as the new tenants of the property.

Comment: This development is completely out of keeping with the area. The flats are far too tall, there is no communal space for trees, grass, playing area. It is squashed together and ugly. I object most strongly to this development. The area is over crowded now and the infrastructure just cannot take any more traffic, the schools are over crowded as are the local Doctors. Please think very very carefully about the building of such an ugly estate and think about the mental health of people living in these high rise buildings, and those living nearby who will lose amenities and light.

Comment: Reducing the number of storeys won't make us change our minds - you probably always wanted 19 and started at 26 so when there was a protest you could appear reasonable. We're not fooled.

The infrastructure cannot cope with the extra people that this will bring to the area. GP surgeries are already struggling to cope, at this moment it is very hard to get an appointment within a reasonable time. Adding more people registering in the borough will make it even harder - serious illness could be diagnosed too late when we have to wait even longer to see a GP.

The bus and train network is already struggling with the amount of existing residents, adding another 1000+ will make it even harder to use it. Those swapping to cars will add even more pollution to the area. This is at a time when we are encouraged to be more green. This whole proposal goes against everything green and environmentally friendly.

The same for local schools - where are the extra children going to go?

Please use this site for something constructive, not for a proposal which will make Cricklewood a worse place for those of us who already live here.

There is inadequate parking provision for that number of flats. There is inadequate local infrastructure for the number of people that you are proposing to house. The public transport is already at capacity. Cricklewood Thameslink has too few trains per hour and the new Brent Cross station is too far away. Cricklewood lane is already congested. The continued works have made it impossible for those living nearby to get to work and school by Willesden Green tube. Are you building more schools and medical centres to help provide for the vast increase in population. It is still too big and greedy a development

Comment: This scheme is manifestly not better quality architecture, but is far too dense and high. Reducing the number of units by 50 and maintaining a height double that of blocks in Cricklewood Lane or th Broadway does not make it a marker for the town centre and the station, but rather creates a twilight zone with only one way in and out covered by large blocks which are too tall. The maximum height should be 10 floors not 19. And where, exactly, in the submitted plans and Cityscape's gloss, are details of the surgeries, lawyers, nurseries, cab offices, chemists and shops? Have local schools and community organisations been consulted as to the impact? And exactly how many units will be social housing, and who will manage them? There are too many unanswered questions for this inappropriately dense and high development to gain planning permission.

Comment: I am strongly against the development of the flats on the current B&Q site in Cricklewood. The towers proposed are incredibly ugly and an eyesore, but more importantly -- they'll no doubt be hugely expensive and aren't at all in-keeping with the look of Cricklewood. The site itself is nowhere near big enough to house 5 high-rise towers. I'm also worried about the possible gentrification and loss of the areas' existing character and culture. Again, I cannot overstate how ugly these buildings are.

Reducing the height of the tallest building from 25 to 19 stories will still leave residents with an eyesore more than double the tallest buildings in the area and does not follow Barnet's own guidance on tall buildings. There is no longer any social housing which was one of Montreaux's big boasts in the original application. We do not have the infrastructure in place to support an additional 1000+ units of accommodation. The traffic, which is already gridlocked, will become even worse with construction traffic and then delivery vehicles as parking is not being provided. There is not one thing that redeems this ridiculous ill thought out scheme. Why don't you build something within Barnet rather than blight Brent and Camden.

The number of dwellings/occupants is still unsustainable with regard to transport, schools and doctors.

Comment: My two previously submitted objection comments still stand. I am submitting this additional objection due to the reduction in height of one tower.

The proposal is still too high for the area and only one tower has been reduced, so the development remains too dense and too high. It will tower over and shadow existing communities. Invading privacy and blocking light for the flats to the East and Railway Terraces to the West of the site.

The outside spaces are insufficient for the density of the development, putting pressure on the tiny public play area at the end of the Railway Terraces.

Amenities in this southern tip of Barnet are inadequate for such an enormous influx of residents.

Comment:Skyscrapers are not appropriate in Cricklewood; there is not the infrastructure to cope with a huge influx of residents. Traffic is already gridlocked for most parts of the day. If residents are not allowed cars the area will be overwhelmed with homedelivery vehicles. In the original plan there was a proposal for 30% of units to be affordable housing. Is this no longer the case?

Reducing the height of the tallest building from 25 to 19 stories will still leave residents with an eyesore more than double the tallest buildings in the area and does not follow Barnet's own guidance on tall buildings.

This proposed development is completely out of character for Cricklewood. The developers and Barnet are trying to link the area with the Brent Cross South development and the 2 areas are completely different. One is a brand new brown field development and the other established inner London area where existing buildings are no more that 3 or 4 storeys.

Comment: In my personal opinion this development is too big and too tall and not in sympathy with its surroundings. The Railway Cottages which are a conservation area will be dwarfed and a large element of their privacy removed as the new buildings will be visible from the Terraces and will have a great impact on the people already living here. There has been no consideration to build in keeping with the area whatsoever and these huge modern blocks will look totally out of place and change the look and the feel of the area forever. This area has already been greatly changed with the presence of HMO's and other buildings not to mention all the developments going up along the A5 again impacting the Terraces. Plus the current infrastructure which is already stretched will not support the impact of thousands of new people. And there will be many more than is estimated by the developers as the new tenants will be tempted to share their dwellings in order to pay the rents which I am sure will not be truly affordable. The people already living in this area are being sacrificed on the altar of commercialism and greed and without any thought for their welfare. I know housing is needed but it could be designed and built in a more imaginative way to better fit the current surroundings. We all bought our houses here for the peace and greenery provided by the Terraces and the feeling of ageless peace but this is now being shattered on a daily basis. There needs to be a radical rethink about how this area is being developed and not just whacking people in to small areas because there are convenient rail and bus links which will be massively overcrowded. And lastly who is going to police the open spaces these developments will have. We already have ongoing problems with drug use and people misusing the local playground and the residents living near to that are on top of it all the time. Who is going to be on top of the new open spaces or are they just being left to chance?

Comment Reasons:

Comment: This 'new' application is very little different from the last one, reducing one of the blocks a little in height. The plans remain a desperate overcrowding of the site, and totally out of keeping with the surrounding buildings in Cricklewood.

Since many people are now looking to move out of London since the pandemic and the rise of Working from Home, it is by no means certain that this development will ever be fully occupied. It does not provide the much needed social housing, and it will be a burden on local services, including doctors' surgeries.

It is not fitting with the landscape of the area and will create a literal shadow over the surrounding buildings. This community does not want it and there is not enough space, schools, GPs or supporting infrastructure to accommodate that many new residence. Do not allow planning permission.

Comment: The proposed development is too tall, too overpowering and will add to overcrowding in the local area.

The proposed development goes AGAINST your own planning principles. There is no affordable housing, no medical facilities and would add to the already overcrowded transport for Cricklewood railway station.

The proposed height of the buildings breach Barnet's planning frameworks and policies, from the Cricklewood Brent Cross and West Hendon Development Framework and last year's Tall Buildings Update and the policies referenced in those documents.

I whole heartedly object this development and the fact that this consultation period was not even advertised to your own constituents.

Comment: The visual impact is underestimated in the submitted documents unless the developers are planning to make the high rises blue wire framed and sky coloured.

The health assessment noted that GP services are already overcapacity for the average pts/GP so additional 1050 patients is likely to make access to health worse from 2025 when the building work is slated to be completed. This is on top of the projected population increase for the area in the next 4 years.

Child's hill area is also over the average for population density at present, so this development will have a detrimental impact on the quality of life for residents in this borough.

Not in favour of this development.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: This proposal of multiple tower blocks in Cricklewood is absurd. The buildings are too tall, far higher than anything else in the area and completely out of character with the area and other recent and planned developments and will be an eyesore on the skyline. These types of tower blocks will make a lovely part of Cricklewood village area feel like a soulless high density slum. There will be too many people living in that small area for the local area with no expansion of the shops or amenities in the area. Plus, the vehicle traffic going to/from this many flats will cause even worse traffic chaos than there already is in the Cricklewood Lane / Cricklewood Broadway / Ashford Rd area. This needs to be modified to far fewer flats and buildings of height more in line with the character of the area.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: These blocks will be out of keeping with the character of Cricklewood. They will dwarf all the surrounding low and medium rise buildings. Many of the high rise developments of the 1960s have been demolished (e.g. Red Rose Flats, Glasgow) because they turned out to be unsuitable for happy and healthy human urban life. The developers at that time can, to some extent, be forgiven because they didn't have the benefit of experience.

Barnet council have no such excuse, They must heed past mistakes. The priority for the development of an urban area must be the interest and quality of life of those who are going to live in it rather than how profitable it is for investors, most of whom will neither know nor care where Cricklewood or what happens to it. Cricklewood isn't perfect but it has proved itself a decent area for people to live in. Most residents are pretty content to live here - as evidenced by the scale of objection to this development. The council have a duty to look after the interests of their electorate. They MUST heed the objections that have been made and finally put a stop to these proposals for development in their present form. They should have got the message by now. Don't come back in a month's time with same proposal, You have been told. LISTEN.

It's also ridiculous to think our already struggling infrastructure could tolerate the number of residents the development would bring; the traffic, GP practices and transport are already at breaking point.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Abysmal fit with the current landscape and will be an absolute eyesore.

Does not benefit the current community at all and will only put pressure on stretched public services.

No social housing which doesn't fit with the majority of people who live in the area and their needs.

The area needs work and regeneration and that should be prioritised for those who already live in the area and surrounding areas.

There is already a strain on public services - drs, schools, traffic and congestion and council services as it is - this will make things worse for current residents.

Unnecessary and unwanted housing. Should be helping people first and regenerating old run down buildings rather than building new at such a considerable cost.

It will dominate the area for miles around and hugely (and negatively) affect the nature of the entire area for miles around. Not only is this density of housing out of keeping with the area but it will also put huge pressure on nearby services and amenities

Comment: I strongly object to this ill thought out project, NO consideration for the area & its people edging in on the corner of Brent & Camden !!! To put over 2,000 more people in this village type area with over 1,500 more cars is sheer (let's kill the environment in the Cricklewood area)

BRENT COUCIL are making this area safe,

Environmental by closing roads & planting tree & shrubs plants boxes keeping the fumes away from children around school areas, which is nearly 100% one story Victorian houses & to try & put BARNETS HIGH RISE MONEY BOXES, into an already busy area with all the pollution that it would bring is

TOTALLY UNEXCEPTIONABLE for the people leaving & working in CRICKLEWOOD,

WHY is BARNET doing this you have many train stations & MANY MORE OPEN SPACES !!!!!

Why cramp us in with your unwelcome monstrous small boxes

Piled high lagoon? put it in the middle of BARNET we don't want or need it.

I can't think of anything more obscene than putting this concrete pile in the middle of our ground & 1st floor houses.

We actually won't the 3 stores on this site & use them as our local diy, tiles & pound land & know the people that work there, part of OUR COMMUNITY,

So take it away & put it closer to your community's we need no :- eye saw, over crowding, cars & all the rubbish they take it & they will bring. it's really a no brainer.

A badly NOT thought out project that needs to be rethought somewhere else.

Comment: My previous objections to this planning application still stand despite the amendments made. The blocks are still far too high and overshadow an otherwise low rise area. This small change to the height of one of them is totally inadequate, and there has been no attempt to address the problems they will cause - overcrowding of local transport and other infrastructure, as well as causing more pollution on already crowded roads. There are several other large developments already underway or completed in the area, and I feel there is no regard being paid to Cricklewood's character or its ability to absorb such an increase in housing.

Comment: I believe that the proposed development is still too large, particularly the tallest building at 19 storeys, and thus is out of keeping with the surrounding area. I acknowledge the need for more housing and do not object to the development in principle but all the buildings should be brought more in line with the existing surroundings.

The housing density at more than 1000 units on the site will also create serious traffic problems on one of the few crossing points for the railway line, and does not appear to have adequate provision for the amenities that this number of additional residents will require.

Reducing the height of the tallest tower is really not taking into account the reasons that hundreds of residents have voiced their anxieties and shock. Basically the development is totally out of place in this area: already one of the most polluted parts of London; infrastructure not in place to support the overload of population and traffic; the proposed buildings are too high and too many for the site footprint. The development needs a total rethink.

Comment: I find these buildings far too tall, far too dense and generally overpowering to the buildings and streets around them. They will dominate Cricklewood Lane on both sides of the railway and from Ashford Road, Depot Approach and Kara Way. I feel really sorry for the residents of the small roads close by the site, but all Cricklewood residents will be affected in their daily lives. These high rise blocks are unacceptable and out of keeping with the area - they go against Barnet's own planning rules.

All plans should not detract from the nature of the surrounding area and the quality of life of those living and working nearby. These plans certainly do - I am concerned that this may be down to developer greed allied with Barnet Council's indifference to the Cricklewood area. Shame on them.

Comment: The proposed building is too high for this area. We are surrounded by shorter buildings (the height of the telephone exchange has been a previous benchmark) as most houses in Cricklewood are Victorian family dwellings. There are several new housing developments applying for planning in Cricklewood which does not have the facilities to serve the thousands of new residents that will be added to our community. Cricklewood Broadway and the surrounding roads are already clogged with traffic. How many more cars will be on the road? Bus services will be oversubscribed as we are a walk or a short bus journey from an underground. I strongly object to this development on its current scale and request a more appropriate plan be presented that is more in keeping with the surround architecture.

Comment: The Cricklewood lane is already congested with the usual traffic. Bringing in a 19 storey building is going to add to the traffic/pollution in turn making people's life miserable. The council should consider expanding the road into 4 lane with no more plans for roadworks (road being closed for more than a year already and plan to extend it until 2022) before approving this project.

Comment: This revised proposal remains outrageously unsympathetic and alien to the character of the neighbourhood, which is predominantly Victorian and low-profile residential. The towers at 19 storeys would dominate the landscape to a completely unacceptable degree.

Any new build must not exceed 5 storeys to remain in harmony with the locality. Construction must be assiduously controlled to avoid blighting the area for several years and placing untenable strain on the local road network.

Comment: Reduction of 26 to 19 stories is still not satisfactory, Way to high for this neighbourhood which is hugely over crowded and has a lack of infrastructure for so many living spaces in the proposed location. The lower blocks will be cut off light, the actual spot is very polluted. The building works will hugely disrupted the flow of traffic in this already disrupted and heavy trafficked location. Not enough green and recreation space for the residents in the neighbourhood, let alone the huge amount of new apartments planned. Letting young children play on "Cricklewood Green" is a thoughtless plan. It is a very polluted road and does not have an air quality suitable for young families to play outside. I huge building project like this should consider high quality of living, giving the new residents a decent size sports and play ground, not the size of a postage stamp. The current residents have already been hugely disrupted by the road closures around the station for many months and busses take twice as long. This building project will affect everybody who needs to cross Cricklewood Broadway by bus or car negatively for months on end! The first thing that would need to happen is build a railway bridge to cross from Claremont road to Cricklewood Broadway by car and bus, that would actually help the congestion of traffic stagnation and air pollution. This neighbourhood should not have higher stories than 8, such as the Broadway development. Quality of living and proper infrastructure of green space, schools, NHS doctors and dentists, access to good quality air and living spaces with access to sunlight should be priority.

When I first saw the artist's impression of the proposed scheme I genuinely thought it was a joke.

The proposed reduction in the number of units by a mere 4.5% comes in no way close to making it acceptable. Only buildings of 4 or 5 stories at most would look appropriate on this site.

Comment: The height of the buildings will block light, they are so closely packed there will be wind and sound problems. I strongly object to 1050 new flats. This area is busy enough already. The quality of life of the existing residents has not been taken into consideration. This is pure greed on the part of Barnet council and the developers. Reduce the number of flats and height by half please.

We will keep objecting, until the plans are made reasonable for that area of Cricklewood. Start designing for the area and what it can handle. At the moment, all you are trying to do is cram as many flats into that space as possible. Greed, clear as day.

No buildings of this size at all, no high rise, no amount of extra residential units. The area can not take the extra population, you're thinking of your pockets not people, your profit not people.

Comment: The planned high rises are completely out of keeping with the current housing in Cricklewood which consists mainly of low rise terraced houses. Apart from being a total towering eyesore the planned 1050 units and with it its thousands of inhabitants will completely overwhelm the local area. Cricklewood is already a very busy area and the current infrastructure will not be able to cope with the influx. Where are the schools and GP surgeries needed for so many more people, the transport modes? Buses and bus stops are already very busy during rush hour. There won't even be enough space on the pavements for all the planned new inhabitants to wait for the bus. This building project does not take into account the environment it will sit in, it is purely designed to maximise profit.

The services in the area are at stretching point already especially as Barnet Council closed the walk in centre which was a life saver for some. Barnet council need to prioritise the residents they already have and also think of the residents who are on their borders with Brent and Camden - and who are also impacted on the decisions they make like the dumps and everything else .

To repeat: all the buildings are 1) too high - not in keeping with the local area, affects the views out of the adjacent conservation area, will completely overwhelm the residents of 'The Groves' opposite, the adjacent playground will be hemmed in and the Cricklewood skyline ruined for ever and 2) too dense - local services will be overwhelmed and in post covid times more space and more green areas are required between.

May I respectfully urge the planning committee to put residents before profit and reject this application as it stands. We do want this site developed but not totally at our expense. There has to be an infinitely better balance.

The area is already overcrowded and congested. There are several developments already in progress that are causing noise and disturbance as well as congestion. This is very ill thought out. It would be responsible to approve this and particularly at the same time as other developments.

The latest proposal of reducing the 25 storeys to 19 do absolutely nothing to lessen my objections to the proposals.

How are 19 storeys justifiable in this area? Where is the precedent?

I feel that Barnet has seriously let us down by even contemplating this proposal.

What do we have to do to be listened to? What have we done to be ignored in this way?

Comment: With 19 storey high buildings, I would be overlooked and have an ugly EYESORE at the end of the road I live on. A few storeys fewer than the original application doesn't make any difference to the fact this development would dominate the skyline. The high-rise buildings are poorly designed and don't look attractive. The design of them is just extremely unappealing. I'm worried that the sheer density of the development will lead to increased traffic, noise and pollution. I'm worried about the loss of street-level skylight and sunlight from such tall buildings. With 1050 flats, will there be sufficient parking, or will the overspill affect street parking in Cricklewood? Overall, this development has been designed to make maximum money for the developers, but not to make Cricklewood a better place to live for existing and future residents.

Comment: I have previously submitted my deep concerns about this proposal, and I am disappointed to see that the amended proposal in no way addresses the principle issues I have raised.

1. The height of the highest block - now 19 storeys - is architecturally completely out of keeping with the existing housing stock, and it will overlook large areas
2. The reduction in units by 50 is no way addresses the previously flagged up issues relating to congestion and parking
3. In an area already lacking in green space there is no attempt to introduce this either for residents in the housing or anyone else
4. There is inadequate provision of social housing despite the large number of units
5. The repeated attempts to resubmit this proposal with minor changes which in no way address residents' concerns is, frankly, depressing in the extreme.

Comment: The reduction in maximum height in the revised application is presented as a compromise. It is no such thing as up to 25 and 19 storey buildings are both so outrageously incompatible with the character of Cricklewood Broadway and parasitic on existing, and any reasonable projections of future, public facilities.

My existing objections to the last application all still stand. Personally, I believe that the amended application is a crude attempt to wear down local opposition to the development in the belief that residents will become weary of responding to further inconsequential changes.

Comment: I strongly object to the height of the proposed development. Even with the proposed reduction from 25 to 19 storeys, the tower blocks are totally out of character for this area. They will dominate the skyline and block light. There is little consideration given to outdoor recreational space, and I see no indications of any sensitivity to the local community - which welcomes new neighbours, by the way, but prefers to see them in buildings sympathetic to the local vernacular. It seems we will soon be living in the middle of a building site, with proposed developments to the North, South, West and Southeast of my neighbourhood, which already suffers from excessively high pollution levels from the congested A5. What measures are being taken to mitigate against the additional noise and air pollution which this development will generate?

Comment: Even with the reduction of the tallest tower (by a measly 6 floors!) and a reduction in the number of housing units (again by a miniscule 50) this development is still completely out of keeping with the local environment. Does the developer really think that by reducing one of the tower blocks by such a small number of floors that it makes the rest of the development more acceptable to its neighbours. We will still experience the overlook from the towers, the increase in pressure on local amenities with no mitigation. By throwing us this bone it solves none of the issues that so many local residents, who will be impacted by this completely inappropriate development, will experience. Therefore I reiterate my objection to this development in its current form.

Comment: This proposal is still far too big for the area. The blocks are much too tall and will cause significant loss of natural light to many neighbours nearby and further away. The streets around the area ie. Cricklewood Lane, Cricklewood Broadway and the Kara Way railway houses will become dark and feel oppressive with a wind tunnel effect around the new blocks. Local infrastructure will not cope with any increase in traffic, whether that's pedestrian or cars/lorries. Flooding of the drains and road by Cricklewood Station on Cricklewood Lane is a regular problem during heavy rain which will increase due to this proposal. Bats have been seen regularly in the area and may be roosting nearby. I do not believe that these plans will improve the area at all.

Comment: I write on behalf of NorthWestTwo Residents Association, a thriving Cricklewood residents association with members in Barnet, Brent and Camden.

NorthWestTwo Residents Association remains opposed to this planning application, for reasons that we and our members, our fellow residents' associations, other residents and developers have given. We won't try to repeat them all.

The gesture of cropping a little off one tower block was prepared long ago. In 2019 the developers told us they planned a development of 14, 16 and 20 storeys. Then it was 21 storeys, then that was revised to 25 storeys. Now we're back to 19 storeys as originally intended, but now with 16, 17, 18 and 19 storey companions.

In the consultation process, some objectors have used the 25-storey tower as the most vivid and (they hope) convincing instance of the flaws in this application. The nominally trimmed building remains twice the height of the tallest buildings around and many times greater than the two- and three-storey buildings that are the norm. If it had been presented as 19 storeys in the first place, it would have attracted the same horror, the same scorn and the same opposition. It would still have been used as a convincing instance of the flaws in this application. But time and again, we see that the opposition is not just to one building; it is to the scale and massing of the entire development, its low quality, inadequate separation, minimal living conditions and breaches of policy, and the overwhelming impact it would have.

As the application remains essentially unchanged, we cannot expect the same numbers to participate in yet another consultation. It is good that fresh consultation letters are sent for each change, but you know what we all do with multiple official letters. We look at them and say, I've dealt with that already. It takes a little work to see what's different and a moment more to think, does that change anything. The answer comes, no, it doesn't change it, I have already completed the online form, I have given my answer: I object.

We should all be able to feel confident that our original statements will be considered, we should all feel confident that officialdom won't lose our files. It is very striking that so many feel ready to and feel the need to repeat their opposition.

The most significant effect of this amendment is to remove qualitative claims the developers made for the development. Time and again, we were told that the tower would provide a landmark, now it will be one lump alongside another. It would be elegant; we were never told how or why, and we are certainly not being told how that elegance survives a change in proportions. The repeated claims of a "beneficial effect" did not merely seek to justify its height; they relied upon it.

We note with interest the 19th version of Barnet's draft local plan. While the idea that the site was suitable for 1,007 units was never presented to residents during the Engage Barnet process and has instead been fiercely rebutted by this consultation process, the draft does now state that "The Council will prepare an area planning framework for the Cricklewood Growth Area." This has not been done and it would be premature to approve a major application without it. Any area planning framework will need to take into account the entire context of Cricklewood, less than half of which is in Barnet. The streets of Cricklewood are largely two-storey homes in private ownership and there is no realistic likelihood that they will be available for any regeneration projects in the coming decades. The imposition of incoherent intensification on pieces of Cricklewood will only overwhelm and blight the whole.

Bringing in 6000 new people without having planning for additional doctors and schools to support is unreasonable. Roads and air pollution also need to be addressed before this goes ahead.

GPs, schools, parking & overload the small nearby Cricklewood overground train station. It will ruin the community spirit. It looks close-packed, imposing, intimidating & hideous on the skyline, blocking light & views.

The reduction of the 25 storey building to a 19 storey one does nothing to make this development any more acceptable. The size, height and density of the buildings are not in keeping with the mainly 2-3 storey buildings in the area.

The negative impacts on local facilities, infrastructure, congestion and pollution have not been addressed.

So my objections to the previous applications still stand.

The suggested number of floors is still at least double the highest in the area. I'm not only referring to the highest block, currently at 19, but also to the adjoining ones which are also far too high for the area.

As I mentioned before, I moved to the area when I was six years old and what I most loved about growing up here (I am now about to leave school) is the sense of space and freedom in the neighbourhood.

I am confident that Barnet will listen to the views of younger people like myself who are going to make up the next active generation of residents.

We do NOT want to be ignored!

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The proposed construction in Cricklewood is ludicrous. Cricklewood and the Edgware Road are already some of the busiest, most polluted parts of North West London - adding more people and more cars to the mix is harming ourselves and our children. The construction has not been clearly thought out, as Cricklewood is unable to support its current residents, with only two small, local supermarkets. There is not enough space or amenities to take in a while influx of new people. On top of that, having huge eyesore towers is not appropriate. This is not a part of Cricklewood and never has been. Clearly around the area are low rise buildings, and these proposed developments will look so out of place. Crime is already prevalent in Cricklewood, and more people will only fuel this. The development will take ages to construct, causing traffic and road blocks on arguably the busiest road in London - traffic and air pollution are already problems here, I cannot see any logic in adding to that and making it a less desirable place to live for everyone else.

It is out of keeping and out of scale with the housing in the area and will put further strain on the local road network and the already stretched services including transport, education and health. The parking provision is less than 10% of the number of proposed new properties and will lead to even more on street parking in an already congested area.

Comment: All previous objections I have submitted in connection with this site still stand. The objections are about the height of all the blocks, not simply the one that has been 'reduced' from 25 storeys to 19. These contravene Barnet's Tall Buildings' Policy.

As Secretary of the Railway Terraces Residents' Association, I was contacted in September 2019 by an Associate Director of Montreaux and invited to walk around the site (with representatives of other local groups) and then meet at the Crown so Montreaux could 'listen to thoughts/ideas/concerns. This will be incredibly helpful to us, as we are committed to delivering something that local residents and businesses see as a benefit to the community'.

At the meeting, we were shown various plans and at the very end, they referred to a 'marker' building of 19 storeys. We reacted with horror, said this was completely unacceptable, totally out of keeping with the local area, etc.

As this meeting was about listening to local residents, we were stunned to discover when the plans were submitted, that the 'marker' building had grown by 6 storeys to 25! Now it has shrunk by a mere 6 storeys. It needs to shrink again. This is a farce! Montreaux clearly intended to apply for 19 so added a few storeys so they could knock them off! They are playing games with local residents, communities, Barnet planning officers and councillors. Montreaux is not committed to delivering something that local residents and businesses see as a benefit to the community.

The site may be earmarked in Barnet's Draft Local Plan for over 1,000 units but the plan is just that - DRAFT. It may have been approved by councillors but it is still out to consultation with the public, who will NOT approve it.

All the blocks in the plans need to be reduced in height not just the 'marker' building which has now reverted to its original intended height of 19 storeys. There should be no buildings over 6 storeys on the site.

Planning should be open and transparent. This is not. The architecture is abysmal, even as an outline application. The site is too dense, too high, massing too great - reminiscent of 60's tower blocks. There are too many small flats, insufficient green space, inadequate access for service/delivery vehicles, loss of light/overshadowing of neighbouring properties, etc. It does not provide for quality of life.

Montreaux needs to appoint new architects, design quality buildings that will complement and sit well with Cricklewood's existing buildings and stand the test of time. They need to work with local people to deliver a housing project that Cricklewood residents and Barnet can be proud of. Montreaux might be surprised to learn that local people would be willing to work with them to bring about real benefits for the local community as well as some profit for them.

Comment: The scale and density of the development are still far too great for the surrounding area. Reducing the biggest tower by 6 storeys is not nearly enough. None should be higher than ten. The overbearing oppressiveness and reduction of skyline considerably impact on the generally open and enjoyable feel of our community. Access to health facilities has already been impacted lately. This will result in even more difficulty in accessing treatment.

The agreed alterations to the height of the buildings are welcome but grossly insufficient. The character of the area will be changed and it will resemble an overcrowded, offputting and bland looking area with many high rise low quality buildings and flatlets. This is sadly a significant step back for the neighbourhood, local people, environment and infrastructure.

Comment: I objected to the original proposal. The grounds of my objection are as before. A small reduction in the size of the largest tower block will not alleviate the overall mass of densely packed high tower blocks in a small building plot. This seems to be only a money making venture without proper consideration of place or even the quality of life for those who will live there. There is not enough outside space for the new residents or infrastructure to support them such as doctors, shops and schools. The roads and buses and trains are currently overwhelmed.

Cricklewood has mostly Victorian buildings and is a coherent settlement, which many community groups and residents have worked to enhance. The scale of these towering buildings will dominate the area and contribute to irretrievably spoil it.

I understand the need for housing but there are much better ways to improve density of housing which would enhance the area. The Kings Cross Area Development is a good example. Buildings need space around them and plants and trees so that people can thrive. The Brent Cross development has at least tried to address some of these matters. Is Cricklewood always to be left out.

Tower blocks have a poor history in urban planning and the design of these is unimpressive.

Comment: I have written before. This slight reduction in height means nothing. The development are far too tall and too bulky for the area blocking out all daylight to properties in Elm Grv. Out of character with surrounding buildings, overbearing. Cricklewood Ln will be turned into a giant housing estate. It is overdevelopment of site and will impact negatively on the grade II listed buildings of the railway terraces and the crown pub. It will set a precedent for other development. Maximum av height near railway line is 9 storeys max. This development will be on top of 3 residential areas where average house is 2-3 storeys high making this plan inappropriate for the area and of detriment to local amenity in terms of loss of daylight, traffic congestion and lack of infrastructure to support over 3000 extra residents. The area is overcrowded already with gp surgeries at breaking point. Cricklewood does not need an overbearing giant modern housing estate. This will clash with victorian architecture. Please reject.

A small reduction in the size of the largest tower block of 6 storeys is still not acceptable! 19 storeys will still overshadow my property when the sun sets to the west - an ancient right to light which I have enjoyed for 40 years. Which bit of 'NO TOWER BLOCKS on this site' do you not understand? The local residents of NW2 will not change their position just because the developer keeps resubmitting negligibly altered plans! Redevelop the site - yes. With tower blocks - No!

Comment:History teaches us 1 thing, we don't learn from history. Churchill.

Surely in 2021 we know that high rise blocks are good only for the property developers profit driven motives. It is never about the quality of life within these towers, millions have been spent by many councils across the land in demolishing these built in 1970s. Yet despite all of the evidence the council turns a blind towards the welfare of the local population as the towers are not in keeping with other buildings, insufficient car parking, safety issues in the event of a fire from anything above the 5th floor. Sound pollution from the very close Cricklewood train station means residents not being able to open their windows on a hot day.

Surely common sense must prevail especially on consideration of the number of failed applications, each one effectively increasing the number of floors rather than keeping within the local architecture.

High rise towers are NOT the answer for value housing as the value is not just a financial consideration.

I object to the development.

Comment: A minor reduction in the height of the tallest building from 25 to 19 storeys makes absolutely no difference to my opposition to the proposed development. Clearly the intention from the start was to apply for 25 storeys in anticipation of howls of horror from local residents. Then offer a small reduction in the height of one building in an attempt to show Montreaux listens to local opinion! The truth is that all the towers are far too high and the blocks too densely packed. The whole scheme is shoehorned into a site that is too small for it. It needs to be completely re-thought with input from local residents who understand the area.

The proposals contravene Barnet's Tall Buildings Policy for this part of Cricklewood. They will have an extreme adverse effect on the Railway Terraces Conservation Area immediately next to the site. They will overwhelm Cricklewood Town Centre and be intrusive in The Groves, Childs Hill and adjacent parts of Brent and Camden.

All my previous comments still stand.

Please listen to the overwhelming weight of opinion from the local community and reject these plans.

Concerns on the impact on the public realm, transports, amenities. of such a large development remain unacknowledged. There are serious concerns too over the quality of living and breaches in policy. This has not seriously being thought through. We all know that at first, the tallest building was initially planned as 19 storey high. Then it went up and now back down. The height is one concern of many, as so many residents keep saying. I am not satisfied that the large number of objections are taken in account at all. I also received on all three occasions around 5 or 6 letters, it is odd and a waste.

Comment: This proposal is a non starter. This beggars belief a reduction of 6 storeys means nothing. Height considered as mini sky scrapers not suitable for the suburbs. Plans totally wrong for victorian cricklewood. Too modern, too tall and too bulky. Will impact negatively against the historical grade II listed building of the railway cottages and crown pub. If approved will set a dangerous precedent for other areas. Double standards seem to be at play here. I heard that council planners have been threatening local residents in the Groves with legal action for having overgrown front gardens considered 'detrimental to the whole neighbourhood'. But they do not consider this gargantuan proposal by sheer bulk and design as being detrimental to an area well beyond Cricklewood cutting into Brent and Camden boroughs causing more impact than overgrown gardens. Developments needs more trees/ greenery/landscaping to clear the pollution caused by the extra cars and to soften the impact of ugly modern architecture. This is not mentioned in the plans. Road widening in Cricklewood lane is irrelevant as the traffic will be at standstill at the best of times too many cars in area. Too much housing ie cheap looking flats have been built in the area we do not need any more. That site could be put to better use proper architectural style. 19 storey blocks will ruin the appearance of the area too tall and bulky. We need buildings that blend in with the surrounding area and not detract from it. These will stick out like a sore thumb. Developers and council appear to be ignoring residents' comments in this case ignoring the huge impact on the infrastructure. The local infrastructure cannot support such a large development. Please reject this as it will be bad for the local areas which are overpopulated in terms of people and cars.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I have previously objected. I reiterate previous comments. Development not right for Cricklewood.

Why is this proposal still being considered when it is obvious that majority of people do not want this type of structure in Cricklewood at any cost? No local resident will gain anything from this scheme.

2045 residents+ from Cricklewood and beyond are saying NO!

Nobody would want this giant skyscraper housing estate on their doorstep. Too tall, ugly bulky and dense. It would destroy the character of a historical area and cause problems for neighbouring areas in terms of over population and increase in car use. Clear overdevelopment of site.

Is the message not getting through?

The council and developers appear to be ignoring people's comments.

This scheme needs to go back to the drawing board asap as it is wrong for the area.

Nice try but people do not want it. Please listen to the people.

Comment: I object strongly to this proposed development, notwithstanding the slight reduction in height, none of my original objections have been answered and the intended high density residential tower blocks remain entirely inappropriate in relation to the character of the local area, especially the immediately adjacent railway terraces. Furthermore, there is still no consideration of the changing requirements for central London housing in light of the unprecedented changes seen during the Covid-19 pandemic and whether demand for this format of housing exists, especially in an area that lacks affordable family housing.

Comment: I've already written an objection to this at length, on the basis of the size and height of this development, which is completely out of scale to the area and will place a great deal of stress on the local environment. I note that in terms of height, I note that this is a return to the original plan at 19 storeys. You can look up my previous comments at your leisure, all of which still stand.

I also note that your search doesn't produce the relevant result using "Cricklewood Lane" and I had to find the reference number in order to find the application. Shabby, I think.

We shouldn't have to keep objecting when the plans are only tweaked?!

1050 flats is too many regardless of the high changes and the blocks are too close together and overlook too many neighbouring houses blocking out daylight and would cast a shadow over the neighbouring communities.

Recent flooding issues confirm that these builds would not help with the environmental impact high rise blocks and bad design and planning have on all the local drainage and infrastructure that isn't set up to cope with the additional use. Off setting its impact should not be allowed. please design a solution that works and creates something amazing that the whole community can get behind not just for making money or to get sign off to sell on to another developer.

Comment: The reduction from 25 stories to 19 does not go far enough. The maximum height for ALL the buildings on the site should not exceed 16 stories.

I am still concerned that there is a lack of planning between the boroughs of Barnet, Brent and Camden which these buildings and the Cricklewood town centre impacts.

There is not enough evidence that the planners have taken the needs and infrastructure of the area into consideration.

Comment: All my previous objections to this development still stand. The minor change to the height of one block is completely inadequate - clearly nothing more than gesture by the developer to make it appear that they are "listening" to local concerns. They are not. This amendment will make no material difference to the hugely detrimental impact which the development will have on the community, character and infrastructure of Cricklewood. The height of all the blocks, their density and design are totally out of keeping and out of scale with neighbouring streets, including the adjacent Railway Terraces conservation area. They won't offer quality of living to their occupants, and they will significantly damage quality of living for the existing Cricklewood community. Please, please, please - reject this proposal.

Comment: Further to my previous objection. I am still not satisfied with the height of the buildings and volume of flats. Less than 15 storeys should be the maximum. As the Covid-19 figures show for Brent/Barnet there are too many people in highly dense living communities. Councils and Councillors need to take a stock of this and be driven by a better quality of living. Levelling up across the London Boroughs, and indeed the country, should be considered.

Local infrastructure i.e. doctors, dentists, hospitals, schools etc. is still woefully inadequate.

Comment: I see that Barnet planners have already published their report to the planning committee even though this consultation is still open.

I read in the report that "all objections, received across the three consultations have been taken into account", even though this consultation is still open.

I see in the report a cursory and inadequate summary of objections "In the interests of brevity", rather than in the interests of open decision-making or fairness. I see that the objections are not directly addressed there or in the rest of the report.

Though this portal is still open and the consultation period has not expired, we have tried to inform fellow residents that the report and recommendations have been published. This may mean fewer objections are received, but we don't want people wasting their time under false pretences of a continuing process.

I strongly object to this breach of process and to the disrespect shown to the public.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I still object to this development despite reductions.

The reduction in height is minimal. The structure will still be too tall and bulky given the fact that it is located on a hill. 19 Storeys on a hill is equivalent to 22 storeys.

As someone mentioned earlier in this structure is wrong for Cricklewood. Clear overdevelopment of site, too modern and detracts from historical grade 2 listed buildings. Lack of soft landscaping. Tall buildings belong in brownfield sites and not in town centres. This is bad planning.

The little snips mean nothing. The developers should start from scratch and come up with something that the public actually want that is acceptable to the people and appropriate for the area taking into account all the objections coming through. Local residents do not want this development. Barnet Planners should take note of the comments submitted and guide the developers. This is not happening. Lack of proper consultation with the local residents.

There is nothing worse to approve a development that will be resented by the local community. No thought has been given to the impact on the local infrastructure by such a large scale development (3000 extra people) in terms of health services, fire and safety, crime, policing, schools, traffic congestion in Cricklewood Lane, Chichele Rd, the bdwy which will also impact neighbouring Brent and Camden.

Please do not send this case to planning committee as it stands. It is inappropriate for a victorian area with grade 2 listed architecture.. Will destroy the character. It needs to be scaled back radically and redesigned to be acceptable to the local area and to residents and businesses as well as motorists.

Given the large number of objections submitted. Barnet council planners should stop this application from going further pending complete redesign and scale back by the developers.

Comment: I strongly object to this development. The planners are still not listening. There is no thought to the local small town centre of Cricklewood with its narrow roads/pavements etc., as the proposed number of dwellings will inevitably generate additional footfall and transport requirements. Following on from my previous objection, the reduction in height of the blocks is still unacceptable.

I still can't help thinking how many empty buildings there is going to be in central London with more people working at home. Could there not be a joined up strategy for these buildings to be developed into residential/affordable accommodation for the capital?

It is also very sad losing B&Q (and Wickes down the road under another large housing development).

Comment: One of the few remaining pleasures of our area, noted in the Railway Terraces Conservation Area appraisal, is a pleasing sense of light and space. These very high 19 story buildings will dwarf our two story terraces. The towers will destroy our uninterrupted views and their shadows will rob us of our natural light.

The Railway Terraces are surrounded on all sides by noise and air pollution. We are adjacent to the A5, one of the most polluted roads in London, and a new rail freight facility. Over 1,000 new residential units will increase the number of delivery and private hire vehicles, adding to the current gridlock and worsening air quality. Our baby's lungs will suffer as a result.

These plans will turn an attractive and historic community, which could serve as the focal point for a "human scale" regeneration of Cricklewood, into a noisy, dark and polluted footnote.

Comment: The developers originally planned a 20 storey building but increased it 25 for the planning permission now we are back at 19 storeys. It's still is not in keeping with area and it's ridiculous tall. The towers are so densely compacted and are not in keeping with area at all. No where in the area are there building this tall and will not be in keeping with the Cricklewood area. There is no consultation with Brent or Camden residents which will be largely affected by the development and will have to bear the brunt of this large ugly, eyesore and overbearing structure in the area as well affecting local residents with no increase in services in the area, especially the increase traffic and people in the area and the transportation needs.

The objections have not been considered clearly by the council and does not go far enough to dealing with the issues raised. Nothing has been done to improve the 'elegance' which was claimed by the developers.

Yes there is a plan for a new station at Brent Cross west however the capacity on these network are already busy during peak hours and there is little to provide additional services due to near max capacity already reached on Thameslink services.

The structure is out of keeping for this area, it is overbearing overlooking neighbouring properties and completely overwhelming for residents in neighbouring boroughs.

Building such high rises will create a bad precedent and lead to further development that will make the area less liveable. As with the new cladding regulation, those will be expensive to maintain every couple of years. Are we storing problems for the future?

Comment: The reduction in height is not enough and only 1 storey less than the original proposal of 20, which is far too tall for the local area and planned space.

Barnet have made their report despite the consultation period still open- clearly the full consultation and objections have not been reviewed nor considered.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The revised plans do little to address concerns raised by earlier comments. The plans are grossly out of keeping with the area and the imposition of 19 storey towers has no justification. There is no need for a landmark in the area (not rationale is given), they will cast no more than shadows over the area and dwarf everything around it for mile and miles.

The marginal reduction in units means no material change to the outcomes of the travel survey and still no mention of addressing the limited facilities in the area and how they will accommodate the additional population.. Finally the cycle plans are misassumptive re the A5 Junction in particular. Speaking as a cyclist there will be no dismounting taking place and this will place strain on the junction and the flow of motor traffic.

The plans are ill conceived and must be dramatically downsized.

Comment:As a local resident this is not acceptable. Whilst I can see observations are being considered, the trimming of one block by 6 stories and 50 residents does little to change the proposals. There has been no adjustment to any other building and the buildings in totality will be overbearing the area. Traffic, light, aesthetics are all impaired by this proposal.

The local area is not designed for such density of population, and the proposals for little to nothing to address any additional burden placed on the local neighbourhood. What additional facilities are planned to offset the impacts? Schools, doctors, train services, bike lanes? Nothing is being given back to the community.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: There is a real need for housing in London, and especially so near public transport. This is a perfect site for housing and mixed used retail. Cricklewood is ideally located for both commuters and the growing number of people working from home. As a local resident, I know it's a very nice place to live.

This application is not appropriate, and I strongly object. It's clear that feedback to the developer from neighbours and community groups has been consistent and completely ignored. The applicant is well aware of the strength of objection and concern from local residents. Following the informal consultation period, the developer's reduction in height of the tallest building from 25 to 19 storeys and from 1100 units to 1050 makes no real attempt to compromise or reflect the extensive feedback from the local community. It's a small site and the density cannot be found elsewhere in the area.

This super dense development would lead to severe pressure on local infrastructure in a location where infrastructure is already severely lacking. There is no provision for additional services in the plan, which is of real concern.

As a cyclist, I am concerned that this is a cycle-hostile proposal. Having a small path to be shared by pedestrians and cyclists does not represent a serious attempt at promotion of cycling. I am further baffled by the suggestion that cyclist might dismount on Cricklewood Broadway, I don't understand where this suggestion has come from.

I urge the committee to reject this application, and the developers to come back again with a serious plan that the community can really get behind.

We continue to object the proposed modifications which still are totally out of scale, proportion and totally disregards Cricklewood' character and context.

Comment: Still far too tall, still far too densely packed, still not enough green space/play areas, still just all about developer's profit and nothing to do with the Cricklewood Community which will be blighted forevermore if this closely packed cluster of sky scrapers is approved.

This raised site, right in the middle of Cricklewood Town Centre, should not be higher than 6 storeys. Whilst this is still far above (towering above) the predominant character of 2 and 3 storey Victorian and Edwardian terraces in Cricklewood, a raised 6 storey height would fit in with the already approved co-op site (1-13 Cricklewood Lane, approved at 9 storeys); the 8 storey built flats at 112 Cricklewood Lane (which stick out like a sore thumb, and are already too tall for the area); and the relatively modern developments on the other side of the railway tracks.

Over 1000 units/families is far too densely packed. It is packing in human beings like sardines. No green spaces, no play areas, no environmental quality. Have you heard of Covid. Have you heard of mental wellbeing. This developer should be ashamed - as should Barnet, for ever indicating that this small site in the middle of Cricklewood could cope with such a densely packed development - let alone believe that it would be anything other than detrimental to the whole Cricklewood area.

For these reasons, all my other previously raised points, and those points raised, a zillion times by the whole community, this is still a categorical NO! NO! NO! from me.

Jobs are scarce to find and also Brent Cross going up now in speed. Roads are few and quick existing points for vehicles traffic is full of bottleneck hindrances. Please do develop the area but consider density, traffic issues, living conditions and ultimately impact on general and residents.

- Building Height: There are no buildings in the area that are high rise and therefore the site needs to at least fit in with the environment. As such, the maximum heights should be c. 8-10 stories where it will already be much higher than other buildings
- Traffic Solutions: The additional flats will significantly increase the traffic on the Cricklewood Lane A5 junction where Cricklewood Lane is the only route through for a significant distance either way on the A5. More investment needs to be made to improve this issue (even with the ongoing changes being made) e.g. including an additional road in the development to link the A5 to Claremont Road

There will be a significant strain on local infrastructure with this many units being occupied and it will have ripple effects on all the surrounding areas with stress on parking, public transport and over crowding. Comment: It beggars belief that this planning application has not been immediately rejected. The revision that reduces the height from 19 to 18 stories and the number of residential units from 1050 to 1049, exactly one unit less, does nothing to address the objections that have been raised.

To summarise they are as follows;

1. The height of the buildings is out of keeping with the area, nothing over four stories should be permitted.
2. The area suffers from a shortage of parking and high levels of traffic congestion. The addition of 1049 residential units and the associated vehicles will exacerbate this.
3. Local public transport is already congested and lacks sufficient capacity to support passenger numbers at peak times. The additional passengers from this development will exacerbate this situation.
4. There is a shortage of medical facilities in the area, an increase in the population density will exacerbate this.
5. There is a shortage of school places in the area, an increase in the population density will exacerbate this.

Comment: I would like to re-iterate my objections to the scheme in its latest, modified form, following a letter received from LB Barnet on the 19th of August 2021.

While I appreciate that there is some kind of "conversation" taking place between residents and the developer and planners, the recent changes do not fundamentally change my position (and that of an overwhelming majority of local residents) that this scheme is out of scale and proportion with the area and will cause a range of issues.

The reduction from 19 to 18 storeys makes no difference - the towers remain out of character with an area predominantly composed of 2 and 3 storey victorian buildings.

The miniscule reduction in overall unit numbers still means local services, transport links (rail and road) and other amenities will be overstretched to the point of collapse.

My previous comments all stand despite the recent changes.

Comment: I believe that the number of storeys needs to be in keeping with the surrounding area. Cricklewood is already over resourced and the number of tower blocks/multilevel buildings are already an eye sore.

West Hendon is a perfect example of where a community has been over subscribed and the feeling of a true community lost.

To do the same on Cricklewood Lane would be to our detriment. We do not have enough resource to maintain reasonable numbers in schools and health care locally to introduce such high numbers will only cripple already over subscribed services

Comment: The latest amendments are a time-wasting abuse of process. The currently proposed modifications are so minor as to be irrelevant and they do not address any of the issues raised in objection to previous proposals. These include the development being out of keeping with the rest of the neighbourhood, not supportable by local infrastructure (roads, public transport, schools and medical facilities), and adversely affecting the natural light currently enjoyed by the surrounding houses and flats. The new proposal is to reduce residential units by a single unit which is 0.1% of the total. It makes no practical difference whatsoever and the previous objections remain entirely valid.

Planners have once again failed to take the population density into account. Over one thousand residences in that small site is severe overcrowding in an already crowded area. No infrastructure for such a number of people is in place or could be put in place. There is already far too much traffic including local traffic in the area. We do not need to add ginormous eyesore tower blocks to an area we have made so much effort making nice for the incumbent residents. Original residents of the area have been shunted as it is. I STRONGLY OPPOSE THIS DEVELOPMENT

There is nothing in the immediate area that is anywhere near this height. I fear that the buildings will provide lines of sight from the proposed balconies along Cricklewood Lane into the sky lights of house on Elm and Oak Grove, an unintended breach of privacy for existing Grove's residents.

Comment: Reducing the height from 19 to 18 storeys and the number of flats from 1050 to 1049 (!) makes little difference and all the previous objections still stand: this development is entirely out of keeping with the style of Cricklewood; it is huge and will overshadow the neighbourhood; the nearby pavements are too narrow even for the existing level of pedestrian traffic let alone for the inhabitants of 1049 new flats; there is already too much car traffic and parking congestion in the area - the flats will bring more; there are not enough schools, GP surgeries or other facilities for the already existing local population; there are many other developments in the wider neighbourhood all putting pressure on space and facilities.

How many times is the developer allowed to make such minimal changes to the plans and the local residents be required to object yet again? I object.

In my previous objection I suggested all blocks must be limited to 8 floors (NOT 18!), and that the number of flats is reduced by half - so maximally 525!

Nothing more is acceptable- ever!

Comment: I was hoping to see real revision of the submitted plans, not that unacceptable buildings of 19 storey high would go down one storey only and the density of units would go down from 1050 to 1049. This does not change anything in terms of density and almost nothing in terms of shadowing, overbearing heights and out of character architecture. The buildings should be 10 or maximum 12 storeys high and the number of units much lower. Where is justification for such revision? It seems that financially the developer would only use 1 unit whilst saving on building one storey. This also means that people would be cramped in as a number of units is going down just by 1 unit. Why such a response? Clearly it did not address any concerns and objections raised previously.

This does absolutely nothing to address concerns about over-crowding and densely packed residential properties, the knock-on effects on public transport, local schools, GPs and hospitals etc, or the increased traffic on a road network that is already at capacity, or indeed increased travellers with little access to public transport other than infrequent busses and trains. I cannot believe that Barney council are seriously considering this proposal, and particularly this pathetic revision to plans.

At first reading of this 'revised' application I thought it might have been a joke. The developer has obviously not taken into account the objections and concerns of the public from previously submitted applications. Planners have once again failed to take the population density into consideration.

A reduction from 19 stories to 18 and a reduction of 1 building does nothing to address overcrowding concerns or the consequential effects on transport, schools, GP, etc. The traffic is already problematic in this area.

I too strongly object on the grounds of:

Loss of area character

Loss of light and overshadowing

Overlooking and loss of privacy

Increased burden on public transport

Inadequacy of parking and loading

Traffic generation, compromised roads access and highway safety

Increased pollution

Increased burden on our sewage and water systems

Increased noise and disturbance resulting from use

This revised application is a complete mockery of making any attempt to address public concerns.

The environmental impacts of the development as a whole have not been significantly reduced. The proposed high-density residential development in this location would still put great strain on local infrastructure and resources.

The tall buildings would still be an extreme contrast to the character of the area, with its 2 to 3 storey buildings, and in my opinion would exert a depressing visual effect rather than functioning as some sort of 'landmark'.

Comment: It's a kind of a bad joke to reduce from 19 to 18 storeys. Can't anyone see that this project is abusive, too many apartments, the area will be more overcrowded, we see it in other areas, West Hampstead can't cope with so many buildings.

Cricklewood is already unbearable, with this amount of flats and floors (too high), will be almost impossible to live here. Pollution also high, it's chaos already. Pls, stop that project or at least whoever in charge, have common sense. Terrible terrible Comment: Truly, this application is a waste of public time and a disgrace - AGAIN. The planners have reduced the height of the planned building by one floor and the number of residences by one - from 1050 to 1049! How many more times do you need to be told that the area will not cope with this number of extra residences. The roads will be gridlocked, and where will the children go to school? In the area - I think not! What school has the capacity to meet this demand? They will have to be driven to schools further afield - adding to the traffic. And what about the pressure on the GPs? Is anyone giving this any thought - or any thought to the impact on the local community. This is the third time we have had to object on exactly the same grounds.

1049 units is too many units in one small urban area.

The area is heavily congested with traffic and this is going to increase significantly more with the increase in units.

The local amenities are not sufficient to support education and healthcare.

The area is hugely congested already and this development will only add to the pollution, noise etc. Buildings completely out of character for the area. Lack of infrastructure as local services already at breaking point- doctors, dentists etc. This is very insulting to change the plans by the removal of 1 residential unit- you are not listening to local people and hoping people will give up opposing this.

Surrounding traffic would become unbearable (already atrocious) and the nearby services (doctors, dentists, schools etc) would be impacted massively. The area already has far too many massive blocks of apartments being built. This proposal is too tall and completely changes the view of Cricklewood.

Comment: 18 stories is still too high and not in keeping with the surrounding area. Cricklewood is a low level small suburb which does not need to be dominated by huge tall buildings. This will change the nature of the area and the surrounding houses. Cricklewood is already overwhelmed by traffic coming off the M1 so Cricklewood will struggle with the infrastructure and traffic for the number of units suggested.

After two public consultations, it is clear that Montreaux and the council are not listening to the thousands of local residents who are very much opposed to the massive and unprecedented scale of a development. Now, we are on a third consultation; and the opposition will remain as long as both parties (Montreaux and Barnet Council's planners) continue to go against what residents want for their local community. The current plans will ruin Cricklewood's look and feel, and negatively impact surrounding homes. Cricklewood has no buildings more than 10 storeys (there is a building of flats next to the Virgin Active Gym) so why propose even taller ones that will block the sun and the views of those living in the area? This makes no sense. My family is against the plans proposed by the developers, and promoted by the council, because NONE of the numerous tower blocks should be more than 10 storeys!!

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I still oppose. This is getting very tedious. The proposed planning application is for far too many residences with too dense a proposed population for the locality. The buildings are too tall. 8-9 floors would be more in keeping with the area. There are inadequate services already in our locality. For example Cricklewood Thames link has been reduced to just 2 trains an hour. This is laughable for a proposed additional 1049 new homes. For the past year it has been impossible without huge inconvenience to access Willesden Green station by bus from any residences between the A5 and A40 due to Cricklewood lane closures in one direction. It is making public transport travel intolerable.

This is a greedy and inhumane proposition for development in an already congested and under-resourced area. The new Brent Cross station is too far to get to. There is insufficient parking provision for this number of homes which will be served with already insufficient and reduced travel links.

There are insufficient schools or medical facilities in addition.

Reduce the number of units and the height of the buildings.

The redevelopment is NOT needed just to line fat cats pockets to make them richer and over populate the area even more which is incapable of supporting the already over populated area. With a train station already too small for surrounding area. And the shadow cast by the over sized buildings will cast 1000's of homes in eternal darkness. And the oversized buildings are not in keeping with the area at all and are not needed. The B&Q site should be left alone.

Comment: I would like to object to this planning application on the grounds that firstly and most importantly it doesn't reflect the area, as Cricklewood doesn't have high rise buildings as are being proposed. It is important for Cricklewood to protect its built heritage in regards to the current buildings and their height not exceeding 5 stories.

I don't believe that there will be enough social housing after all these builders are in business and the business is to make money.

I don't believe that such monstrosities will enhance my area as they will cast long shadows and only encourage other planning for more gastly structures.

I believe the proposal is an over development of the site in regards to the amount of buildings and height. The properties which have been established for decades will be overshadowed - I see you don't take such things into consideration but you should as it impacts every day life for the people overshadowed and has a detrimental effect. Who want's to be overlooked by so many faces as you sit in your private garden/area.

Comment: This latest application has a minuscule amendment to the previous applications and it is absurd that the applicants can "game the system" in this way with successive applications hoping to wear down the objectors. The new scheme is no different in substance from earlier versions and is objected to on the grounds of gross and unsympathetic over-development. The buildings proposed are too tall, out of character for the area, and the number of dwellings far too great; the scheme will cause congestion and foist too heavy a burden on local services and amenities. There is too small a proportion reserved for genuine social housing to alleviate housing shortage in the area.

Comment: All the objections that I have previously made still stand

Over a thousand new high rise apartments for such a small site is essentially overcrowding.

Resulting in poor quality of life for residents and neighbours. The building heights are totally out of scale in a neighbourhood (there is a conservation area next to the site) that generally have two to three stories. It will be like a New York sky line towering over Victorian Terraces. There is plenty of new housing planned in the area, particularly BXS new town and most of the retail outlets on the Edgware Rd in the Cricklewood area are scheduled to be replaced with blocks of flats. The impact of 3000 new residence on already stretched local amenities and the increase traffic and transport demands will be a major disaster and greedy developers are behind this.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I am astonished at this token reduction in the storey height of the main tower. This seems to me to be an insult to all those who have objected on the grounds that this 18 storey building is imposing, out of character with the area and will invade the privacy of those in a large number of buildings nearby (such as the Terraces).

It is outrageous that this is the best that can be done. I am angry (as my Partner lives nearby) that she and so many others are simply being ignored. It is a scandal that is simply unacceptable and I am astonished that the Planners and Councillors can condone and accept this monstrosity and clear over development of the site.

This development remains completely out of keeping with the neighbourhood and the revision makes no difference to the massive impact it will have on overcrowding of local transport services, road traffic and pressure on local medical and other services.

Brent, you want over 1000 new dwellings? There are plenty of brownfield sites available across the other less crowded areas of the Borough, but maybe that would spoil things for the richer residents? Developer, go profiteer elsewhere please.

Comment: Reducing the height of the tallest tower from 19 to 18 stories does not make one jot of difference. The development will still be far too tall, out of keeping with Cricklewood and with neighbouring developments where the height has been capped at 10 stories which is the maximum that Barnet tall buildings policy, or whatever its proper name is, allows. Is Montreaux going to carry on submitting amendments which drop the height by one storey? All my previous comments and objections stand. It is an ill thought out disaster in the making.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: This development is totally out of context with the local area's current problems with traffic and congestion. The Cricklewood intersection on shoot up hill rd is so congested and polluted. It is a nightmare to get anywhere by bus or car or bicycle in that area. This development will only add to this, particularly due to the proposed size of the development. Additionally, this area has a general problem with availability of schooling and access to GP and dentists. A development of this size without parallel development of public services will completely overwhelm the current services in this area.

Further, without additional investment in public transport, this area will be totally disabled by this development. There is already not enough transport through the Cricklewood station to meet the demand of the current residents, and using busses through this area is impossible due to current traffic demands. I am also concerned about pedestrian safety at this intersection as there is also so much traffic in this area and pollution that I am concerned that increasing both the number of pedestrians and the inevitable traffic associated with them, will lead to further problems with road safety in this area.

Finally, this proposal of 18 floors is totally preposterous as there is nothing in this area that is of that size. This will lead to significant problems with light, skyline, and totally dominate over the area. It is completely out of context with the local environment. 18 floors in such a tiny area with no additional public transport, schooling and GP/ Dentists will inevitably lead to a 'sink estate' with multiple social problems leading to cricklewood further deteriorating as a local community.

To revise these plans by one storey is ludicrous. This development should be scrapped altogether. High rise flats are not suitable for this site in any shape or form. Say NO to this development, thank you.

Comment: Vastly insufficient approach to the huge levels of added traffic and congestion in an already majorly over congested area.

The area around both of the entrances/exits to the current Broadway Retail Park are incredibly congested. The Edgware Road through Cricklewood is such a hotspot for peak time traffic. It's a major road having to slow down majorly to go through a very busy, bustling high street. The coop/Walm lane lights are a disaster as large amounts of people turn off here across the traffic, having to wait in the centre of the road. There is currently space for 2 cars to wait. Having an additional 1000 residential vehicles registered to within .1 miles of this location is absurd. The sheer number of properties and car parking spaces is a sign of a disaster waiting to happen.

Please reject this application.

If this scheme it would have a detrimental impact on our community - from an increase in traffic and pollution to adversely affecting local transport, schools and doctors. We already suffer unacceptable high levels of pollution and severe traffic congestion.

Plus there are already all these new developments in our area, we can't cope with any more. It is just inconceivably awful to imagine what it will be like if this proposal were to be accepted! It is a social crime to built tower blocks here!! We say absolutely and categorically No to this!

This project smacks of profit thinking when the needs of the community should be at the heart of the decision making, not lining the pockets of developers and Barnet Council.

The number of flats and inhabitants will add strain to the local roads, increasing the traffic, availability of places at local GP practices and schools.

I don't mind new affordable housing to be built on site; as well as commercial premises for shops etc but it should be of adequate size not damaging or worsening the quality of life of the residents who lived in the area for years.

Comment: I strongly object to these development plans. In fact, what the developers did by listening to the public and amending the size of the development and number of flats from 1050 to 1049 is a joke

They clearly don't listen to us neighbours and are being arrogant and ignorant.

Once again this development is inappropriate and will deteriorate the quality of life of the existing neighbourhood.

The development has to be smaller and of adequate size (no more than 5-7 storeys) for it not to be damaging the Victorian look of the area and not add strain to already stretched resources and infrastructure

Comment: Dear team,

Since moving into this area 8 years ago, the quality of life, roads, comfort and efficiency had decreased hugely - the area has been saturated by developments, road works, construction.

Enough!

We do not want another eye-sore building plonked in the middle of our neighbourhood.

We do not want more road restrictions, diversions, diverted bus routes, cranes, overcrowding due to the area not being able to support the number of inhabitants.

Best regards

David

Comment: The reduction of 1 storey and 1 flat is a laughable amendment - hardly worth the paper it's written on. 1049 flat and 18 storeys on that site is a blight on the landscape and too many more people squeezed into that area.

I dreamt of a skateboard park and a BMX track being put on the land in front of B & Q and in the car park - something for young people to do - and instead it's just more and more high rise flats.

The buildings are sympathetic in Clitterhouse Park, even Brent Cross Town looks as though it will not be very high. Still no mention of schools and doctors. I believe this is one of the worst ideas I have ever seen. Have the powers to be ever looked around the area, or are they sitting in their ivory towers.

Still no idea about parking in already overcrowded roads. Having lived in this area for over 50 years, the planners are leaving many pedestrians without many local shops except halal shops. Not everybody wishes to use them. THINK AGAIN

Comment: This proposed scheme is unacceptable.

The density of the proposed housing is ridiculous.

The design of the scheme is totally out of character with area which is predominantly low rise Victorian dwellings.

Building high rise buildings of any kind will reduce the available light for all residents and will irreparably change the character of the area.

The minor amendments made to the revised plans are absurd - reducing a tower block from 19 to 18 floors and reducing the number of dwellings proposed from 1050 to 1049 is laughable. It smacks of a simple attempt to play the system and wear down the objectors.

There is already pressure on local services, shops and facilities. The impact of the additional residents and traffic will place an unreasonable burden on the area.

This scheme should be stopped

Access to. GP / healthcare services impacted. local shops, traffic etc all will be out of hand and excessive public transport will be stretched. Cricklewood station. is tiny and already challenged by long queues to exit on a working day.

New Brent X station will not change this as. most of us live close by the current

My guess is that the development intends for less floors and will pretend 'compromise. for less ie 15 but think we are too stupid to realise the. tactic.

Comment: Yet another minor modification to the scheme that does not address the core objections I have made previously (as have many others). It is still way too high for the surrounding area - making an eyesore for people in the area. Still way to many additional people living in the area in this scheme without any meaningful provision of additional medical & educational facilities, and adding to an already extremely congested set of local roads. Minor modifications at Westbere & Cricklewood Lane plus Cricklewood Lane & Cricklewood Broadway will not be sufficient to counter the effect of the additional traffic.

Losing one story and 1 flat is a joke. Again the issues I raise is traffic, pollution and congestion of an already over stretched A5 road and Cricklewood Lane. Have you ever been at either areas at rush hour? I am concerned as I am a cyclist who gave up a car because of these problems. Bringing another 2000 people in to this area is not an asset to the area. Please rethink your proposal and make greater reductions. I know you are trying to make money and create homes, but please reconsider the impact on the surrounding areas. Further reduction in properties and height is needed, please take all my neighbours into consideration.

Traffic is ridiculous. Air quality is terrible. Getting a doctors or dentists appointment is impossible. The area simply cannot take any more population, especially given the extra traffic and increased pollution from the other developments on Edgware Road. Walking on edgware Road is a necessity for much of us, as is using buses on that route. But this road cannot take any increase in use; the air is far too poor to be able to breathe properly on it. We need to decrease not increase vehicular traffic, and we know traffic will increase once the dump has been completed. Journey times along this route are now so slow due to the amount of traffic on Edgware Road that many people are being pushed into using cars instead of walking and buses.

Comment: Once again an application for building totally inappropriate flats/housing for the area has been submitted for building. Lowering the height of the high rise flats to 18 from 19 is just not acceptable, it is far too high for the surrounding area. Also how much building is Barnet going to carry out. If you go along the A5/Cricklewood Broadway, Colindale, Burnt Oak, towards Edgware all you can see are cranes for yet more blocks of flats, none of which are selling, Granville Road, Brent Cross Town, Hermitage Lane, Finchley Rd corner of Hermitage Lane (flats again not selling) Dersingham Road (flats again not selling) and application has been put in for the Wicks/Matalan site on the A5 admittedly this is Brent but more overbuilding in an area which is already overcrowded. None of these flats being built are what is known as affordable housing, nothing is being done for the infrastructure overworked local GPs, schools, Dentists, not to mention the sewage system.

To get rid of the B&Q site is not a great move, parking will be lost for those who shop in Cricklewood and the outlets by B&Q, not everyone wants to drive to out of town shopping outlets we need this facility.

Please review this application very carefully and think about the surrounding area and the facilities therein.

All my previous comments and objections still apply - it is grossly out of scale, the blocks are too high, the residential density will, as a consequence, also be too high.

It will be a blight on Cricklewood and all of us who currently live here.

Have new residential units yes - but at a scale that fits in with the surroundings. Not some monstrous block of towers. But acknowledge the problems that will be faced by users of the existing retail premises. How are their needs being accounted for? Not at all it would seem.

Comment: These developers are just out to waste our time!. One unit less, how stupid. We don't want it. Yes affordable accommodation is needed especially for local people but this is ridiculous and only someone from outside of this area who wouldn't have to look at it on a daily basis would be happy. There is not even a nod towards the heritage of this area. Oh I forgot those on the 18th/19th floors would have a lovely view of the area their homes have decimated!. What sort of developers are you when you see there are Victorian/Edwardian railways cottages in their own little village next door. How unimaginative are you?. But imagination doesn't come into it. It is just greed.

If it is that good build it in Totteridge !!! You wouldn't dare!!

Comment: The new proposed scheme to reduce the number of storeys by 1 floor (and by just 1 residential unit) has no material effect on my comments made in the previous application. Please refer to these comments as I am at risk of repeating myself as to the reasons for objection.

The only reason I can see to reduce the number of units from 1050 to 1049 is to try to "wear down" the local residents by constantly tweaking the development in the hope that the community will eventually give up objecting to the development.

In summary, these proposed high rise storeys are a monstrosity and totally out of "sync" and keeping with the height of all the other buildings in the Cricklewood surrounding area. It would destroy the charm and character of Cricklewood. Cricklewood consists mainly of older style houses, some of which have been converted into flats.

This is not Manhattan or central London. The important "through" roads would become even more congested. There would be a loss of jobs as the retail park would be closed. B&Q and other local stores are very popular with residents. It would cause massive inconvenience.

I strongly object to this development. It is a developer's dream to build as many high rise buildings as possible, pack new people into residential units and in doing so, adversely change the style and character of the area for ever

Comment: It's really important that this development is done well. We first came to NW2 in 1980 and have seen many changes. To develop a proper community Cricklewood needs a proper centre not just a crossroads and the ridiculously tall buildings proposed look like the sort of place that families seek to move out from as soon as they can. The adjustments made to this third version of the application are laughable, suffering from the same shortcomings that have applied to the previous applications. There's a desperate need for housing but this seems doomed to be a housing horror.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I live across the road from this proposed development and have done so for almost 35 years.

My greatest concern is that this proposal is only part of a larger plan to put up high rise apartment blocks on the B&Q site, the Cricklewood Lane site, and the Cricklewood Broadway site (of the old Irish dance halls and eventually including the bingo hall site).

In effect for everyone in the area, this will become one huge multiple storey forest of apartments which will shadow the entire surrounding area from sunlight and house upwards of several thousand people on a very small footprint.

Little or none of this housing will be affordable with rentals likely to only be possible for professional workers. The costs to buy any of these properties will be outside anything a normal member of the public could hope to afford.

As has been mentioned multiple times by other objectors the traffic on these roads is already at gridlock and there is no additional space on the footpaths for all these extra people or on the local trains, buses and surrounding tube stations.

If the housing was affordable, either to buy or rent I would be sympathetic but this is going to be the same as all the other projects by private developers where the only issue is the profit line.

I cannot put into words how strongly I object to this proposal. If it was a series of low rise (no more than 3 levels) I would look much more sympathetically on the venture, even if it was purely for profit but what we need is affordable housing.

Thank you

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Even with one storey fewer the tower block is much too high for the area.

This is still twice as high as any recent builds in the neighbouring boroughs of Brent and Camden. It is also twice as high in the recent builds in Barnet near the B&Q site. It will be an eyesore in the neighbourhood. Cricklewood is not Canary Wharf or the City; it is a suburban residential area. Currently the site is in a very congested area with buses, pedestrians, cyclists, etc. Walking is hazardous because of the constant traffic jams with the major east/west and north/south crossroads. The air quality is bad for the pedestrians including for children walking to the neighbouring schools.

When you take into consideration the Barnet Waste Dump at Staples Corner and the new Brent Cross Town development, there will be even more traffic, more buses and more delivery vans to cater for the increased population. There will also be more cars/taxis for the residents.

It is shocking that those who don't know and love the area are willing to ruin the character and community spirit by building over crowded, high density developments that benefit neither current nor future residents.

The whole block is at least 8 stories too high reduction of one flat is not going to change the amount of school places , doctors and other services required or amount of cars needing parking or using the surrounding roads

The blocks are too high, the amount of flats are too many particularly in that area of Cricklewood where it will encroach on the surrounding area and isnt in keeping with the surroundings too much impact on light, traffic and density of the population in the area

Is this amendment an actual joke??? They are reducing from 19 to 18!!??? These developers do not care about anything just other than to make money!! Furthermore where are children in these new flats going to go to school to? The schools are already over subscribed!! It is going to be over populated, over crowded, noise pollution and more cars involved in an already congested area. It looks like to me greed with no regards to the environmental impact this will have on our neighbourhood. So it is a NO!!!

It is only one storey lower so is still a huge tower block which will overshadow the terraces. The reduction only amounts to one residential unit which means we still have an influx of 1049 families in an area which is already very over crowded. The terraces are a very special place and also a conservation area - this proposal is not in keeping with preserving the area.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: All of my previous objections still stand and must be taken into account.

This revision is nothing more than an attempt to sneak through the original plan by hoping that fatigue will stop people from continuing to object. The fundamental problems with the plan are all still there. The development is still far too tall, dense and overbearing and totally out of keeping with the local area.

Comment: I have objected to the two previous submissions by this Company and my objections still stand and my views have not changed with a single tower height reduction new submission. Site proposal still too high, dense, overpowering in the Victorian and Edwardian area of two and three storey area. Cricklewood has no parks, hospital, library or frankly little to no amenities for a few thousand more people should Barnet grant approval.

Comment: This projected development is still a gross blot on the landscape, for all the tinkering that has been done (virtually nothing significant). It is far too large, in height and bulk, and density of the proposed tower blocks. Its scale is too vast for this area of 3 or 4 stories in height. As a resident of the railway cottages, I am going to have to live with this monstrosity on my doorstep, should the planning be passed. Developers should keep proposed developments in keeping with the surrounding area, and this does not even attempt to do that. My earlier comments still stand and should be taken into consideration. This proposed development is abhorrent.

Comment: I still robustly object to this planning application. A reduction of 1 storey and 1 residential unit is not in anyway taking into account the huge number of objections to the gross overdevelopment of this site. THE BLOCKS ARE TOO HIGH ! Nothing taller than 10 storeys is suitable for this site. Anything taller will overwhelm and smother the site itself and the surrounding area. There are plenty of examples of sympathetic designs for such a site in London, this design is not sympathetic in anyway. Please take into account everything I have said before, it still stands. A vigorous objection to these plans from me.

The objections previously put forward still apply this is totally out of character for this area an area which already lacks facilities for the people that already live here. This must be refused.

The buildings are still too tall, too dense, too overbearing, are not in keeping with the local area and will impact negatively on the Railway Terraces Conservation Area. In addition, the present infrastructures of Cricklewood will be totally overloaded.

In covid times communities need more space, not overcrowding.

And why the developers felt that reducing the tallest building by a measly one floor and removing a grand total of 1 unit would make this terrible proposal any more acceptable is beyond me. Please refer to my previous comments as to why I object to this plan.

Comment: This proposal is overbearing, overwhelming, out of keeping with Cricklewood and not providing social housing.

The council is missing an opportunity to create an environment in which people will want to live and thrive. The local infrastructure has not been demonstrated to be able to sustain this density of housing. It smacks of developers wanting to maximise profits over people and the council maximising its council tax income and meeting target numbers in an area which impacts on Brent and Camden residents and not Barnet.

Please reconsider and do the right thing by the people who live here and those who would like to live here

Comment: This development is too big for the local infrastructure. The roads are already gridlocked along Cricklewood Broadway and travelling around the station area can take 30 mins to travel one mile.

The development is near to schools and they will only increase pollution.

The height will dwarf existing buildings and are totally out of keeping with the Victorian architecture.

High rise blocks are crime magnets unless they are well-invested in and then they become luxury and completely out of the reach of the people that need homes. This does nothing for the housing crisis. This does nothing for the community

Comment:Montreaux have shown they have not seriously listened to the comments of local people in their revised plans. This tiny reduction (19 storeys to 18 and 1050 units to 1049) will make no material difference to the height and overcrowding of the area and services previously mentioned. All of my previous objections still stand. This proposal is still basically the same as the original! I hope that Montreaux do not continue to waste everyone's time pretending to revise their plans and their next proposal is more of a real compromise.

Comment: My previous objections have not changed and still stand.

Too high, too dense, no social housing, not enough green space, not in keeping with the local area, not good enough provision for the increase in traffic causing further chaos and danger to the crossings.

This development needs rejecting until they can propose something more in keeping with the local area and meeting more of the needs of the local community with affordable family homes and social housing.

Comment: An 18 storey structure with over 1000 residential units in the centre of Cricklewood will be damaging to our community and environment. Firstly, it will be a blight on the landscape as its scale is completely disproportionate to the surrounding area. The development will also put enormous pressure on local public services i.e. NHS, buses so that community members both old and new will have difficulty accessing them. Furthermore, the proposed infrastructure will not be enough to support already busy roads and cause a huge amount of traffic pollution.

Comment:the area of the B&Q building can be developed giving the area a better aspect, however, the proposed development is too massive. the proposed buildings are enormous compared to the abutting buildings, besides having 1049 new flats means approximately 1500 new people living in the area causing a massive increase in traffic, problems with parking, public transport. What about schools and GP? the increment of the density is not reasonable and sustainable for an area such as that one.

I am supportive of building homes for those that need them but this development is of a scale that is going to make this area worse not better. 18 stories is 8 stories too high.

Comment: I wish to object in the strongest terms to the latest iteration of this proposal. Simply by slightly modifying the height does not change any of the original objections that I have made. This is simply a ploy by the developers to hope that people will not be able to object in time to the new proposal.

The reasons that I listed before still stand- this is an appalling proposal with no concern for the local community, it is simply about making money. It will not provide housing for people who need it, and it will decimate the surrounding area. Cricklewood does not have the infrastructure to support this development. It is a ghastly proposal that will be an eye sore in the area.

Do not allow for this awful proposal to be accepted.

Comment: Even though it appears that the plans for the above development have been slightly reduced, it is still a development which is quite out of proportion to the site planned to be used. Traffic density will be greatly increased and the services required for such an increase of the population have not been included in the plan. The building of any such development will seriously affect traffic flow and pedestrian traffic to an unsafe level. Air pollution will also vastly increase. It will also affect these things over a wide area. The proportion of the main building is totally out of proportion to anything in the area.

Comment: These revised plans do not address the proposed gross over development of an area where pollution, congestion and pressure on local resources are already an issue. Buildings of 18 or 19 storeys are not in keeping with the type of neighbourhood and will adversely effect the quality of life of those living nearby. These building would block out light and effect the privacy of those living in neighbouring houses.

1049 or 1050 additional dwellings will add extra cars leading to an increase in pollution. This can only have a negative impact on the health of the children at the nearby schools.

For the above reasons I strongly object to these plans

Comment: My previous objections still stand. Whilst I welcome any reduction in height/massing, these subsequent amendments are negligible and in this instance the reduction in height will be accompanied by yet more massing in the rest of the development. A 3 storey part goes up to 6 storeys and two 8 storey parts go up to 12. Gather that some of the units will be smaller too. I am concerned that while the last consultation continued, Barnet planners published their report with a brief half page summary of the 2000+ objections and without directly addressing them. I am not against development but please read the objections when it is quite clear that this development is overbearing and cramming over 1,000 units on to a site that is too small by half.

As it is, the area is way too busy, over-crowded and not maintained in terms of managing local incidents and residents and I do not believe it can cope with further development and increased numbers of residents and activity. The closed roads have caused unbearable traffic and it has made daily commuting unbearable, causing drivers to lose patience and which sometimes lead to actual physical confrontation. I have twice witnessed drivers ending up in actual physical fights due to the roads being closed in the area forcing people to use the narrow back roads. Drivers are speeding down the often one lane roads to try and get through the built up traffic and it is causing the roads to be a danger zone for children and pedestrians. How about building a local affordable sports and arts centre with a green area. The area needs fresh air and greenery!

I am lay and not legally trained in the niceties of property law qua local authority planning permission.

The above notwithstanding;

I) There have been "premises" erected for the purpose of the said works, but nothing much in the way of work being done in any way shape or form (seemingly to seek to garner possession by dint of said structure cum porta cabins idling.

II) The planning permission seems to be outright intent on misleading the misinformed (viz., nominally for "Cricklewood Broadway", when actually it pertains to Cricklewood Lane

III) There seems to be no breakdown of the benefit to residents of the proposed application.

IV) Following on from the Grenfell tragedy, and with LBB being cognizant that we as a nation have an extremely low proportion of housing >12 Storeys/Metres tall, how can LBB guarantee that the proposed 17 Storey Complex is not a) another Grenfell waiting to happen, and b) how this fits in with the natural topography of the built environment in Cricklewood Lane.

Comment: I have already objected to this development in its previous iteration. The height and density of the proposed development is too great and is totally dissonant with the neighbourhood and the surrounding infrastructure.

The proposal breaches Barnet's planning policies, breaches national planning guidance and breaches BSE regulations regarding minimum daylight in certain parts of the proposed development.

The reduction of maximum height by one story does not reflect a materially positive change. Most worryingly of all, to maintain the (totally unrealistic) number of proposed units, the height of the buildings closest to the Railway Cottages conservation area has been doubled (raised by a further 3 stories). This revision has not yet been uploaded to the website, but has only been divulged as a result of enquiries made by the RCA and Northwesttwo organisations. It represents a massive change to the visual amenity of the conservation area and yet has not been articulated at all, let alone with proper lines of sight and analysis as to impact. It does not appear that the Barnet heritage department have been asked to comment on this yet. No doubt such a comment would raise even more alarm about the impact on the skyline and visual amenity of the conservation area than the comment on the previous iteration did.

The basis upon which the impact on traffic have been deemed appropriate are statistically and logically flawed, but have not been remedied, despite the Northwesttwo organisations having pointed this out some time ago.

Objections have been lodged by over 1,000 residents, the MP for the area, the ward councillors, local businesses, the Mayor of Brent, councillors of neighbouring wards, Barnet's own heritage department and other internal departments within LB of Barnet.

The proposal remains self-evidently utterly inappropriate and should be rejected outright.

I still maintain this is overbearing, oppressive and intrusive and that it will have a highly negative impact on the neighbourhood. We're living in a very different time to the one these plans originally emerged out of, there is nothing here that would mitigate the effect of any future pandemic or lockdown. The living and working needs people have post pandemic have changed considerably and there is a far greater desire for larger living areas with private outdoor space, communal gardens and parks, not this kind of development. Nothing here suggests a desire to build a healthy, sustainable environment and cohesive community, the need for which has never been more obvious. It seems to me that to allow it to go ahead would be saying to Cricklewood residents, and anyone who might consider living in the borough, that their wellbeing and quality of life is not of high importance to Barnet.

Comment Reasons:

Comment:Our comments are asked for and then dismissed.

The planning application ignores previous comments made.

The whole site is completely inappropriate and out of kilter with the rest of the neighbourhood, The storeys are far too high. The site will be over developed and far too dense and takes no account of the lack of infra structure to manage so many residents, such as schools, Doctors, traffic problems and most importantly, pollution levels for the residents of the new site. The whole area is already over developed and very poor. There is a severe lack of open space and given Councils apparent commitment to green space and thinking about climate change, such a development completely undermines any thinking about these problems.

Comment: The proposed development is too tall, too overpowering and will add to overcrowding in the local area.

The proposed development goes AGAINST your own planning principles. There is no affordable housing, no medical facilities and would add to the already overcrowded transport for Cricklewood railway station.

The proposed height of the buildings breach Barnet's planning frameworks and policies, from the Cricklewood Brent Cross and West Hendon Development Framework and last year's Tall Buildings Update and the policies referenced in those documents.

Reducing the proposed height from 19 to 18 stories still goes against all of the guidelines and in now addresses the feedback that is being given by the local community. The reduction of 1050 residential units to 1049 will hardly make any substantial difference to the already stretched public services and infrastructure in the local area.

I whole heartedly object this development. This proposal is not in keeping with the local area and has been poorly conceived.

Again no concern whatsoever of the impact on the environment that over 1000 residential unit will have!!! so how many people in such cramp spaces will that be??? Ridiculous especially even more so when we are in a pandemic!!! Imagine the spread of any viruses in these conditions!!!!

Comment: I wish to object in the strongest possible terms to the latest amended plans in respect of the above planning application.

These amended plans ignore all the many objections already submitted and in fact make these plans even more unacceptable.

All my previous objections still stand and must be taken into account. As I stated twice before, the development is far too tall, far too big, too dense and totally out of keeping with the local conservation area.

The current revised plan is even worse, in that the block next to the Railway Terraces which was to have been 3 storeys high at the closest point to the Terraces, has been increased to 6 storeys. This is totally unacceptable. Similarly, another block goes from being part 8 storeys to 12 storeys. So the reduction in maximum height of one of the tower blocks from 19 to 18 storeys is nothing but a cynical smokescreen to hide these other increases.

While the L.B. of Barnet's draft Local Plan designates the site as suitable for 1,007 units, Montreaux proposes 1,049. A maximum of 800 units would be far more appropriate to the area.

I urge that this planning application is refused.

Comment: If an amended application is going to be submitted every few months, one cannot but suspect that it is to wear objectors down and we drop away one by one. However, one rather hopes that a reasonable negotiated settlement can be brokered by the planning authority that, of course, allows the developer to profit from the development but not at an unnecessary level that rides roughshod over objectors valid points. I have objected twice previously and note that, in the latest amendment, one building that was to have been 3 storeys high has been increased to 6 storeys. In addition, another building that was to have been part 8 storeys has been increased to 12 storeys. Therefore it would appear that the "headline" reduction in the height of one of the buildings from 19 to 18 storeys and reduction of "one dwelling" is nothing but "robbing Peter to pay Paul" and there is little meaningful change in response to all the previous objections.

Comment: I see the high rise buildings have been reduced in height from 19 to 18 storeys, why stop there? Reducing the height of a building by a small % has no effect on the negativity which comes with high rise buildings! I have seen this practice by developers and County Councils where they already have a Plan B for expected opposition to construction which includes lowering height of building and to be seen as trying to give a little when often they were happy to get planning permission on a 19 floor building or 18 floor! This is a careless and to hell with what the local people want attitude (money talks attitude)! So instead of caring for the general public the developer (and sometimes County Council) have tunnel vision, that is maximise profitability at any cost! The proof and evidence is out there in the public and private domain how such buildings can harm humans e.g anti- social behaviour, mental well being of people living or working in or around such buildings and the increase in suicides of such tall structures. I would like to see the height of buildings be no more than current accommodation buildings heights in the area. One more point it does not matter how much safety measures are built into building, it is a fire hazard and potential terrorist targets. I use to live in Cricklewood and I am shocked that the Council are allowing for such a development to include high-rise buildings...PLEASE REFUSE PLANNING PERMISSION

To then reduce the residential units by one is ridiculous. This development should not be allowed to proceed. What is required in that space are shops and open spaces for the community of Cricklewood. There is enough pollution in Cricklewood as it stands without years of building works and further traffic issues.

Comment: This is the third time I have submitted objections to this planning application, first on this portal and the second by Email to the planning officer. The total number of objections then stood at more than 2000 with just over 40 in favour. It is now clear beyond any reasonable doubt that the applicants are engaged in a cynical ploy intended to wear down the local community in the expectation that those objecting following farcical "concessions" made in these revised plans will suffice to enable them to claim that there is now more support for the application. It is obvious that the 200 plus recorded objectors will not have changed their minds.

I wish to put on record that my earlier objections still stand and I expect them to be taken into account when the decision is made by the planning committee. I object strongly to the very limited time that has been allocated for formulating and submitting these objections. The correspondence between the Terraces residents' association and the LBB has exposed serious contradictions and confusion about the precise nature of what is contained in the latest version of the application. The proposed reduction of the tower block from 19 to 18 storeys is risible; the maximum height that might reasonably be considered is 9 storeys. The whole development is far too dense. It now appears, contrary to what was agreed earlier, that the buildings in closest proximity to the Railway Terraces, which is where I live, has been increased. The development is completely incompatible with the houses and cottages in our conservation area which form a sheltered and unique estate of two-storey Victorian terraces, As has been made abundantly clear in the numerous objections submitted, to contemplate the construction of an estate of this height, size and density in this neighbourhood, is an insult to the community. It betrays a cynical contempt for the architectural style and character of the surrounding streets, The plans should be rejected .

Comment: This application is now very confusing because of the multiple plans. My understanding is that the buildings that were nearest to the Terraces were three storeys are now six. This means that the buildings are even higher and more overbearing than the previous plans. This is unacceptable. The Terraces are a conservation area and were given that status so that the unique environment that we enjoy (essential a small village in a busy London area) remains unchanged. There are several developments in the area for tall, overbearing high rise flats, something that has never existed in Cricklewood before. Previously the Telephone Exchange on Kara Way has been used as the benchmark for how high a building can be. There will be a massive increase of residents in the area which is currently underserved by public services as well as roads which are severely overburdened. I strongly object to this development.

Comment: Once again I wish to object against the demolition of 2 useful valued shops the B&Q and the Poundstretcher. I share the views of many residents in my road to oppose the proposed mega skyscraper housing project proposed for a historic victorian area. The blocks are ugly, bulky, too modern looking, too tall too dense. Inappropriate for the area - ruining the conservation area of the railway terraces. Blatant overdevelopment of site. Too much housing v retail outlets. The reduction of one storey and the addition of extra storeys to the other buildings means nothing. It is obvious that people do NOT want this development at any cost.

Please reject this under DELEGATED POWERS.

This will ruin the lives of local residents in terms of loss of outlook, loss of daylight, overshadowing, burden on local infrastructure and being a nasty ugly eyesore visible for miles. Too much housing is being pushed into Cricklewood Lane without thought for retail provision, GP provision, Green spaces. Cricklewood does not need another giant housing estate on its doorstep due to overpopulation. The road widening at Junction with Broadway has done nothing to alleviate the tailbacks along Cricklewood Lane. This development is unsympathetic and out of keeping to the local historical residential areas. Residents DO NOT want it and will continue to object. Is the message not getting through. Reject it.

Comment: I have already opposed the previous proposals for the B And Q Broadway Retail Park Cricklewood Lane London NW2 1ES.

The developers cynical change of plans by reducing the anti social and unattractive skyscraper by a single storey does not address any of the local community's concerns!

As I said on 16 Jul 2021 this enormous proposal will dominate the skyline in an overbearing and unattractive way reducing the rightful amenities currently enjoyed by neighbouring homes. It is totally out of character for the area and will overload the currently stretched local services including GP surgeries and transport.

Cricklewood is not a travel hub. The station does not serve multiple areas, has only 3 trains/hour. The nearest underground station is 20 minutes walk away.

The additional residents of 1000+ homes will increase noise, traffic and air pollution to unacceptable levels.

The homes will not be affordable for those that really need homes.

Barnet needs 'green lungs' and this proposal does the opposite, suffocating the amenities and facilities and infrastructure of an already crowded area.

I again strongly object to this proposal.

Comment: This OUTLINE case should not even be presented at Planning Committee as it stands. It should be rejected outright by delegated powers. It is obvious that the whole locality this includes all neighbouring residential areas ie Victorian Groves, Railway Terraces, Fairview and Handley Grove estates are totally opposed. It is akin to putting a large elephant in the middle of a field of mice. It is bad planning to even consider this proposal due to the detriment of local amenity in terms of overshadowing, traffic congestion, inadequate infrastructure etc. It will ruin the character of the area by its bulk, height and ugly appearance. It will set a precedent for other developments - which no one wants.

This OUTLINE planning proposal needs to be redrawn by the developers to make it acceptable to local communities. It is not acceptable as it stands. Barnet council must take into account the CONTENT of the many comments that have been submitted. More negotiations are needed between Council planning and the developers. The outline for 18 storey height is far too tall and too many other smaller buildings alongside adding unnecessary bulk not right for historical Cricklewood with the conservation area. Modern buildings will ruin the conservation area. Stop wasting people's time and resubmit new plans when proper agreement has been reached.

It's sad that a chance to put something on a human scale on this site has been missed - I'm sure the council would have approved it without requesting more storeys to be added.

I also notice that the proposal misses the opportunity to provide an indoor community hall for Cricklewood. This would genuinely add something beneficial to the area.

Comment:

My previous objections still stand. The planned development is totally out of place in Cricklewood. Too high and too dense! 4, or max, 5 floors, to make a humane living situation. They will dominate the skyline, and be out of character with the rest of Cricklewood (presently 2, 3 & up to max 4 storeys high).

Cricklewood is already 'full' of residents, in the shops, on the pavements, and having to queue to get into a GP surgery. Where will all those new residents, up to 3000! fit in? Also, there is no underground here to transport people, only buses (already very slow due to traffic congestion) and the train-line (3 trains/ hour at best).

The building of high-rise tower blocks in the 50s and 60s were later considered a big mistake, and many were torn down. It causes too much density of population and also alienation of individuals living literally 'on top of' each other, but with no natural meeting-places. Loneliness and mental health issues will increase.

And, as has become more evident with the Covid-19 pandemic, outside / green spaces is paramount for peoples mental health. WHERE are the parks and green spaces, already sparse, to accommodate an additional 3000 residents in Cricklewood???

All my previous objections still stand and must be taken into account. The development is still far too tall, too big, overbearing and completely out of keeping with the architecture of Cricklewood. It is also totally unacceptable that the height has actually been INCREASED next to the Railway Terraces, which is the closest residential area to the development.

Comment: Reducing the height of the tallest building to 18 storeys is simply not enough! The reduction in height has actually resulted in increased massing in the rest of the development. A 3-storey part goes up to 6 storeys, and two 8-storey parts go up to 12. The development is still too high and too dense and will be an eyesore amongst Cricklewood's Victorian and Edwardian terraces.

There are still over 1000 units proposed for the site, which I believe is too many. It will have a massive knock on affect on the infrastructure of the local area which will not be able to cope with the increase in residents and traffic.

I support this as 48% landscaped gardens, with childrens play areas, cafes and restaurants with a town square off the road is desperately needed for cricklewood. Especially after the moronic local residents group NW2RA supported the demolition of Burtons Corner to widen the road. The objections to towers just amounts to snobbery by many people who do not use the area for anything anyway but would happily stay in a hotel that is a tower abroad. This is replacing a car park and is a vast improvement, everything else is hyperbole. Time to crack on with it.

Comment: Lowering the height by one storey and deleting 1 flat, does not alleviate the basic issue of over-crowding on this site. The general lack of green area per person is immense and the ability for children to play safely without constant supervision is laughable.

According to the WHO we should all have 9sq metres of green space - per person - please do the sums on this plan.

And remember, there is no park to calculate into this sum.

The green space should be sheltered, available for allotments and communal gardening, and this amount of living units requires not just a nursery, but also gym space internal and external, GP facilities, cycling parking and recycled (grey) water facilities.

A site of this size can easily afford to showcase how green energy could be used - including triple glazing and balconies with doors etc.

Overall they are boring building designs when there is so much innovative architecture for living spaces including work/live space and workshops that could be provided.

The infrastructure cannot support the concentration of that many people:

increased congestion, pollution, waste removal will all become significant issues. Notwithstanding the already reduced health support in the area.

The physical size of the development is going to cast an actual and

The sheer height 19 storeys for one of the structures will totally overshadow the area, especially for those living nearby. Could it not be re-planned at a much lower height? OK, there will be fewer homes, but one has to think about the people already living in Cricklewood.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I submit an objection to this planning as it will have an adverse affect on the local inhabitants as the structures proposed are too tall and too dense for the surrounding area.

There are no significant provisions to provide additional transport infrastructure or healthcare amenities for the increase in local residents and as such will be detrimental.

From Barnets own Tall Building Guidance document, proposals for tall buildings 8-14 storeys should consider:

- Protected views that should be considered.
- Conservation areas and the impact of height

This current proposal is at odds with this guidance as the Cricklewood Railway Terraces are a designated Conservation area and will be negatively impacted by the tall buildings (8-14 storeys) and even more by the proposed Very tall buildings (15 storey and above) at the B&Q site.

Given the size and proximity of these buildings to the Cricklewood Railway Terraces, an environmental impact of additional noise, light restriction, funneling wind would all potentially be detrimental to existing residents.

All my previous objections still stand.

I find it completely unacceptable that Montreux have doubled the height of the building height nearest to the Railway Terraces and another building increased from 8 stories to 12, while the letter that went out was worded in such a way that it seemed they were reducing the over all heights (with the reduction in residential units) when only ONE building was reduced by a single floor.

I still strongly believe that this development is far too big, too dense and completely out of keeping with the area - there are absolutely no buildings even remotely near that are anywhere near that tall and completely unacceptable that they have increased the heights of buildings near the Terraces.

This clearly shows a lack of empathy and commitment to the Cricklewood area. It also shows a great disrespect to existing residents and users. The buildings are too tall and there are too many residential units. The whole plans should be rejected and other developers should be given the opportunity to bid to develop the site with the concerns of residents in mind.

There are too many residential units. There will be an increase in traffic and pollution. Existing infrastructure will be put under pressure. Doctors, dentist, schools, public transport etc. the area need to be developed with fewer residential units, shorter buildings and more green space, public and private.

Comment: The repeat sequence of application and rejection appears to be playing out here in Cricklewood. The cynical approach of commercial developers to reduce the building height applications storey by storey, after failed applications, and re-apply in an attempt to fatigue genuine and valid objections is a cynical abuse of the process and must be called out.

It is clear that the planned dimensions of this project far exceed the proportions of other structures in the area; the number of proposed occupiers will be too great for available services, viz. schools, medical facilities, parking and roads; and in which the developers have scant interest. Notably the proposed number of planned residential units and their future occupiers dwarfs the current resident population.

Sewage and water have not been addressed.

And chiefly, this is a greedy commercial attempt by developers who have no genuine local interest and who wish only to force through a project by crafty strategy.

Barnet Council has a clear responsibility to act fairly, decisively and in the interests of the area and existing residents.

The height of the proposed development is still too height to be suitable for the area, which dominates 2 floor properties.

The highest is Ashford Court with 9 floors.

The Size of the proposed flats is not suitable for families .. Families don't need sheds to live in, they need rooms which can accommodate multipurpose lives.

Density of proposed housing is claustrophobic.

No extra facilities, no extra roads, schools, surgeries ..

We need a sensible town planning suitable to multicultural community in the area, not maximum profit for the developer who doesn't understand the needs of the local people.

I object

Comment: This application remains a totally unacceptable overdevelopment of the B&Q site. Although the height of the tallest blocks have been cut, they remain vastly taller than anything else in Cricklewood. In addition parts of some blocks have actually been increased in height.

This development is still far too dense and out of keeping with the neighbouring residential properties, including those in the Railway Terraces conservation area. It would also overload local roads and other infrastructure and facilities.

This proposed development also provides insufficient genuinely affordable housing.

Comment: Firstly I would like to stand by all the comments I have made previously. Looking at the new plans nothing has significantly changed in fact the proposals have got worse. In particular a 6 storey high block instead of the original 3 nearest to the Terraces where I live. This particular part of the development will directly affect my quality of life. there will be less light in the house which is already quite dark and the view will be claustrophobic and ugly. Some storeys seem to have increased in height. What is going on? Our past objections seem to have been ignored and certainly the consultations. It is a horrific scheme aesthetically and to go ahead would completely destroy the Victorian character and vast history of Cricklewood .

The height of all the blocks must be vastly reduced so that the area can absorb the extra buildings and indeed people with minimal detrimental effect. As I have said before this is also an outdated scheme post pandemic. City workers are due to be halved have it on good authority and these flats therefore already past their sell by date. This monstrous scheme must not be allowed to go ahead.

Comment: I use this area of Cricklewood all the time and it is already a nightmare in terms of congestion: there are too many people for the local infrastructure, and the roads are constantly blocked and polluted. This proposed development is far too big for the area: the high rise buildings are completely out of keeping with the local area, and will ruin the views for current residents. The number of units is completely excessive, and there are no plans for the local infrastructure to have a major overhaul to support so many new residents: where are the new schools/ hospital/ GP and dental practises to support this many new people in the area?

The look of the buildings is awful, and will overshadow the surrounding areas for miles, ruining the skyline. There is not nearly enough provision in terms of parking spaces, access, amenities, for the number of units proposed. The buildings are much too high, and need to be reduced significantly. Parking should be increased a lot to prevent a massive overcrowding of parked cars on surrounding residential streets. A development of this size should include units and funding for local amenities: a nursery, a GP practise, a Dental practice at the very least, to alleviate the pressures on the existing local community, which is already underserved and poorly maintained

Comment: I am objecting yet again to this proposal. My first objection is that the previous 2000+ objections from members of the public seem to have been completely dismissed. This project with over one thousand flats will overwhelm the neighbourhood in so many ways: infrastructure, traffic, schooling, facilities such as doctor surgeries, supermarkets, pharmacies, not to mention policing. A huge increase in flats means a huge increase in population in one small area which will mean a lot more pollution from cars. There is already far too much traffic in the Groves, spillover from congestion on Cricklewood Broadway and Cricklewood Lane. How would the developers and Barnet Council deal with that? In addition, a huge development with even eighteen stories instead of twenty will be an eyesore on our neighbourhood, disrupting skylines and sunlight. This is a neighbourhood of terraced houses, full of character, with a diverse population, independent cafes, restaurants and shops. It is what makes it special. A huge, unsightly, architecturally ugly development will make Cricklewood lose its character and become just another London neighbourhood that is being over run by tower blocks. I object to the attitude that Cricklewood needs to be redeveloped. We have lived here for over thirteen years because it is a characterful neighbourhood with its own charm. Why does Barnet Council not propose putting tower blocks in the wealthy neighbourhoods in which the Tory councillors of Barnet live?

Both a reduction in height and density is needed to make this a feasible development for Cricklewood. I am sure Barnet has other spaces away from Brent's boundary where it could address additional housing and social needs. This feels like landing the long term issues in someone else's bailiwick.

Comment: Please read this in conjunction with my previous objection as it does not seem there has been a serious attempt to address the grounds for that objection. Those objections should be included with the following

Having read the documents I would like to add that although there is limited proposed parking in the development it is still extremely likely that there will be an increase in traffic using the approach road as there will undoubtedly be large numbers of delivery scooters, delivery vans, taxis and delivery bikes. It does not seem conceivable that residents would be told they could not have deliveries so each residential unit will be associated with a marked increase in traffic and therefore pollution and risk to pedestrians. It is irrelevant whether the vehicles accessing the development are owned by the residents of the development or not in terms of traffic congestion, pollution and risks in the local community.

I would like to again stress the level of congestion and pollution on the Edgware Road around Cricklewood which is longstanding and worsening over the 30 years I have lived here and seems unlikely to be much improved by the changes at the Cricklewood lane/Broadway junction as the road narrows after the turns into Chichele Road and Cricklewood Lane so the traffic will still back up.

In addition the rat runs through the neighbouring area of Ashford Road/ Mora Road etc will get even worse with the extra traffic increasing congestion, cars sounding their horns, infringements of the highway code eg motorbikes/scooter bikes on pavements to get round the bollards and dangerous driving now there are so many suvs which don't slow down for the speed bumps. The green space on the development is disproportionately small and inadequate for the adults and children living in it.

Comment: While an improvement from the previous application it remains far too dense and out of character with the surrounding area. The site is well above street level and an 18 storey tower block will dominate the skyline and shadowing will affect surrounding residential roads. It will place too much of a burden on the local road network which is constricted and very busy already with major congestion problems. The site should be used for residential development is too much, too high and too dense and is out of sympathy with the local environment.

Where will cars park? How will that impact our roads? How do you plan to satisfy the new residents on these already strained and newly redone roads?

Not to speak of the fact that it will completely ruin the feel and atmosphere of Cricklewood and would negatively impact on homes around the area by reducing the evening light and views.

The sheer height is a joke considering the surrounding neighbourhood, also that area is already elevated to begin with.

It's also obvious that due to the improvement of the Thameslink it's a money grab based on the location.

Comment:I, together with my family, have been residents of Cricklewood, close to the site of the proposed development, for 40 years. I (along with, I believe, about 2,000 others) have objected to this proposed development. But your documentation effectively dismisses the objections you have received.

You have written to me saying the previously proposed height, to which I objected- being approximately twice that of other buildings in the neighbourhood- has now been been (marginally) reduced. You omitted to say that the lateral dimensions have been bulked up to compensate.

I consider this to be sharp practice that ought to shame you.

My previous objections, to this proposed over-development are still valid: (a) building utterly out of scale with the surroundings and (b) miniscule provision of recreation space. The latter will inevitably cause additional pressures on already heavily used resources provided by neighbouring boroughs.

The proposed development is quite shockingly awful and so is your persistence with it.

Comment: With just a year before I can vote, I am still confused by the process of making comments on applications like this.

Twice I have objected to the proposal along with hundreds of neighbours and each time the council and the developers seem to take no notice of any comments we make.

Is this how democracy works? Do our voices count for so little? Why do you not listen to what we say?

Nobody likes the excessive heights of the buildings, the density. The proposed development is an eyesore.

Why do I bother making a comment for the third time, repeating myself, only to be ignored again?

Because a year before I am allowed to vote, I refuse to lose faith in grown ups despite the extreme disappointment of this process where adults continue with plans against the wishes of local residents like myself and many others.

One day, I will be able to vote for people who listen and care about local people.

I object, strongly, not only to this development but to people who ignore local residents.

How can I possibly explain to them that in many instances, these authorities take no notice of the views of ordinary citizens?

I have made my views very clear in the past: I do not appreciate the unnecessarily high buildings that will blight the landscape of our area.

Every time I submit comments, they seem to be disregarded, even though many local residents post these same views.

Why does Barnet Council insult us with the tiniest of amendments to previous proposals that we have seriously opposed?

I can't make myself any clearer: the height and density of the buildings in the proposed plan are simply unacceptable.

Comment: Disappointing to see yet another attempt by the developer to re-stack the unit blocks so as to reduce the height of the most massive of the "Tall Buildings" and yet not reduce the overall size of the proposed development - since only one unit is removed - by increasing the massing of the other blocks in the proposed development.

The objection is still that this development is just too big for the proposed location, completely out of keeping with the existing neighbourhood and will have significant adverse affects upon the community.

It also appears thst the supporting EIA letter from AECOM is at odds with the ammended plans since it states that the tallest block has been reduced by 12 storeys to 13 storeys - a simple mistake but it does show an overall lack of coordination and dilligence on the promoter's part.

I am curious as to how the supporting letter from AECOM (16Aug) and the updated Design Guidelines from EPR Archtects (12-Aug) can be produced so long after the planning application was updated (03Aug)

The London Plan calls for the creation of Residential Units and long-lasting jobs - which is in keeping with Cricklewood's history - yet this proposed development is nothing more than a housing estate

However, the associated increase in height of other structures proposed merely serves to emphasise the essential over-development of the site.

The plans further suggest a reduction in size of some proposed housing units, at a time when property sales figures prove the need for larger units.

So far as the overall scheme is concerned, it continues to display a disregard for the essential associated educational, medical and recreational facilities which so large a development clearly requires.

The highest building has been reduced by one story, but the developers have then raised the height of the block closest to the terraces to double the previous height.

This is nothing short of awful.

The LB of Barnet heritage department had already expressed their dismay as to how the proposed development would affect the skyline of the terraces (which is one of the aspects that has protected conservation status) when the height of the blocks closest to the terraces was 3 stories.

This development simply cannot go ahead as planned. No building should be above 9 stories at most and the ones most proximate to the terraces should not exceed 3 stories.

Comment: I am surprised why this application is still being considered given the large numbers of objectors from 3 boroughs. It is obvious that the developers have decided to cram in 1049 (approx) flats onto this small site at all costs. They are just playing around with the heights of the various buildings a snip here an increase there hoping they will get away with it and no one will notice. No matter how much snipping in height they do the general public realises that this is blatant overdevelopment of site and is a profit making exercise for the developers. When taking into account the other development planned for Co-op site. The left side of Cricklewood Lane will be an ugly giant housing estate. Cricklewood is already overdeveloped in terms of housing and traffic. There is a lack of proper retail facilities.

It will ruin the whole historical appeal of the area and will only negatively impact residential amenities in terms of daylight loss and traffic congestion stretching into Brent side. It is cheap looking and too modern, too tall and too bulky. If approved will act as a precedent for other developments. Please do NOT send to Committee but Reject this outright. The community must decide. The community are sending a clear message that they do not want this monstrosity on their door step. The community's wishes are not being respected. The developers must redraw the plans to make them acceptable for everyone.

Neither the council nor the developers are listening to the people or noting the comments. This will be an ugly eyesore that will blight the area for years to come. It needs to be stopped right now. People will ask themselves how on earth could the council have allowed this to happen. Locals do not want it. Throw this one out.

Comment: These blocks will be out of keeping with the character of Cricklewood. They will dwarf all the surrounding low and medium rise buildings. Many of the high rise developments of the 1960s have been demolished (e.g. Red Rose Flats, Glasgow) because they turned out to be unsuitable for happy and healthy human urban life. The developers at that time can, to some extent, be forgiven because they didn't have the benefit of experience.

Barnet council have no such excuse, They must heed past mistakes. The priority for the development of an urban area must be the interest and quality of life of those who are going to live in it rather than how profitable it is for investors, most of whom will neither know nor care where Cricklewood or what happens to it. Cricklewood isn't perfect but it has proved itself a decent area for people to live in. Most residents are pretty content to live here - as evidenced by the scale of objection to this development. The council have a duty to look after the interests of their electorate. They MUST heed the objections that have been made and finally put a stop to these proposals for development in their present form. They should have got the message by now. Don't come back in a month's time with same proposal, You have been told. LISTEN.

Overdevelopment of site.

If approved would set precedent for other greedy developers.

It will destroy the look of the area. Too tall, bulky, badly designed and ugly. Will cause major traffic congestion and will be burden on infrastructure in terms of GPs, hospitals, public transport.

Barnet council and the developers should be working with the local people and not against them.

The residents oppose this project please get back to the drawing board and come up with something acceptable to the local area.

A little reduction by one flat is an absolute joke. Next time round they will chop 2 flats off. Please listen to the locals they know what's best. This will become an ugly landmark visible for miles blocking daylight for nearby residents blighting their lives in more ways than one.

Comment: Myself and other residents in my street continue to oppose this giant overdevelopment on our doorstep. These tall developments should not be built on top of residential areas comprising 2-3 storey housing max. It is bad planning to allow this. The Groves, Railway Terraces, Fairview Housing and Handley Cloe will be seriously hit by overshadowing, loss of daylight.

A small reduction in height and reduction by one flat means little and is laughable.

The developers and Barnet planners are not taking into account comments submitted.

Everyone expects a significant reduction in SIZE and BULK to be in keeping with existing housing to make it aesthetically pleasing to the local neighbourhood. As it stands it will be an ugly eyesore similar to the ugly 1960's housing estates that were demolished because they caused too many social problems. This will be a magnet for crime, a fire hazard and the burden to the local community. Cricklewood does not have infrastructure to support an extra 3000+ residents. GP surgeries are full.

Cricklewood Lane and Claremont road are gridlocked already. Extra cars from this development would intensify the problem. The road widening at the Cricklewood Lane junction has done little as there are tailback stretching back to the Bridge. More pollution from extra traffic.

This bulky and tall development does not belong in Cricklewood. It will only ruin the appearance of the area and would spoil the view for many sticking out like a sore thumb. There is no valid reason to justify approving 1049 flats in an already congested and overpopulated area with limited infrastructure. Barnet council needs to state what resources they plan to give to accommodate such a large structure ie will there be a new GP surgery.

Please reject this one under delegated powers. It will be problematic to the local area. Will cause more harm than good. Plenty of space to build near to Brent Cross. No justification for Cricklewood. Reject, Reject, Reject

There are no plans to improve the trains service provided at Cricklewood Thameslink station.

Valuable local shops will be destroyed, so that even more shopping by cricklewood residents will involve a trip by car or bus.

The knock on effect on the local Cricklewood community in Brent, Camden and Barnett will be bad. An opportunity to produce a viable 'town centre' with shops, library, community facilities, toilets, cafes etc has been inexcusably missed.

The building proposed are far too tall.

Furthermore overly tall towers lead to a loss of community and quality of life. Walkways in the sky is a long devalued concept for improving quality of life and sense of community - it very much fails to achieve this. Lower level blocks are more desirable in all respects. I would argue that 6 or 7 floors as in nearby West Hampstead developments would be much more appropriate.

Points that you still don't answer:

1. Post Grenfell, what safeguards are in place?
2. Road traffic congestion/pollution is already appalling. The main rail link is from Cricklewood station. The current transport options are already full to capacity. What extra facilities will be offered to cope and how will it be funded?
3. The towers are too tall and the overall development way too dense. 6-8 storeys would be reasonable. The tower blocks will neither compliment nor enhance the area. They are ugly and no amount of Barnet posturing will change this.
4. Where is the public infrastructure in Barnet to support this influx of population? Or will they piggy-back on Brent and Camden?

5. Where is the public support in Barnet and Brent, to support this development? Where is the local support for an influx of people into supposedly 'affordable' housing?

OBJECTIONS

Would like to support all of the hundreds of reasons to object given by residents. So I was surprised to find The Barnet officers' report and recommendation has only a brief summary (4.2) of the 2000+ neighbour objections, misses out many substantial and policy-based points, and doesn't address those points elsewhere.

The main points for me are still

1. Effect on the town centre.

Right in the centre of town it is too big and imposing, and completely out of character with town centre . The officers report doesn't mention this underlying density issue which I raised in July. Brent planning department worked out the density for me as 396 dwellings per hectare, which according to the London Plan Density Matrix is High Density.

Barnet are treating this site as suitable for very high Central density, rather than Urban.

As Central, the acceptable density would be roughly halved, matching residents' comments on what might be appropriate heights and massing.

2. The height

The officers report also doesn't mention the Tall Buildings Update which I raised in July. Barnet's tall buildings policy update from 2019 states quite clearly on page 29 that Brent Cross can build over 30 floors, but the Cricklewood Thameslink is shown as 1-13 floors. This is unambiguous, and the developer is bold to think the planning committee can overlook a policy with so much weight.

3. Social Housing

I still cannot see mention of social housing (as opposed to Affordable), which is desperately needed in Cricklewood with so much multiple deprivation, and the worst overcrowding in the country. The Mayor of London requires 60% of the affordable housing provision should be for social and affordable rent

4. Traffic

The report ignores the points made re the flaws in the traffic assessment regarding pedestrian movements, cycle movements and rail passengers

I think residents deserve a reply to these, pls email

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Again I object to the height of these buildings - at the current height they will impact on natural light in the surrounding areas and cast shadows over my property. The size of the development will impact on local resources in the neighbouring boroughs more than central Barnet - traffic pressures, parking (car free developments results in more fraudulent purchasing of residents parking permits and does not reduce the use of cars). The Broadway is already filthy and not well maintained on Barnet's side so it seems unlikely that any significant development will facilitate good upkeep of the area.

This development lacks green space and is clearly about making a big financial profit over people profiting from having a home with adequate thought put into the well being - physical and mental health of prospective residents and existing neighbours. The developers have not considered how to optimise a thriving community within the development - as a positive psychologist with a background in community social work and a registered social worker this development is all set up to negatively impact on the residents new and old - resulting in heavier demand on health and social care resources pushing everything to the limit. Please do not grant permission for the development as it stands. We need more green space incorporated, less density of population and a reduction in the height of these buildings - the developers have clearly been wasting councillors time with their tokenistic adjustments making it look like a deal has been done and something unethical is bubbling under in the background. Listen to the community, let's make the development work for the people who live in Cricklewood and surrounding areas and the people who will live in any new development.

Comment: Reducing the height of some towers by one story is mere tokenism.

My previous objections stand. This proposal is too dense, too high and does not provide what is needed for the centre of Cricklewood.

A centre that provides for, and fits in with, the whole community.

As an addition, the pressures on public transport will be massive given that Thameslink are currently only running two trains an hour from Cricklewood station in each direction even at peak times.

Comment: I object to this new application, apart from reducing the number of flats from 1050 to 1049, which is ridiculous, the reduction in stories simply redistributes an overdense development.

The destructive impact on this community from increased traffic with related increased pollution to will affect health of residents and impact transport, schools, doctors and other key local services.

Where is the green space to serve this dense development? Why are the towers so high, out of keeping with the area.

Why are all the major developments in Barnet all on the edge of the borough? This is a cynical way to build developments without affecting the core Barnet voter base, as the developments impact on small numbers of Barnet residents and many more in neighbouring boroughs.

No, this development is not suitable for the site.

The height is not in keeping with the local area.

Local services and infrastructure will struggle under the high density of units being considered in this application.

Comment: I object strongly to having to respond to each tiny modification to this planning application, when absolutely no attention is being paid to the major issues that have been raised by the vast majority of respondents. Each time I receive 5 separate copies of the notification letter, which is a totally unacceptable waste of public money.

The main issues of height and density have not been addressed by Montreaux, nor have they been acceptably reviewed in the Barnet officer's review and recommendation report. I have been making the same points about overdevelopment of the site since the public exhibition held in February 2020. As others are now pointing out, the heights of most of the buildings proposed are well in excess of Barnet's own 2019 recommendations - why have they not been ruled out in discussions with Montreaux? Why is the density suggested by Barnet for the B&Q site far higher than that used by them in their recommendation for the approved redevelopment of the Co-op site next door? These questions have not been answered, and if they are not there will be widespread belief that Barnet Council is more interested in helping developers than the people of Cricklewood.

There are many other good arguments made by others why this proposal is unacceptable. If Montreaux do not now withdraw this application, it should be firmly refused.

Comment: I speak for myself and the other residents who live in these flats as well as many other in the fairview homes along Claremont road. The general consensus is that we are angry at the tall bulky blocks proposed. The flats in Handley Grove are set lower than street level. The new tower blocks will be on a hill. This will result in loss of daylight/ sunlight to our flats and result in loss of view. The same applies for the flats in Dairyman Close. These new tower blocks will dominate the whole skyline. Anything built should be no higher than 3 storeys. The tower blocks are badly designed. They look cheap and modern looking. They will clash with all surrounding architecture. They are far too tall and too bulky. Cricklewood does not need any more high density developments or 1050 new flats as there is a lack of infrastructure. This new development will do more harm than good to the local communities. This will ruin Cricklewood in terms of appearance and in terms of overpopulation. This is simply overdevelopment of site. Why should Cricklewood be lumbered with a mega development whereas Willesden Green and West Hampstead have smaller buildings? A smaller development planned for Ealing was rejected recently due to public opposition. Cricklewood needs to be protected from this. Residents do not want this bulky development at any cost. Please reject this outright as it is not right for Cricklewood. Nobody wants bulky housing estates on their doorstep with the social problems it would bring. Respect the views of the residents. This project would only benefit the developers financially. The residents will be the losers. The council is ignoring residents views by recommending this for approval. The slight reduction in height is a sick joke. They need to reduce it drastically to be acceptable to the local residents.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: I am a home owner in the Terraces conservation area.

I strongly object to this application.

I object on the grounds similar to the residents association who have already outlined their positions to you.

In particular of concern to me:

We live in a Conservation Area. Very high tower blocks ranging from 15 to 25 storeys will be visible and overbearing and will destroy the important uninterrupted views in and out of the terraces, referred to in the 'Railway Terraces Conservation Area Character Appraisal' document (reviewed in 2016 para 4.2 Views and Vistas). These tower blocks will be seen across the open space of the allotments (also in the conservation area) and over the roofs of our homes to Cricklewood and beyond. The Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990, Section 72 states 'special attention shall be paid to the desirability of preserving or enhancing the character or appearance of the area.' The proposed development is extremely detrimental to the character and appearance of the Railway Terraces.

Furthermore, page 21 of Barnet's Tall Buildings Update 2019, states, 'Historic England and CABE guidance on tall buildings notes that the effect on the historic context should be considered to '...ensure that the proposal will preserve and/or enhance historic buildings, sites, landscapes and skylines' and goes on to note that the impact on views to and from historic buildings should be considered over a wide area....Figure 4 shows the locations of existing tall buildings in the context of the conservation areas in Barnet. This highlights that most tall buildings are located some distance away from the conservation areas.' Why then are these massive tower blocks being put right next to the Railway Terraces Conservation Area?

The cottages are built on a near north south axis following the railway. It follows that we have approximately half a day of sunlight on either side of our homes. The side of the cottages opposite the development and which faces east, will be in the development's shadow and suffer a 20% loss of sunlight which is significant when that side of your home has sunlight for only half a day.

Montreaux has dismissed this as negligible. We are also concerned about the loss of light to Kara Way Playground so important for the health of local children.

There are no very tall buildings in Cricklewood. Barnet planning committee reduced the storeys on the Co-op site to 9 storeys and Brent has reduced the buildings on the Matalan site to 7 storeys. Page 31 of 'Barnet's Tall Buildings Update 2019', states that 6 to 14 storeys is appropriate for buildings in Cricklewood. We would argue that since the site is on a hill, the buildings should be no higher than 6 storeys. The architecture in Cricklewood is predominantly Victorian and Edwardian, 2 to 4 storeys high. The proposed plans do not fit with local architecture and will destroy the street scene.

Cricklewood is one of the most densely populated areas in Barnet. 1,100 housing units will equate to some 3,000 or more new residents. This will put enormous pressure on local services, which are already stretched such as GP surgeries, transport, leisure facilities and local parks. The site is linked to the A5 by Depot Approach. All vehicular access to and from the site (deliveries, services, visitors) will be via Depot Approach which runs alongside Kara Way playground, increasing pollution to the playground and increasing pollution and congestion on the A5, already one of the most polluted and congested roads in London.

The description of Cricklewood Station, as a convenient 'transport hub', is misleading. It is the only rail station in Cricklewood and serves only the City and South East London. We do not have an underground and links to the West End, West and North London are by bus and are already slow due to congestion.

Many of our residents attended the public consultation and spent a great deal of time studying and discussing the plans and diagrams with Montreaux representatives, who were told repeatedly that the buildings were too high and too dense for our area. Indeed communications with other local residents associations, lead us to believe that most, if not all, Cricklewood residents, who attended the consultation agreed. Yet no significant changes have been made to the plans. Montreaux has not listened to local residents and we have no alternative but to conclude the consultation process a sham and a tick- box exercise, and, as such, we ask the Council to disregard it.

In conclusion, there is a strong community in Cricklewood, across borough dividing lines, and residents view the application as an attack on their community. We are disappointed and insulted. Disappointed in that we feel this is a missed opportunity to develop, for the enhancement of all Cricklewood, a site, which few would disagree, needs developed. Insulted, in that, we have been ignored. Also, had Montreaux and Barnet Councillors included local residents in their Pre- application Workshops 2 and 3 on 24th June 2019 and 16th August 2019, when height, massing and public realm issues were discussed, the present and extensive conflict may have been avoided.

Comment: I've already objected strongly to these proposals, as have very numerous other residents for this rea. I stand by my previous objections and, indeed those of other objectors, with none of whom do I disagree. All of our collective objections to this "project" appear to have been cynically ignored and dismissed. What happened to the "democracy" that the London Borough of Barnet claims to endorse?

Nothing has significantly altered in the "new" plans, a reduction of one storey is meaningless in real terms, merely one penthouse fewer! Cricklewood is a village already beset by awful traffic congestion, pollution and creeping overpopulation. Adding a further 3000 or so will only make the situation worse. These newcomers will doubtless have families. They will require education, medical treatment, recreational facilities. Where are the extra teachers, doctors, dentists, play and sports areas? They are not in the so-called amended plans but they are vital.

People need trees, green space and cleaner air, not more concrete. The largest building in the immediate area proposed for this "development" in Cricklewood, I believe, is the Clayton Crown Hotel. No new construction should be taller than this.

There is already a brown 15+ storey eyesore on the summit of Shoot-up Hill, as well as the nearby slightly lower (11 storeys) high-rises of Watling Gardens, we really do not need any more to blight the locale.

I sincerely hope that, this time, those dealing with the planning application will take note of the views of existing residents, all the negative aspects of the proposal that have been pointed out, consider them properly and honestly, do the decent thing and decline developers' proposals entirely.

Comment: This revised application represents a mere tinkering with the previous application. It is reprehensible that Montreaux should submit a revised proposal which differs very little from the previous version and one can only think that this is in the hope of reducing the number of objections. One storey had been reduced from the tallest tower but it would appear that additions have been made elsewhere and the total number of units has been reduced by only one. My previous objections must therefore stand: I am unsure why, but I notice that the application appears take no account of a recent legal challenge.

The very large scale and height of the building is completely out of keeping with the surrounding area and there no buildings in the vicinity of anything light. The buildings will completely dominate the area and throw shadow over existing houses. The project will completely dominate the whole area and its scale is excessively overbearing.

No account is taken on the load to infrastructure in the form of roads, transport, schools and medical services. To make this worse the application is not placed in the context of a large number of other planning applications for the construction of flats in immediate vicinity. The project would contribute to an enormous increase in population in the area surrounding the intersection of Cricklewood Broadway and Cricklewood Lane, without consideration of demand for services and load on infrastructure.

The development with dominate the conservation area of the Railway Cottages and cut off views from there to towards the east.

*B&Q is a community asset, of immense value to the people of Cricklewood and surrounding areas

*The latest proposal is still an over development of the site which would be visually and environmentally detrimental to the area as a whole

* The proposal is out of keeping and scale with the housing in the area eg. the new development next to the Virgin Active Gym further up Cricklewood which is only 8 storeys high

* The proposed development would put further strain on the local road network, especially while it was being built. The site has only two entrances and exits both of which lead onto busy roads which already suffer from extensive traffic jams

I would like to stress that all my previous objections to the proposed site still stand given that the very latest amendments hardly change the previous plans which is startling, given the hundreds of objections made by the local community.

In addition, I would like to highlight my dissatisfaction with the so-called "revised" plans.

In particular, I am most unhappy with the way the buildings closest to the railway terraces have been given additional storeys and will loom even higher over our neighbourhood and the local playground. I fail to understand the developers' rationale for this latest amendment. Could this be explained in further detail?

In short, the proposed storeys are far too high and too dense for the area, as you have now heard hundreds of times.

Comment: Firstly, I am so bored of having to object yet again to this proposal - as the developers make yet another tiny modification to the plan, presumably in the hope of eventually getting less objections?

Secondly, as previously stated, this scheme is horrible and vastly oversized for the size of the plot, too tall for the area, and too densely built.

It also adds an unbearable weight on the local area in terms of car traffic, demand on public transport, demand for school places on heavily oversubscribed local schools, doctors surgeries.

It is also very obvious that Barnet Council are shoving this huge ugly development in their furthest corner of their borough in order to presumably satisfy home-building targets, whilst remaining smug in the knowledge that Brent and Camden will be picking up the pieces re school places, doctors surgeries and other amenities.

Also, nothing I've seen has reassured me that the site traffic will not be dangerous for the large number of school children who travel on foot to school on Edgware Rd/Cricklewood Lane. There should be no lorries delivering between 7.30-9.30am and 2.30-4.30pm to ensure the safety of local children.

Comment: This present application still ignores the primary issue that the proposal is a substantial overdevelopment of the site and a huge increase in dwelling and habitation density compared to the immediate local areas in Brent, Barnet and Camden Boroughs. The most recent developments of a comparable nature at Childs Hill, Wilkinson Close and Cricklewood Lane are between six and eight storeys high with much lower overall densities. The nature of the existing residential properties has not been taken into account and there has been no meaningful attempt to adapt or modify the designs following previous criticism from the local community; the current cynical submission reduces the overall height by one storey to 18 and the residential units by one to 1049! No account has been taken of the reduction of services and amenities to the present residents of the area who will suffer a loss of convenient retail outlets which also provide a large number of permanent jobs. Local services, health care and schools are already inadequate for the needs of the current residents. The road infrastructure is not capable of dealing with the current traffic flow and the potential addition of a further 1000 plus vehicles located on the site will bring it to breaking point.

Comment: As Secretary of the Railway Terraces Residents' Association, I confirm that all previous objections made by our association still stand. We also object very strongly to the way in which this planning application has been dealt with both by the developer and the LPA. There has been a lack of clarity and transparency and documents which show the latest block plans have not been made publicly available on Barnet's planning portal. This is shocking. It would appear from block plans inserted in an email from Carl Griffiths that the block nearest the Terraces has been increased from 3 to 6 storeys. Why aren't these very important documents on the planning portal? Why are changes being made at the last minute?

Reducing the height of one of the buildings by one storey and increasing the building closest to the terraces by three storeys without ANY CONSULTATION is disgraceful. No doubt when Montreaux's representative speaks at the Strategic Planning Committee, he/she will announce yet another one or two storey reduction to convince the committee that they have listened and responded to local concerns about the height and density of the development. This is farce! The message from the Railway Terraces and wider Cricklewood is very clear. No tower blocks in Cricklewood - nothing over 8 storeys. We are not 'nimbys' - we welcome housing on the site but this needs to be the right housing.

Barnet has a responsibility to protect the Railway Terraces Conservation area and should be seeking to enhance our conservation area, not destroy it. The view of the Terraces' roof and chimney pots will merge with the tall towers that will project above them so destroying the straight roof line that is an important characteristic of the Terraces. This special feature is referred to in the Conservation Area Character appraisal and Heritage section of the report to the planning committee. It will be lost forever at the southern end of the Terraces if this development goes ahead.

Comment: This amended application still ignores the main issues of size, height and density of buildings which are not in keeping with the buildings in Cricklewood and the surrounding area and would be an eyesore.

The developers have not made any meaningful attempt to modify their plans to take into account the criticisms and objections of the local community. The reduction of the tallest building from 19 storeys to 18 and of the number of residential units from 1050 to 1049 is an insignificant change. The density is substantially the same and I am astonished that Barnet Council is even considering this revised application.

The development will put a strain on local facilities, infrastructure and traffic and will increase pollution in the area.

Comment:As in previous objections, the important issues include:

- 18 storey blocks of flats are entirely out of keeping with the 2 to 3 storey buildings in Victorian Cricklewood, and will dominate the area for miles around. Similarly. The Railway Cottages conservation area to the north of the development would be overwhelmed. The developers bizarrely appear to flaunt this incompatibility in their application.
- the reduction in size of the tallest buildings is counteracted by an increase in height of the smaller blocks. There is still a hugely excessive concentration of dwellings in the development.
- there is insufficient affordable social housing.
- there is totally inadequate parking, and vehicles would be displaced onto the streets of Cricklewood and beyond.
- traffic at the Cricklewood Lane/A5 crossroads is already at a standstill during peak hours. How the developers intend to remedy this is not explained.
- bus services are already often delayed or suspended crossing the A5 during peak hours. This excessive development has the power to bring services to a standstill.
- the developers have not accounted for the increased number of rail commuters in Cricklewood.
- overall, the development would lead to a huge increase in pollution from an already excessive level.

- the developers have not accounted for the massive increase in demand for schools and health care facilities.
- the developers have not adequately explained fire protection resources to be installed in up to 18 storey buildings, nor how the local fire service is to be equipped to cope with emergencies.

In summary the height of the buildings and the density of occupation are far in excess of anything practicable for Cricklewood. I am amazed at how relatively insignificant changes in shape, but not in substance of the development, can be the basis for continued revised applications, and how these can be signed off by Barnet Council. No doubt there are grounds for compromise within the current building outlines for Cricklewood, but I have yet to see any whatsoever from the developers.

For the above reasons I object to the revised Montreaux proposal.

I am shocked to hear a proposal should even get this far to have Very Tall Buildings 15 storeys plus so directly next to a conservation site. How can this be approved?

Comment: I previously objected to the height of the tallest buildings in this proposed development. I understand that whilst these have been slightly reduced in size, the height of other buildings, notably those closer to the Railway Terraces - where I live - has been increased, raising the prospect of a bleak cliff-like structure when viewed from that side. It seems we are having to play 'Whack-a-mole' to keep up with these shifts.

I still feel that at 1049 units, the number of residences in this proposal is too great for the local infrastructure - transport, traffic, schools, health provision, etc - to effectively cope with.

In considering this development, the Planning Committee must also take into account the similar-sized development that has been approved on the Brent side of the A5; at about the same distance from the Railway Terraces. Although this is in a different borough, it goes without saying that residents of both developments will be reliant on the same local infrastructures. I believe the 'knock-on' effect of the proposed development, as it stands, will place an intolerable burden on the existing residents of Cricklewood; residents who have worked so hard in recent years to give the area an identity and to develop a sense of community - towards which the developers have shown woeful insensitivity.

Comment: The Town Team note that there has been a slight reduction in the height of the main tower, but the density of the development is still a concern for the residents who will be living within the buildings.

Has an Impact Assessment been undertaken and submitted with the developers proposal on the number of pedestrians who will be moving from the development onto Cricklewood Broadway and into Cricklewood Lane? These are 2 very local areas which are already very busy and particularly on the Broadway alongside the very busy traffic on the A5. The impact of even half the residents onto the local pavements will be considerable.

The Town Team are concerned that little notice has been given of the latest proposal, and more particularly because this is during the major holiday season. The fact that many will not have the opportunity to comment on the revised proposals should not be taken as agreement.

The Town Team object to this proposed development plan because it would make Cricklewood into a high-rise annex of the Brent Cross Regeneration and deprive Cricklewood of its identity as a historic town centre location.

The last plans show a solid, dense block. This is the wrong sort of development for Cricklewood!!! It is all about the developers making as much profit as possible without considering the detrimental impact on the community and neighbourhood. Comment: I write on behalf of NorthWestTwo Residents Association, a thriving Cricklewood residents association with members in Barnet, Brent and Camden.

NorthWestTwo Residents Association remains opposed to this planning application, for reasons that we and our members, our fellow residents' associations, other residents and developers have given.

These objections were not presented in the officers' report and recommendations for the 26 July 2021 Strategic Planning Committee meeting. That report, completed and published before the end of consultation on 16 July, summarised the neighbours' objections in about half a page of bullet points, completely omitting many and not fairly summarising others. This stands in sharp contrast to (for example) the four pages dedicated to objections in the report on application 20/2988/FUL for the previous week's meeting and the detailed consideration given to those objections. The report on the current application is explicit that the half-page summary is "in the interests of brevity" rather than in the interests of informed decision-making by the planning committee.

We raise some of these objections now in further detail and greater emphasis, but this does not mean that only these points need presenting to the committee. It is necessary that the 2200 objections are reviewed against the July report and those not summarised and addressed there are presented to the committee now so that it can come to its decision in full possession of the facts and arguments against the application.

The latest revision of the application reduces the height of one tower in particular, further stripping away claims of public benefit from the height of the tower, but reduces the number of residential units by only one. No revised schedule of dwelling numbers has been provided, so we cannot conclude that the sizes of some dwellings have been reduced. Instead, the planning officer later sent residents a drawing showing that the massing has been increased and in particular, building heights close to the Railway Terraces conservation area have increased.

The density of the development thus remains unchanged and still does not accord with Barnet's Reg 19 Draft Local Plan. That sets different densities for suburban, urban and central areas, described as "- central - areas with very dense development, a mix of different uses, large building footprints and typically buildings of four to six storeys, located within 800 m walking distance of a Metropolitan or Major town centre.

"- urban - areas with predominantly dense development such as, for example, terraced houses, mansion blocks, a mix of different uses, medium building footprints and typically buildings of two to four storeys, located within 800 m walking distance of a district centre or, along main arterial routes."

This site is clearly not in a central area. Cricklewood is a district centre on a lesser arterial route (in contrast to the nearby A41 Hendon Way) and in all other ways a good fit for the above description of urban. To describe it as central would not only go against the Barnet Plan's description but also strip the terms urban and central of any viability as distinctive terms.

The developments adjacent to the site (1-13 Cricklewood Lane ref 18/6353/FUL and 194-196 Cricklewood Broadway 17/0233/FUL) as well as the nearby 112/132 Cricklewood Lane ref 16/06/01/FUL were all correctly described in the recommendations to the planning committee as urban, and the residential density assessed accordingly. This report avoids any mention of the Barnet Local Plan regarding residential density and does not present residents' arguments concerning density policy to the committee. Instead, it claims without reference to Barnet's Local Plan density matrix that "officers consider that, in principle, the site is suitable for high density development", contrary to the clear statements by Barnet officers in section 4.6 of the report concerning "this gargantuan development", "the sheer scale, height and mass of the proposed development" and "the vast disparity and inappropriateness of scale, height and massing between the existing built environment of the locality and the proposal."

The Transport sections of the report dwells at length on whether the applicants' predictions of volumes are correct (concluding that they are not well-founded and methodologically incorrect, but accepting them anyway). It does not touch on well-founded objections that the actual impact of those volumes has been superficially and wrongly assessed in the application's transport assessment. The walking and cycling accessibility of the area has been misrepresented, the impact of increased volumes on roads and pavements has not been assessed and assessment has even been deliberately avoided - as we and others have previously detailed. This has not been presented to the committee, nor have concerns about the impact on rail services. It's proposed that some unspecified work be carried out on the Cricklewood Lane railway bridge without saying what the end result will be in terms of volumes, congestion and safety. Likewise, it's proposed that a study be carried out on the need for more Controlled Parking Zones, but it is not mentioned that the imposition of CPZs will be a predictable and predicted effect of the development on the neighbourhood which impacted residents regard as a major disbenefit.

The report also omits to consider the Brent side of the A5, very close to the development. The Mapesbury Conservation Area less than 500m away is omitted from its list in section 1.7. The large developments at 249-289 Cricklewood Broadway and Hassop Road and on the Cricklewood Broadway Matalan site, which have resolutions to approve by Brent planning committee, are not taken into account by the planning application when considering the impact on the neighbourhood and the report is both silent on this omission and silent on the cumulative impact taken with known developments.

The report summarises visual impacts in para 9.22 by describing significant harms as inexorable consequences of a high-density scheme, and this approach is repeated in considering other impacts or entirely neglecting them. In so doing, the report prejudges the central issue, that the site is not suitable for such a high-density scheme. The objections mentioned here, both new and reinforced, and many others demonstrate the unsuitability of the site for this double density. For the sake of good governance, for the sake of Barnet Council's aim of thriving town centres, and for the sake of current and future residents around and within the site, these objections must not be withheld from the planning committee.

Comment: Since my last objection it seems that this new application phase is just tweaking the number of flats being proposed and reducing the max number of floors from 19 down to 18. The current tallest building in the vicinity seems to be the Travel Lodge at 5 storeys high which reinforces to me what an eyesore this proposal will be.

Also, as I noted before if all those 1000+ new residents have a car then Cricklewood lane will become a gridlock at rush hour.

Overall I don't think this project has been thought through and needs to be scrapped or vastly reduced to say a max of 5-8 storeys in height.

Comment: Please take into account all my previous comments.

Muddled communication from Montreaux and Barnet means that no-one is now sure what is proposed. It is unacceptable for there still to be a lack of clarity about the proposal when it goes to committee.

It is still too high and too dense. Barnet's Tall Buildings Policy (2019) suggests 8-14 storeys is appropriate for Cricklewood town centre. There are 5 buildings over 14 storeys. The height of the tallest building in Block A now appears to have been reduced to 13 storeys above the ground storey, i.e. 14 in all. However, Blocks A and C still have very tall buildings of up to 18 storeys. Block D, nearest to the Railway Terraces Conservation Area, now seems to be 6 storeys throughout instead of reducing to 3 storeys next to the conservation area.

The development will cause harm to the conservation area and its setting. The tallest buildings in Blocks A and C will project above the roofs and chimneys of the southern end of the Terraces. The uniformity of parallel roof and chimney lines is one of the main reasons the Terraces was granted conservation status. This development will compromise that. It will also impact heavily on Champion Terrace directly next to the site and the front of Needham Terrace, which will look directly on to massive tower blocks across the open space of our allotments.

Please listen to the balance of local opinion which is overwhelmingly against this development and reject it.

We need more human scale low rise property that is pleasant, safe and properly affordable to people to rent or buy. We need more gardens and green areas. No one gets to enjoy a garden when they live in a high-rise.

This project is simply a developers "stack 'em high, and make a pile". It is motivated by greed not need.

Comment Reasons:

Comment: Despite yet more tinkering around the edges of this benighted planning application (is this the third attempt?) all original objections remain.

Some (slight) reductions in height will be accompanied by increased massing in the rest of the development - eg 3-stories goes up to 6, two 8-stories go up to 12.

I totally agree with NW2 Res Association's objection posted today. And as a member of the Mapesbury Residents' Association Committee and also Planning Sub-Committee, I reiterate our fundamental objection:

We on live on the North East of the Mapesbury Conservation Area, just off the A5 and adjacent to the Brent/Barnet/Camden borders, half a mile from the site of the proposal.

Over 1,000 'residential units' will mean a minimum of 3,000 people living there. The traffic on the A5 is already horrendous and the pollution dreadful. We note that parking spaces are limited to 110 (how will these be allocated? Plus there is free parking nearby at certain times), but there will be hundreds of delivery vans on a daily basis driving up to the site making the congestion and pollution around the A5 even more unbearable.

The thousands of people living there will need schools, GPs, hospitals and infrastructure of all kinds. Brent and Camden will have to deal with the inevitable overspill.

character with the surrounding townscape.

The intensity of use is also a matter of concern. There is talk of 'green areas' but they are sketchy at best and inevitably in shadow from the high blocks of flats,

Alongside all this, we have the new Brent Cross Town, just up the road, (also in Barnet) with 6,700 new homes. Meaning an additional 20,000+ people jammed into a few square miles alongside the 3,000 on this site. Not to mention the proposed development on the Matalan site further up the A5.

This application is about making money for the developer, not serving housing need or communities.

The race to construct endless formless blocks with no regard to Green issues is a dereliction of Barnet Council's duty to enrich the local environment not engage with off shore development companies to meet arbitrary targets. An opportunity to create a model Green development that will not only put Barnet and Cricklewood on the map (for COP26) is set to be missed through a lack of imagination and good old fashioned greed. At the very least follow the Singapore model (LUSH) and replace the total land area taken up by development with living green areas incorporated within the built area. These requirements should be a minimum if Barnet are serious about sustainable development. I'm sure many national and international architectural practices would be happy to submit imaginative proposals that are both sustainable and profitable for all concerned that will carry local public support. Please show some imagination.

Comment: I have lived in Cricklewood for 46 years and am totally against this whole development, in particular the height of these multi storey tower blocks.

It is not in keeping with other buildings in the area and will be an eyesore.

The site is already in a bottleneck part of Cricklewood where the road is narrow and so many new flats on a small footprint will only add to traffic and congestion.

So many residents are opposed to this development but the council seems to have sold out to developers instead of representing the interests of the local community.

Please listen to us!

Stance: Customer objects to the Planning Application

Comment Reasons:

Comment: The developer and the council have again failed to listen to residents. Basing this application on the highly problematic "draft local plan", means cricklewood would be left with this massively dense development of approved.

It is far too dense and ill thought through.

Please come back with a more sensible idea. I would love to see a good plan come forward on this site.

Comment: Please see my previous comments from the previous application. I don't consider this amendment to have improved the plans at all. In fact, it is worse as some buildings have been increased in size.
